The Shamrock isn't the only Irish bar in town.

About a mile off the beaten path is Stoney Acre Grill and Donegal Danny's Pub.

Homemade, traditional Irish fare will be offered at the grill throughout St. Patrick's Day weekend, while music will be offered at the pub, said owner Marilyn Racine.

Danny, Danny and Friends will play folk and Irish music from 5-8:30 on Friday, March 16, at the pub. The musical group Paul and Joey will close the bar down from 9 p.m.-1 a.m.

An acoustic open session will take place from 5-8:30 on Saturday, March 17. Danny, Danny and Friends will follow from 9 p.m.-1 a.m.

Because hotels on the island fill up quickly at this time of year, Steve West, executive director of the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce, suggests day-trippers to Beaver Island make use of the two air carriers serving Beaver Island.

"You can fly over in the morning, then take the late flight off the island," said West. "Just make sure you have a designated driver when you get home."

City council approves marijuana rules, public works changes

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. did something during Monday's Charlevoix City Council meeting he's never had to do before in the 10 years he has served as mayor: Vote.

Under the city's charter, the mayor votes only in the event of a tie vote among the six members of the city council.

And after 10 years it happened not once, but twice within a few minutes at Monday's meeting on the same topic.

The split vote was just one of many tense moments in the meeting.

In fact the agenda item that might have appeared to have the most potential for controversy — a zoning ordinance amendment regulating medical marijuana — sparked the least amount of fireworks of any of the matters the council discussed.

After more than a year of meetings, discussions, revisions and a moratorium, the council voted unanimously to approve a zoning ordinance amendment that regulates medical marijuana caregiver operations in the city.

The ordinance passed by the council Monday changed little from the version it sent back to the planning commission earlier this year. The only minor change was adding the Charlevoix Public Library and the BASES Teen Center to the list of places around which there is a 500-foot "buffer zone."

The ordinance, which does not apply to medical marijuana-certified patients who wish to grow their own marijuana, requires caregivers to apply for city zoning permit and allows caregiver operations to be established only on properties in residential zones that do not fall within 1,000 feet of a school or 300 feet of a church.

The buffer zones, as passed by the council, were pared back significantly from the original draft of the ordinance, which included parks, day care facilities, and other medical marijuana caregivers.

Jason Staph, a medical marijuana patient, who, along with others, spoke out in opposition to several provisions of the ordinance at a public hearing in January.

At Monday's meeting, Staph spoke against the ordinance again, this time specifically about the permitting process contemplated in the ordinance. Staph contends that the requirement that caregivers show their certification card to apply for the zoning permit is a violation of the Medical Marijuana Act and federal health care privacy laws.

City attorney Bryan Graham disagreed.

It was a change to the city staff organizational chart that brought the most heated discussions of the evening.

In January, city manager Rob Straebel brought a proposal to the council under which the city's current street superintendent Pat Elliott would become the city's superintendent of public works. Under the plan Elliott will take over managing the city's water department (and its two employees) from Don Swem, who currently also manages the electric department. The change will put Elliott in charge of the city's parks, streets and city utilities under the streets. Swem will be in charge of the electric department only.

Straebel said his reasons for recommending the changes included streamlining of infrastructure projects to fall all under one department and increasing demands placed on Swem by the city's electric department to meet state regulatory mandates and an upcoming need for the city to switch to a new type of "smart metering system."

To compensate him for the added responsibilities of overseeing the water department and for the expected additional call-outs for water issues, Straebel recommended increasing Elliott's salary by 10 percent (from $56,713 to 62,384) and granting him an additional five vacation days. The change would also require Elliott to obtain a water system operators certification. Swem's salary will remain unchanged.

However, in January, several council members had questions and concerns about the proposed change and asked for the matter to be postponed for further study. Some council members said they were concerned that the job would be too much for one person to handle.

Since then, Straebel wrote in a memo to the council, he has met with council members to answer their questions.

Straebel explained that the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality is OK with the city's plan for Swem, who does hold a water system operator certification, to serve as the system operator of record until Elliott completes his certification.

Responding to a question about why the city wouldn't wait until Elliott was certified, Straebel explained that the state will only allow a person to take the certification exam after he or she has served as the head of a water system for at least six months.

In his memo Straebel also noted "there is no liability issue" and there is no need for the city water department head to "sign off" on water projects as that is handled between the city's engineering firm and the state before projects begin.

Given the delay from the original January meeting date, Straebel proposed to start the new organizational system the day after Labor Day when the construction season slows down.

But Straebel's additional information didn't assuage the concerns of several council member — especially Jill Picha who was adamantly opposed to the move at Monday's meeting.

Among Picha's concerns was the ability for one person to handle the "public works" workload; she also said she was concerned about "harmony" among employees in the

Hayes Township man sent to prison

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Schoolcraft

CHARLEVOIX — Gerald Shane Schoolcraft is in prison through a plea bargain, sentenced last month for felony attempted criminal sexual conduct against a 5-year-old girl.

Authorities arrested Schoolcraft, 51, of Charlevoix County's Hayes Township, last year and charged him with one first-degree and three second-degree counts of criminal sexual conduct, as well as being a habitual offender. The crime happened in early October 2010, records show.

The original charges carried 25- and 15-year prison sentences, while the habitual offender status elevated the potential sentence to life in prison. But that didn't happen. [illegible]

Instead, Charlevoix County Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas sentenced Schoolcraft to a maximum five years in prison, with the possibility of parole after 23 months, or less than two years.

Schoolcraft's court-appointed lawyer, Christopher Turkelson, of Charlevoix, negotiated a deal with prosecutor John Jarema. Schoolcraft pleaded no contest to one charge of felony attempted criminal sexual conduct, in exchange for all other charges being dropped.

Turkelson could not be reached for comments.

Shaynee Fanara, chief assistant prosecutor, said this tough case wouldn't have been possible without one courageous little girl.

"I'm very proud of that young girl for coming forward. Because of her bravery, a sexual predator is off the street," Fanara said.

This is not Schoolcraft's first stint in state prison. He spent more than three years in prison between 2003 and 2007 for third-offense drunken driving in Cheboygan County, as well as three years between 1996 and 1999 for third-offense drunken driving in Otsego County.

Additionally, Schoolcraft's criminal record includes convictions for malicious destruction of property in October 1983 in Cheboygan; operating while intoxicated in June 1990 in Cheboygan; and resisting and obstructing a police officer in Rogers City in August 2008.

Plowing accident damages fuel pumps

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

A Charlevoix Municipal Airport employee caused extensive damage to the airport's fuel pumps when he collided with the pumps while plowing snow on Saturday.

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel briefed the Charlevoix City Council about the incident at the council's regular semi-monthly meeting Monday.

Straebel told the council that the collision caused extensive damage to the pumps — also known as the "fuel farm" at the airport. He said the pumps can still dispense general aviation, or 100LL fuel, (which is the type of fuel used by Island Airways and Fresh Air Aviation) but jet fuel cannot be dispensed. Straebel said it could take two to three months to get the pump units fixed. He said in the meantime the airport should have enough jet fuel in storage trucks to meet the airport's limited jet fueling needs this time of the year.

Straebel told the Courier Wednesday that the exact cost of the repairs has not yet been determined, but said that the city's insurance is expected to cover the cost.

He said no fuel was spilled in the accident, that the airport manager shut off power to the fuel farm as a precaution and that no injuries were reported.

Straebel noted that there were protective posts in place near the 100LL fuel dispenser, but not around the jet fuel dispenser. He said that city staff will be looking into how the pumps are protected in the future. He declined to comment on whether the employee who struck the pumps was disciplined in any manner.

Life in 'Florabama' moves at a little slower pace

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennell

Still hanging out in the south we made a side trip to New Orleans. Having vacationed in this southern town prior to Katrina's arrival, we were eager to see how things were shoring up. Still a few homes abandoned and some areas still damaged; proof that some families never returned. But the majority of the area is rebuilt and renewed with only water marks on the sides of the buildings, indications left from Monday morning, Aug. 29 in 2005, when more than 1,000 lives were lost because of the storm surge and flooding brought on by this deadly hurricane. In September, shortly after the swell subsided, I wrote about the spirits of those whose lives were spared and how proud I was of my husband and his friend when the angels guided them to help survivors that were taken to Baton Rouge.

Here we were, returning to the expressway next to the Superdome where years earlier families sought refuge standing on the overpass so they wouldn't get washed away. My memories were immersed with news clips of people reaching out to receive help where a hand was given. Today cement slabs bearing the information on the water levels educated us about the height to which the water rose. Billboards display encouraging words that New Orleans is alive again and construction inside buildings in the French Quarter speak the same renewed spirit. Greetings from the sellers at the infamous French Market and long lines for Café Du Monde put your mind at peace that New Orleans is in recovery.

We drove back to the Pan Handle of Florida often referred to as Florabama. In the grocery store a young man approached me and took my cart. My immediate reaction was to pull it back and say "Whoa there, fella," but in a quick moment he emptied my cart onto the counter then ran around to the other side to bag it, all the while asking me how my day was going. He grabbed my bagged groceries and asked where my car was parked, then headed out the door and walked me to the car so he could carefully place my items into the trunk. Back at the checkout, the cashier also asked me how I was doing while telling me about her latest recipe for what I was purchasing and repeating herself by saying, "I really want to know how your day is going." After my third visit to the grocers, I became accustomed to the checkout clerks' inventory on their customers, not just in grocery stores, but everywhere in Florabama. Catching up on the latest in everyone's life is what Florabamans do. It's important to remember to add extra time every time you enter a store. I learned of who passed on, whose funeral was scheduled, the current weather update and the health conditions of many individuals I will never have the pleasure of meeting.

Yes, life in Florabama moves at a much slower pace and it's taken awhile for this Yankee girl to move in slow motion. My accent not only gives me away but my speech pattern as quick as the Indy 500 does, as well.

As I mentioned in my previous column, our weather has been less than great. Day 25 and counting and no sun to speak of. Well, it did come out three different times but only for an hour or two. I've been careful not to focus on shopping or looking for more dogs to take home. Instead, we remind ourselves it's not 30 degrees, though now even 60 feels like 30 after being here awhile. I've had a chance to read four books, catch up with friends online and on the phone, and get caught up on work as well. It will be nice to travel home hopefully with no major tie ups, to sleep in our own beds, see family and friends, especially the grandkids, go back to our routine and most importantly, work on housebreaking our newly acquired Florabama pup. Like everything else in this neck of the woods, I have a feeling this project will be a slow one with lots of conversation.

LOOKING BACK…

After logging died out around 1915, the lakes began to show the disastrous results of overfishing, the importance of the docks and wharves along Round Lake that had supported these industries faded also. Most of the docks fell into disuse. The stretch from the channel to Antrim Street showed the effects of little if any maintenance, and the whole area began to fall apart. Storeowners on Bridge Street threw their garbage and junk out their rear doors. A stench arose, vermin infested the area, burrs clung to clothing, and scrid smoke from perpetual fires drifted along the wsterfront. "Charlevoix the Beeutiful" was becoming anything but. Seen here from the passenger liner Missouri is the pathetic state of Wilbur's Dock, now the city dock area, where sections have been roped off so people don't fall through the holes. Resorters are waiting near the decay, some with their cers, to bosrd for the journey home. Only in the late 1930s did the city come to grips with what was happening and begin the gredual transformation into whst Charlevoix enjoys today.

OBITUARIES

Geri (Finch) Creasey, 76

Geri (Finch) Creasey, 76, of Charlevoix, passed away March 3, 2012 at her home.

She was born Aug. 27, 1935, in Battle Creek to Dr. D.L. and Dorothy (Wilder) Finch. Geri graduated from Lakeview High School in 1953, and attended the University of Michigan. She completed her education as a registered nurse at Nazareth College in Kalamazoo in 1957.

Her nursing career included being a private surgical nurse, a psychiatric nurse at the Traverse City State Hospital, and an orthopedic surgical nurse in several hospitals in Michigan and Illinois. Geri was active with the Borgess Service League in Kalamazoo and participated in both their Follies and Fashion Shows.

She married Paul J. Creasey Sr. in 1974 and moved to San Francisco, Calif. where together they enjoyed a working relationship with The Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company for 23 years. After retirement they moved to Charlevoix, and spent winters in Marco Island, Fla.

Geri's love for animals was well known and her friends often said, "When I die, I want to come back as one of her dogs." Knitting, crafts and flowers were a passion with her.

She was preceded in death by her mother, Dorothy (Wilder) Finch in 1964, and father, Dr. D. L. Finch in 1999.

Surviving are her husband Paul J. Creasey Sr. of Charlevoix; son James Landau Harris of Kalamazoo; stepchildren, Melissa Jayne Creasey and Paul John "Chad" Creasey Jr. both of Grand Rapids, and Helen Jessica (Creasey) Shutter of Denver, Colo.; three granddaughters and two grandsons.

A memorial service took place at 5 p.m., Thursday, March 8, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, the Rev. Gayle Gennett officiating. Friends may call at the funeral home from 4 p.m. until the time of the service. A celebration of life service is planned for the summer of 2012.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to: American Cancer Society, or to a charity of choice.

Those wishing to share a memory of Geri, or condolences, may do so at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Ruth Boyd, 84

Ruth G. Boyd, 84, of Gladstone, formerly of Charlevoix, passed away Sunday, Feb. 26, 2012, at St. Francis Hospital in Escanaba. She was born May 30, 1927, in Highland Park, the daughter of Harold and Bertha (Anderson) Brostrom. On Aug. 14, 1948, she married Francis A. Boyd in Highland Park.

They made their home in Southfield before moving to their farm in Charlevoix in 1968. In the early 1990's they moved to the Ellsworth area for about seven years, then on to Trenary in Michigan's upper peninsula, spending the last few years in Gladstone.

Ruth was a member of the Bible Baptist Church in Charlevoix, and she volunteered at the Good Samaritan in Ellsworth.

She is survived by her husband, Francis A. of Gladstone; sons, Gary F. Boyd, Dennis A. Boyd; daughter, Susan A. (David) Brown of Austin, Texas; grandsons, Gary S. and Craig S. Boyd, Jared and Justin Brown.

Friends may meet Ruth's family for a visitation from 6-8 p.m., Friday, March 9, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. A graveside service will take place in the spring at the Barnard Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Bible Baptist Church, 5855 M-66 N., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

COUNCIL

water and street departments.

"I'm not for it. I don't understand why we are doing this. I don't think there is going to be good harmony," Pica said. "If it's not broke, don't fix it."

Straebel countered saying it's not fair to the employees or Elliott to assume that there won't be "harmony" among the employees and addressed the workload issue saying, "I wouldn't recommend him for (the job) if I didn't think he could do it."

Council members Shane Cole and Dennis Kusina still had concerns about the licensing issues.

After speaking extensively against the proposal, Picha said, "As far as I'm concerned, there is something underlying this. I haven't found it yet, but I will."

The change to the city's organizational chart and the public works superintendent job description were ultimately approved by two 4-3 votes with council members Lyle Gennett, Brian Vollmer and Greg Stevens voting in favor. Picha, Cole and Kusina voted against it and Carlson broke the tie voting in favor.

As part of the discussion, Elliott agreed to take half of his pay raise when the new position take effect in September and the other half when he receives his water system certification.

Bump outs

Another staff proposal that received mixed reviews among the council was to consider constructing curb extensions or "bump outs" at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets when the city does a street and infrastructure replacement project on Clinton Street later this year.

Straebel told the council that, since the city was planning to do work in the intersection this year, it seemed like a logical time to look at what steps could be taken to help improve pedestrian safety and traffic flow — two perennial complaints at that location.

In preliminary drawings for the design, Jim Malewicz of performance engineering shows curb extensions of about 6 feet on each of the intersection's four corners.

Asked how the proposal would make traffic flow any better through the intersection (especially for left turns off Clinton on to Bridge) Straebel said, in the past state officials have been unwilling to make any changes to the timing of the traffic light and/or crosswalk controls. However, if the curb extensions were installed, the city could ask the state to conduct a study of pedestrian crossing times at the intersection, which could prompt them to modify the light timing.

The estimated additional cost to create the curb extensions is $30,000-$35,000. City officials recently met with Michigan Department of Transportation officials who gave their tentative blessing to the plan.

Council member Lyle Gennett was adamantly opposed to the proposal, noting concerns about traffic flow, especially for emergency vehicles.

"It looks good on paper, but I don't like the idea of spending this kind of money and then find out later it doesn't work," Gennett said.

Other council members had concerns about the added costs.

Ultimately the council directed staff to move forward with the design of the curb extensions with the understanding that they could be removed from plans if it proved too costly, or that the addition might have an impact on how much planned infrastructure work the city might be able to accomplish this year.

In other business, the council set a public hearing for a tax abatement request from DCL, Inc.

The company, located in the city's industrial park, is proposing to expand its Ance Road facilities to the tune of about $2.8 million over the next two years, city treasurer Rick Brandi said.

Brandi said the city could award an abatement of up to half of the additional taxable value for up to 12 years. On its application the DCL said the improvements are expected to create 6-10 jobs over the next two to three years.

The public hearing is set for 7 p.m. on March 19, the council's next regular meeting.

team.

"Some were outrageous — from full tool and shop sheds to lights and banners," advisor Tom Schultz said.

Teams gave out free paraphernalia like buttons, stickers, and magnets with team names to other teams.

"F.I.R.S.T. (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) was a great experience and a great way to tie up senior year. Our team worked hard and overcame a lot of struggles. We achieved more than I thought possible in six weeks," senior Becky Evans said.

The second day of competition the team ran into some problems. The robot had programming issues, and it took a while to get it back on track. The team ended up not being able to make two matches that day, and it dropped their ranking fast. Even though the robot was not working, the last 30 seconds of each match a member of the team can throw balls trying to make baskets and score points.

Despite the problems, the RayderNators won the Rookie All Star Award. This is the highest award given to a rookie team. They also received the Industrial Safety Award, which marked the first time in the competition's 21 year history that a rookie team received the award.

"We were always given many trophies from other teams. Sometimes other teams will make trophies to give to other teams. Three teams gave us best rookie team awards," Schultz said.

Members of the team said they couldn't be happier that this program has been offered at Charlevoix High School. The Charlevoix Robotics team has 12 members including, far fewer than the 60 members many teams at the competition had. Charlevoix's team members include John Boss, Ian Cavander, Aaron Duckworth, Becky Evans, Delaney Hodge, Corey McClanathan, Tag McCreadie, Mac McPherson, Anna Moon, Brody Roharge, Parker Skeel, Cora Taylor, Chris Young. The team is coached by teacher Tom Schultz and team mentors are Ted Duckworth, Jamie Evans, Dr. William Shapton, John Young, and Jack Hodge.

"Robotics is a great experience. I have learned so much about a career that I have wanted to go into for a long time. It teaches you a lot about how to work on a team and is also a lot of fun," sophomore driver Mac McPherson said.

Cora Taylor added that the competition couldn't have gone any better.

The Robotics team will be competing in their second competition this weekend at Traverse City Central High.

SEA-GULL

the purchase is confirmed. She emphasized that the current effort is simply to approve and submit the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant application — a necessary step toward securing the purchase.

According to Tom Bailey of the Little Traverse Conservancy, the township's grant application must be submitted by April 1, and a decision is not expected until mid-December.

At Wednesday's meeting officials presented revised park site plans, acknowledging concerns over the proposed boat launch location, swim area, access road and the demolition of existing buildings. Residents voiced additional concerns that the proposed parking area violated setback ordinances, and its proximity to the lake would be both an eyesore and a contamination risk.

The Committee to Protect Hayes Township, represented by coordinator Mark Dorn, was granted 20 minutes to speak during the hearing. Dorn itemized the group's concerns, which are outlined in detail on its Web site, www.protecthayes.org.

"The process here is broken," said Dorn, a 14 year part-time resident. "The people at the front of the desk here can determine all of the answers." He went on to say that the committee's interests go beyond the Camp Sea-Gull purchase, and that the park topic is just one that will expose other problems in Hayes Township. He also said the township's survey lacked statistical integrity, and that the Protect Hayes group had conducted its own survey with different results.

To be eligible for grant funding, the township must foot the bill for 25 percent of the land purchase price. According to township clerk Marlene Golovich, the township already has $500,000 to allocate, and will raise the remaining $625,000 it needs through active fundraising efforts. Dorn contended that using the $500,000 toward the land purchase is a misallocation of taxpayer money.

"The trustees have not spent all the money we've paid in as residents," he stated. "That's where this $500,000 is coming from. This is not being communicated, and we're being cheated."

Dorn said the Committee to Protect Hayes Township believes that, before spending money on park development, the township should conduct a liability assessment on its 61 miles of roads, which he feels are "ignored and underfunded." He also cited concerns over the amount of vehicle traffic that would be generated by the park, particularly during boating season.

"This site is not the site you would pick if you wanted a cost-effective park," he concluded.

Racchel Wright of Charlevoix, representing Water and Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH), distributed a handout summarizing numerous studies that indicated parks have a favorable effect on property values and township financials.

"If you put in a park, you'll actually make money," she said during the public comment period. "This is a wise investment for the township." Her summary and detailed list of references can be obtained by emailing watchcharlevoix@gmail.com.

Jennifer Zardus, of the Committee to Protect Hayes Township, voiced her opinion that the park should be open exclusively to Hayes Township residents and not to the general public, if it is to be developed at all. Supervisor Knepp disagreed.

"Lake Charlevoix belongs to everyone," she countered.

Following the public comment period, the township board of trustees held a brief discussion before moving to authorize the grant application. Trustee Jim Rudolph stated his belief that lakefront property and access to water will disappear quickly in the years to come.

"I'm firmly convinced that the population of Michigan is going to skyrocket," said Rudolph, who voted in favor of the application. "Michigan is the 'Saudi Arabia' of water."

Rudolph also expressed his fear that the property will be sold before the township can move to purchase it.

"It's such a beautiful piece of property," he said. "I think it'll be gone before we get the money. It's the fourth one we've tried to buy."

Township trustee Doug Kuebler was the board member who cast the dissenting vote. Kuebler said he voted against proceeding with the application was because he believes the ongoing costs to maintain the proposed park would be too high, in the long term.

The Camp Sea-Gull property is located off Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix. It has served as an all-girls' summer camp, under private ownership, for more than half a century.

On the grant application, township officials are seeking $3.37 million for the purchase of the property. That's based on an appraisal the township had done on the property that placed its value at $4.45 million. On the draft application, the township proposes to make up the difference, or $1.125 million through $500,000 in township funds and $625,000 in fundraising. In the proposed grant application, township officials estimate the cost of operation of the park at about $18,500 annually. In the document, the township proposes the park to be used for swimming, fishing, picnicking, kayaking, boat launching, and to provide trailhead, bathrooms and parking for the proposed Charlevoix-Boyne City non-motorized trail.

The Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund was established by state law in 1976. The money in the fund is from the sale of mineral rights on state property and the money may be used only to buy or develop land for recreation or protection.

Rayders fall in finals

Steve Foley
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

EAST JORDAN — Fresh off a pair of emotional hard-fought wins that got them to the district final, the Charlevoix Rayders were looking for a little hit more on Friday, March 2.

Unfortunately for the Rayders, a hungry Elk Rapids team was looking for the same thing.

A fresher Elks team overcame a first-quarter deficit and limited Charlevoix to just two second-quarter points in topping the Rayders, 56-45, in a Class C district final at East Jordan High School.

With the win, the Elks, who also claimed their first district title since 1999, improved to 13-9 and moved on to face Kalkaska, 20-3, in a Class C regional semifinal on Tuesday, at Inland Lakes High School. In that game, the Elks fell to Kalkaska, 52-35.

Charlevoix, which reached the District finale with a 58-56 win over East Jordan on Monday, Feb. 27 and then downed Harbor Springs, 68-48, on Wednesday, Feb. 29, closes a 9-14 season.

Ultimately, Elk Rapids' constant pressure on the ball was too much for the Rayders to overcome. The teams split their regular-season meetings.

Alex Dart and Taylor Blackmore had 14 points apiece to pace the Elks, while Megan Gregorski added 11. Elk Rapids held off a late Charlevoix surge that drew the Rayders within five points midway through the fourth quarter.

"It just feels great," Elk Rapids coach Dan Marquardt said. "Charlevoix was just rolling coming in and we scouted them this week. They looked sharp, they looked fast, they were aggressive and they trapped. It just feels great because I know we beat a heck of a team. (Charlevoix coach) Leslie (Hoffman) and her girls have always had tough competitive teams."

Charlevoix led 17-13 at the end of the first quarter, but were limited to just two second-quarter points — a pair of Kelsey Way free throws — as the Elks seized a 28-19 halftime lead.

"In the second quarter we forced a lot and they put a lot more ball pressure on us than what we were used to," Charlevoix coach Leslie Hoffman said. "They forced us to turn the ball over and we were tripping over the ball, kicking the ball, and just had little things we did that they took advantage of in transition.

"It was hard for us to recover from that. We just didn't press like we had been and we had two really great games earlier this week, two emotional wins against two teams I think nobody thought we'd beat, and I just thought we looked a little tired. I know (the Elks) weren't out there sweating like we were on Monday and Wednesday."

The Elk lead grew to 13 points midway through the third quarter, 37-24, before Charlevoix cut the lead to eight, 41-33, to end the third quarter on back-to-back baskets from

BOYS VARSITY BASKETBALL

Ramblers end Rayders' season in district semifinals

Steve Foley
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — They've already had some memorable contests in the district tournament.

Add another chapter to the Charlevoix-Boyne City story after the two met Wednesday in a Class C boys basketball district semifinal.

Looking to knock off the host Rayders for a third consecutive year in the tournament, Boyne City did just that as the Ramblers weathered a late Charlevoix rally in pulling out a pressure-packed and emotional 71-60 victory in front of a huge gathering at the Charlevoix High School gym.

With the win, Boyne City, 16-6, advances to the district title game at 7 p.m. Friday, March 9, against Elk Rapids, 15-6.

The Elks advanced with a 60-44 win over defending district champion Harbor Springs in Wednesday's opening semifinal.

Boyne City, which split a pair of regular-season meetings with Charlevoix, the second of which was a 69-68 overtime loss in Charlevoix on Feb. 3, have now defeated Charlevoix in tournament play in each of the past three seasons.

Rambler senior point guard Keegan LaBlance — who transferred to Boyne City from Charlevoix last year — scored a game-high 23 points in leading Boyne past his former team.

The Ramblers shot an eye-popping 19-of-21 from the free throw line, including an 11-for-12 clip in the fourth quarter.

Freshman Corey Redman made all of his eight free throw attempts in finishing with 19 points to go along with six rebounds, while sophomore forward Ryan Carson had eight fourth-quarter points and finished with 15 points and five rebounds.

"It's just a huge win for us and for our program," Boyne City coach Nick Redman said. "I thought it got interesting a little in the third quarter once (Charlevoix) started to make some shots and they got on a little run."

Bradley Fouchia beat the halftime buzzer with a 3-pointer, giving the Ramblers a 45-33 lead at the break and a shot of momentum heading into the second half.

But Charlevoix chopped its deficit to four, 52-48, by the end of the third quarter.

Senior guard Andrew Potter had six of his 14 points in the third, while senior Andrew Plude added five of his team-high 17 points in the third quarter as the Rayders picked up the defensive intensity.

"We got some good shots off, but they just didn't fall," Redman said. "We just stopped doing what we were doing and we had mismatches on the inside. We then started to show some patience and we took advantage of those mismatches and started hitting quality shots.

"I thought that was the difference in the end. That and we shot 11-of-12 from the free throw line in the fourth."

With just over four minutes to play, Charlevoix cut its deficit to three, 56-53, following a Plude lay-up off a Rambler turnover.

"During the second half, I think we expected to come out stronger and harder and we were pretty pumped up about our lead and I think we thought we were just going to annihilate them," LaBlance said. "But they (Charlevoix) are a really good team, they're the best shooting team in the conference. Them making a comeback wasn't surprising at all, but we held it."

Boyne responded inside though as Carson hit back-to-back inside shots to make it 60-53 with 3 minutes, 10 seconds remaining. Carson and Corey Redman were a combined 4-for-4 from the line to put the Ramblers up eight, 64-56, with a minute to play.

The Rayders managed to get to within to six, 66-60, when Plude scored on a drive with 38 seconds left.

But Charlevoix couldn't get any closer. Jay Redman hit two free throws and Corey Redman went 4-for-4 from the line in the final 30 seconds to ice it.

"We did some really good things and we had some good interior passing from the post," Nick Redman said. "Jay (Redman) couldn't throw the ball in the ocean, but he was able to find Corey (Redman) and Ryan (Carson). On the other end, I thought we did a good job on Potter and Plude. Those two guys are quality kids right there."

Also for the Rayders, who close a 12-9 season, Tanner Cait added 11 points and Charlie Hamilton finished with seven. The Rayders shot 16-of-24 from the free throw line.

"I thought we played OK to start, but we really struggled defensively in the first quarter and Keegan did a good job of getting into the paint and finishing," Charlevoix coach Adam Wood said. "(LaBlance) hit some threes and that made it tough. If he can get in the lane, he can really make the rest of their guys go.

"We worked in practice on trying to stop that. But game situations are a little bit different. We hadn't played a game in over a week and I'm not sure if that had an effect in the senior point guard Jenna Way.

Jenna Way, who finished with a game-high 25 points and nine rebounds, then scored six points to start the fourth quarter as the Rayders drew within five, 45-40, with just over five minutes to go.

"We knew we'd have to defend Jenna Way and Sydney Carlson," Marquardt said. "Especially Carlson, who had been shooting really well. They hit some open shots and we missed some rebounds in the fourth quarter which didn't do anything to help our cause.

"We just called timeout, we ran though our motion, we played catch with the ball and we were disciplined. We took care of the ball, which was nice."

With just under three minutes to go, the Elks took a 49-42 advantage as junior Michelle Costa converted a layup off a steal and then Gregorski added a free throw as the Elk lead was 50-42 with just over a minute to go.

In the closing minute, Elk Rapids made good on 6-of-7 free throws as Dart, Gregorski and Costa all hit a pair from the stripe to seal it. The Elks finished 14-of-20 from the line, while Charlevoix was just 7-of-10 from the stripe.

"I thought it was just hard for us to recover from that second quarter," Hoffman said. "We had some errors here and there, we were able to cut it to five, but we just couldn't come completely out of it."

Also for the Rayders, who at one point were 3-10 this season and lost eight straight games, Kelsey Way finished with 11 points and four rebounds, while Carlson added seven points.

Elk Rapids forced the Rayders into 20 turnovers.

"It wasn't a lack of preparation at all," Hoffman said. "They played tough man defense on us and we just couldn't contain that top ball pressure."

The Rayders will lose four seniors to graduation in Jenna Way, Kelsey Way, Megan Peters and Kelly Greyerbiehl.

"Jenna Way gave it her all this season at the point guard spot and she just goes out there and is a work horse," Hoffman said. "Kelsey Way was very steady for us all season at the post position and we're just grateful for the leadership from our seniors.

"We went through the injury bug for awhile. We wavered all season, but we battled through it and lost some tough games that we should've won. For us, it was just a matter of battling on. We started our season basically a month behind everyone else because of the volleyball season and we had four practices the first two weeks of the season and then had three games that first week."

Hoffman said more than anything, she was proud of her team's effort throughout the season and against three quality opponents in the district.

"I'm hoping it's more than just basketball for them, it's the life lessons that they can take away," she said. "We had a lot of life lessons, a lot of ups and downs this season. We got over the hump and we kept going. We'll miss our four seniors for sure, but hopefully they're taking away something and they'll move on and move forward."

Finding their way

Northwest Academy Navigators, band enjoy successful trip to the U.P.

The Northwest Academy advanced band and Navigator basketball team traveled to Paradise and Grand Marais recently to play a concert and a basketball game at each school.

The overnight trip took place on Monday Feb. 27 and Tuesday Feb. 28.

The concerts featured music from the Lord of the Rings and Lion King as well as traditional works for symphonic band.

The Navigator basketball team played their first games of the season, defeating Paradise by a score of 60-44.

Taylor Jepsen led the scoring with 24 points, followed by Blaise Sommerfield with 18 and Parker Rellinger with 16. Jepsen had 15 rebounds with Evan Kroon and Sommerfield adding 14 rebounds each.

Following the game the Northwest contingent ate dinner provided by Paradise school and then spent the evening shooting hoops and playing games and finding accommodations on the gym floor and stage.

The following morning, the group left Paradise after a warm breakfast served by the high school staff. The basketball team visited Tahquamenon Falls while the band traveled to Newberry to meet and perform for the Newberry High School band. The group then traveled to Grand Marais where they ate lunch with that school's student body and then performed a concert and played a closely-fought game that Grand Marais eventually won by a score of 52-53.

The game ended with a 3-point attempt by Parker Rellinger that just missed its mark.

Leading scorers in that game were Taylor Jepsen with 18 points, Blaise Sommerfield with 14, and Evan Kroon with 10. All three also collected many rebounds.

The group arrived back in Charlevoix on Tuesday evening.

School officials said the band concerts were well received at both small schools, neither of which have music programs. The students from each school were very appreciative of the music and complimented the band at the end of the concert, school officials added.

game or not, but all of a sudden you see game speed and it's different."

The Rayders, who's last district title came in 2009, will graduate six seniors in Potter, Plude, Will Jeakle, Matt Batdorff, Coby Herriman and Josh Hogan.

"It's one of the greatest groups we've ever had here and it has nothing to do with records, wins or losses," Wood said. "We've had a group of seniors that came to play and played hard every single day and they're some of the most high quality kids we've had come through here, high character kids. Emotions were pretty high afterwards."

Wood said he felt his group deserved better, "but that's the nature of the beast when it comes to the tournament."

"We talk about legacy a lot here and I think this team left it's own legacy," he said. "We pushed and pushed against some of the best teams in the league night in, night out."

City officials: Charlevoix weathered storm well

Nearly a week after a massive late-winter storm walloped Northern Michigan, the last of the thousands in the area who lost electric power to the storm were expected to come back online Thursday.

As of the Courier's press time Thursday morning, just a few dozen local residents remain without power.

About 50 Great Lakes Energy members in Charlevoix County were without electricity, nearly six full days after they lost service. The electric cooperative also reported at that time about 120 in Otsego County and 360 in Antrim County remain down, but all members in Cheboygan and Emmet counties were back online.

"We're hopeful we can get everyone back on today," Great Lakes spokesman David Guzniczak, said Thursday.

Meanwhile all Consumers Energy customers in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties were back online Thursday, company spokesman Timothy Pietryga said.

Northern Michigan's power infrastructure buckled under the weight of between one and two feet of wet, heavy snow dumped here between Friday night and Saturday morning. The strong storm knocked out power across the region and since then, utility line and tree-trimming crews by the dozens hit the countryside in virtually constant efforts to repair and rebuild damaged power lines and transfer stations.

Customers of the City of Charlevoix's electric utility seemed to fare a little better, city electric department superintendent Don Swem said.

"We estimate that we lost power to roughly 200 to 300 homes at different times throughout the weekend, with most homes restored to power within 3 hours of our being notified and nobody out for longer than 6 hours as far as we know," Swem said.

At Monday's Charlevoix City Council meeting city manager Rob Straebel praised the efforts of city crews both in restoring electric service and removing the large amounts of snow that piled up on city streets over the weekend.

MARCH IS YOUTH ART MONTH

We need better art education policies for our children.

Why Art is Smart!

"Public schools' priorities are determined by the kinds of tests administered."

"So much of schooling is tied to the factual, to the certain, to the provable, to the algorithmic."

"In the arts, choice is always multiple; the difference is that there is rarely a single certain answer."

"What could be more critical to any society seeking multiple solutions to the myriad problems before it?"

Elliot Eisner

TIME TO GET READY

ARTS: EDUCATION FOR LIFE

By Elliot Eisner (excerpt)

"A schools mission is wider than learning how to make a living, it is a place where students can learn how to make a life.

Those who would send schools back to the basics set their standards much too low.

The logic of language, the structures of mathematics, the conclusions of science give us distinct perspectives, but they do not exhaust what we know, what we can imagine, or what we can feel.

The arts are among the important ways we remake ourselves."

ARTS EDUCATION: IT'S THE LAW

One way to increase the probability that something will not be learned is to ensure it will not be taught.

An artless school is an impoverished place reflecting a set of values that doesn't speak well for a community. THERE IS ONLY ONE CHOICE! Which of the arts can public schools afford to leave out of basic education?
1. Literature (reading & writing)
2. Theatre and Dance (performances)
3. Music & Visual Arts
4. None of the above

Talents are most often learned!

News-Review wins records suit

Judge awards newspaper punitive damages and some attorney fees

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

PETOSKEY — Charlevoix County officials must release a pair of e-mails previously and wrongfully denied to the Petoskey News-Review under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act, a judge's written order.

Johnson

Emmet County Circuit Judge Charles Johnson listened to oral arguments in recent weeks from the county's civil defense attorney Gretchen Olsen, of Petoskey, as well as the newspaper's plaintiff attorney, Robin Luce Herrmann, of Bloomfield Hills. Johnson handed down his ruling on Friday.

"It's unfortunate that the Petoskey News-Review had to file a lawsuit to get answers to questions and access to public documents dating back to May of last year," Luce Herrmann said. "We're very pleased the court recognized the merits of many of our claims."

Olsen could not be reached for comments, despite repeated attempts Monday and Tuesday.

See related story for details about attorneys' fees and punitive damages awarded to the newspaper.

> "In conclusion, the Court finds that Jarema's refusal to produce the nonexempt documents or portions of documents was not the result of an oversight or mistake. He was not acting in a reasonably responsible manner. Instead, he was acting in bad faith, motived by personal animus. His actions in delaying and then denying Plaintiff's FOIA requests in their entirety were arbitrary and capricious."

Jarema

In August last year, the newspaper filed a lawsuit against the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners and the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office. The civil complaint alleged three violations of the state's Freedom of Information Act, following a freedom of information fight that carried on for several months.

The News-Review's suit sought to compel county officials to release e-mails Charlevoix County prosecutor John Jarema previously refused to reveal between himself and Chris Christensen, a county commissioner. The newspaper requested the e-mails to determine whether Jarema and Christensen communicated via e-mail during board meetings.

Christensen

Johnson said that among the six e-mails in question from the newspaper's multiple FOIA requests, the first four will remain private because they are computer-generated real estate advertisements sent from Christensen to Jarema, also the county commission's civil counsel. While they aren't public records, Jarema could have released them, Johnson said.

"While Jarema was not required to produce personal e-mails under FOIA, he could have chosen to do so. This would have proven that he and Christensen were not communicating during the Commissioner's meeting in question. It would have shown candor and openness as to the workings of government, consistent with the spirit of FOIA," Johnson wrote.

The fifth and sixth e-mails are to be produced, even if it be in redacted form, the judge held.

Jarema initially refused to release the fifth e-mail because it had to do with a criminal embezzlement investigation, while he denied public access to the sixth e-mail because Christensen copied it to Jarema, but sent it to county board chairman Joel Evans to address his concerns with a fellow county commissioner — a personnel issue that required legal advice.

Johnson said the fifth e-mail should not have been withheld and the sixth should have been produced in redacted form.

"Jarema's response which denied production of e-mail #5 violated his duty under FOIA to produce this document. Had Jarema provided e-mail #5 instead of stalling and stonewalling in response to the request, Plaintiff would have seen that this e-mail did not occur during the Board meeting on May 11, 2011. This may well have ended the matter, at least with respect to this e-mail," Johnson wrote.

Johnson said the sixth e-mail must be released, including an attached copy of a Petoskey News-Review article, but not the legally protected letter attachment that details Christensen's concerns with

Veryser pleads guilty in embezzlement case

Steve Zucker
CHARLEVOIX COURIER EDITOR

CHARLEVOIX — The former principal of St. Mary School, who was accused of embezzling thousands from the school, took advantage of a plea agreement in the criminal case against her Friday, March 9.

Keisha Veryser, 36, of Hayes Township pleaded guilty Friday to two counts of embezzlement, $1,000-$20,000, a five-year felony. In exchange for her pleas, three more identical charges and two counts of perjury in a non-court proceeding will be dismissed.

Veryser

Another part of the plea agreement with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office is that she agrees to a restitution amount of $75,000, with $37,500 to be paid at the time of sentencing.

Veryser's plea was accepted by Otsego County Circuit Court Judge Dennis Murphy, who was assigned to preside over the criminal case after Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas, a member of St. Mary's Church, recused himself from the case.

The charges stem from Veryser's employment as principal at St. Mary School from Aug. 1, 2006-March 17, 2010.

According to police and court documents, in March of 2010 Diocese of Gaylord officials asked Veryser to resign after they said they had discovered that she had been misappropriating funds for her own use.

Veryser resigned, but in October of that year, she filed a lawsuit against the diocese claiming she had been wrongfully discharged from her position. Veryser claimed that she was being made the scapegoat for shoddy bookkeeping practices that existed long before she took the principal's job. The diocese not only denied Veryser's claims in its answer, but also countersued her for repayment of the money.

Around the same time, the Michigan

Judge dismisses former city worker's lawsuit

Russell Rotta claimed he was fired because he filed safety complaints

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

A judge has thrown out lawsuit filed last year by a former City of Charlevoix electric department employee who claimed he was fired because he filed a complaint with state safety officials.

Earlier this month Charlevoix Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas granted a defense motion for summary disposition in Russell M. Rotta's case against the city and electrical department head Don Swem.

In the suit, filed in April of 2011, Rotta claimed he was wrongfully terminated under the state's Whistleblower Protection Act.

Rotta, who had been employed by the city since 2008 as a journeyman electrical lineman, claimed in the suit that around July of 2010 he called the Michigan Occupation Safety and Health Administration to report workplace safety violations by the city and/or Swem.

Specifically, according to the suit, Rotta "reported that defendants were violating safety laws, rules and/or regulations by requiring employees to work on 3-phase, 7,200 volt circuits without qualified assistance on the ground, by requiring employees to work alone on 3-phase, 7,200 volt circuits; and by allowing improperly, inadequately trained employees to perform electrical work."

Rotta claimed he was fired on Jan. 17, 2011, in retaliation for his complaint to state officials.

At the time the suit was filed, city manager Rob Straebel said that state officials investigated Rotta's complaints and did not find any safety violations. At that time Straebel said Rotta was terminated for "work-related performance issues that were not associated in any way with safety violation (complaints)."

Entries in Rotta's personnel file, obtained by the Courier through a Freedom of Information Act request last year, included multiple write-ups from Swem against Rotta for failure to show up for work, improper use of sick leave, workmanship issues, safety violations and not being available during on-call times. He was suspended at least twice prior to his dismissal.

Some of the write-ups were after Rotta filed the complaint with the Michigan Occupational and Safety Administration, but many were also before.

In the suit Rotta was seeking an amount in excess of $25,000 in compensatory damages, an amount in excess of $25,000 in exemplary (punitive) damages, a court order restoring him to his position with the city, and back pay and compensation for lost benefits from the date of his termination.

City seeks board and commission members this year

The city of Charlevoix is in need of people to serve on several of its boards and commissions.

The following is a list of seats that either are currently vacant or which have terms that will soon be expiring:

— Zoning board of appeals, one regular member and one alternate member. The seats are currently vacant.

— In April, two terms which are currently held by Fred DiMartino and Jeannine Wallace, on the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Board will expire. A majority of the board must be made up of people with an ownership in property in the district, but do not have to be city residents.

— Terms for three seats on the planning commission will expire in April. Those seats are currently held by Dan Buday, Becky Doan and Judy Clock.

One vacant seat exists on the housing commission. The person who previously held the seat was a resident at Pine River Place and state law requires one person on the commission to be a tenant at public or subsidized housing.

— The historic district commission has five vacancies and two seats for which the term will expire in June. A majority of the commission members must have an interest in, or knowledge of historic preservation. At least one member must be an architect.

— The city's recreation advisory committee has two vacancies, one regular seat and one student representative.

Board reacts to FOIA suit outcome

Opinions split among county leaders

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County commissioners expressed mixed opinions this week about the recent outcome from an open records lawsuit.

Half the commissioners expressed concerns Wednesday about how prosecutor John Jarema handled the matter, two stood by him and the last refused to weigh in.

"I'm glad that it's come to an end and the community is no longer on pins and needles waiting for the result," said Shirlene Tripp, commissioner from Hayes Township.

Emmet County Circuit Judge Charles Johnson last week ruled on a Michigan Freedom of Information Act lawsuit filed by the Petoskey News-Review against the county, an effort to compel officials to release six emails between Jarema and a county commissioner they previously refused to reveal. Johnson ordered four of the six emails at issue to continue to be withheld as private, real estate advertisements not part of the public record, but ordered officials to release one e-mail and a redacted version of another.

The judge also issued a scalding opinion about prosecutor John Jarema's actions in the matter, calling his behavior "arbitrary and capricious" and to the detriment of his public office and the county government. Johnson also scolded the newspaper's attorney for frivolously naming Jarema and county commissioner Chris Christensen in the suit.

It's Jarema's actions Johnson seemed to take the most issue with in his 16-page opinion issued last week.

"I go along with what the judge said. He said it would have been so easy to just give the information out, rather than dragging this out," said Bob Drebenstedt, county commissioner from Marion Township. "Why would we want to take on the news media or any citizen on this?"

Tripp said it is "embarrassing" how county officials handled the initial FOIA requests, leading to the newspaper filing suit.

Johnson's written decision also caused Rich Gillespie, county commissioner from Beaver Island, to take another look at the situation.

"I have numerous questions. We need to get our house in order. What appeared to be 'much ado about nothing,' as I was told, might not be. I take people at their word, when I am deceived, I react," Gillespie said.

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt, of Wilson Township, said he will continue to decline to comment on the lawsuit, as he's always done.

Others, though, stand by Jarema's handling of the matter.

Christensen, county commissioner from Boyne City, issued a written statement Tuesday morning that in part said that Jarema is "passionate in prosecuting cases and is extremely careful and mindful that both sides are entitled to a fair and impartial jury which is not influenced by the media."

On Wednesday, Christensen said it's now time to move on.

"I'm hoping to get this behind us and get on with other business. We have so many more important things to do," he said.

Joel Evans, county commissioner from South Arm Township and board chairman, said he also is glad the legal battle is finished.

"I'm an advocate of common sense that shows me, from my perspective, this was a big waste of time and money on the part of the county and on the part of the News-Review. I hope we've learned a lesson in common sense," he said. "The judge has made his decision. I respect his decision and I'm glad it's over."

Evans said since Johnson's order went public he received multiple phone calls from citizens asking that Jarema be removed as the board's civil counsel, though it will take an ousting by voters to take away his prosecutor job. Evans said he won't take away the civil counsel job and its accompanying $10,000 annual paycheck.

"I will continue to use John as civil counsel," Evans said.

Drebenstedt questioned Jarema during Wednesday's board meeting about the county's bottom line on this FOIA suit. Johnson said in his order that Jarema's "improper conduct" cost the county the case and is why he ordered a $500 punitive damage award, which Jarema offered to pay himself.

"I would like to know just about how much we're spending on this court case," he said.

Jarema said the county's civil defense attorney, Gretchen Olsen, of Petoskey, is expected to attend a board meeting soon to discuss the complete outcome in closed session.

"(Johnson) ordered sanctions against them. There's sanctions against me personally for 500 bucks. They have to pay our attorneys' fees, so we have to — that's what the attorneys are trying to figure

Judge dismisses former city worker's lawsuit

"I'm an advocate of common sense that shows me, from my perspective, this was a big waste of time and money on the part of the county and on the part of the News-Review. I hope we've learned a lesson in common sense," he said. "The judge has made his decision, I respect his decision and I'm glad it's over."

Evans said since Johnson's order went public he received multiple phone calls from citizens asking that Jarema be removed as the board's civil counsel, though it will take an ousting by voters to take away his prosecutor job. Evans said he won't take away the civil counsel job and its accompanying $10,000 annual paycheck.

"I will continue to use John as civil counsel," Evans said.

Drebenstedt questioned Jarema during Wednesday's board meeting about the county's bottom line on this FOIA suit. Johnson said in his order that Jarema's "improper conduct" cost the county the case and is why he ordered a $500 punitive damage award, which Jarema offered to pay himself.

"I would like to know just about how much we're spending on this court case," he said.

Jarema said the county's civil defense attorney, Gretchen Olsen, of Petoskey, is expected to attend a board meeting soon to discuss the complete outcome in closed session.

"(Johnson) ordered sanctions against them. There's sanctions against me personally for 500 bucks. They have to pay our attorneys' fees, so we have to — that's what the attorneys are trying to figure

City seeks board and commission members this year

The city of Charlevoix is in need of people to serve on several of its boards and commissions.

The following is a list of seats that either are currently vacant or which have terms that will soon be expiring.

Zoning board of appeals, one regular member and one alternate member. The seats are currently vacant.

In April, two terms which are currently held by Fred DiMartino and Jeannine Wallace, on the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Board will expire. A majority of the board must be made up of people with an ownership in property in the district, but do not have to be city residents.

Terms for three seats on the planning commission will expire in April. Those seats are currently held by Dan Buday, Becky Doan and Judy Clock.

One vacant seat exists on the housing commission. The person who previously held the seat was a resident at Pine River Place and state law requires one person on the commission to be a tenant at public or subsidized housing.

The historic district commission has five vacancies and two seats for which the term will expire in June. A majority of the commission members must have an interest in, or knowledge of historic preservation. At least one member must be an architect.

The city's recreation advisory committee has two vacancies, one regular seat and one student representative.

Warming up to thoughts of spring

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Even though winter was not particularly taxing by historical standards, signs of spring are still more than welcome. They may be a little early this year, but more about that later.

I haven't seen an open crocus yet, but the daffodils are poking out of the ground and the primroses along our sidewalk have bunches of tiny green leaves.

The maple sap is pouring out of our syrup tree along the driveway and I am beginning to think I had better get at the income taxes for last year.

The spring equinox is only a few days away, which allows us to think that warmth, sun and even gentle rains may be worth considering. We all know that major snow in April is not impossible.

I have been feeding the East Park ducks each day when it hasn't been too cold. For the past week or two they have been behaving differently. The drakes are much more aggressive, chasing other drakes away from the food and even attacking hens that are not to their liking. Mallard ducks are not monogamous, but they do tend to pair up in the spring and go looking for a quiet place to nest. One recent morning there was only one lonely drake present for the 9:30 a.m. feeding. He is an old friend from last fall, recognizable by the de-formed webbing on his left foot. Maybe he has been rejected by the available females. At least he is being well fed, even if lonely. Don't be surprised to see a pair of our local ducks wandering around in your yard looking for just the right place to put a clutch of eggs.

We should all know that our early spring weather and mild winter are not serious evidence that the world is warming. We can only conclude that our local weather has been unusual. The mountain of evidence that the whole world is gradually warming is overwhelming, but that doesn't mean that every place will be getting warmer at the same pace. We humans will adjust to whatever that warming brings, but it appears to be changing faster than some animals and many plants can adapt to. Animals and birds can migrate to some extent, but the sunlight and warming signals used by them to decide when to breed or lay eggs are likely to be confusing. Plants, of course, can only move geographically at an extremely slow pace, and as the earth warms, many plants may be weakened or disappear altogether.

I hope that Rush Limbaugh, a number of climate-change-denying politicians and I all live long enough for the warming of the Earth to be obvious to even the most irrational. Maybe we humans can warm up to that idea.

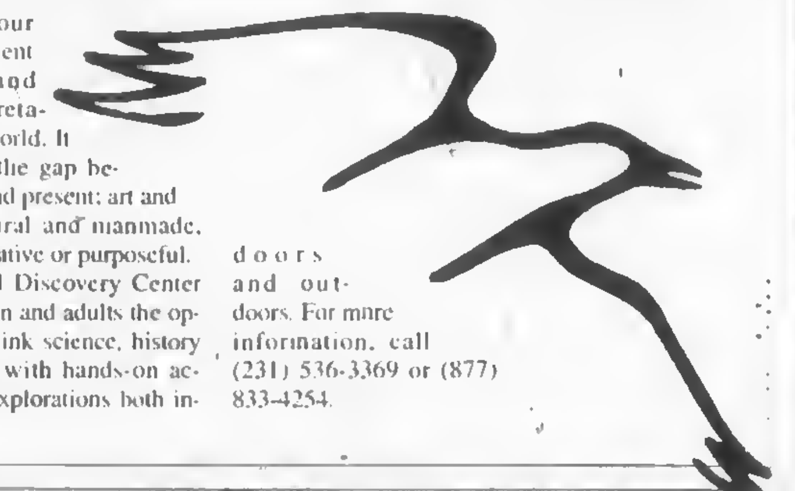
Raven Hill receives grant for Blurred Boundaries exhibit



Raven Hill Discovery Center recently received a grant for its for Blurred Boundaries: Ancient to Modern Megaliths exhibit. The grant was awarded by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs in conjunction with the National Endowment for the Arts.

This is the 12th consecutive grant awarded to Raven Hill by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs and is for $6,000. The award must be matched with another $6,000 in cash or in-kind contributions.

Blurred Boundaries will allow Raven Hill to expand its Ancient World area with five new megaliths. Megaliths are large stone sculptures or groupings of rocks originally placed for sacred celebrations or to honor something or someone.

Two professional artists will create and install their modern interpretations of well-known ancient megaliths. Schools and community members will be invited to submit miniature interpretations of ancient megaliths. All submitted minliths will be on display April 22-May 6 at Raven Hill. A judging committee will choose three miniature megaliths to be "enlarged" and installed in the Ancient World exhibit. All five new exhibits will be unveiled at a grand opening in September.

Blurred Boundaries will connect an awareness of the rocks that form our earth to ancient cultures and their interpretation of the world. It will bridge the gap between past and present; art and history, natural and manmade, simply decorative or purposeful.

Raven Hill Discovery Center offers children and adults the opportunity to link science, history and the arts with hands-on activities and explorations both indoors and outdoors. For more information, call (231) 536-3369 or (877) 833-4254.

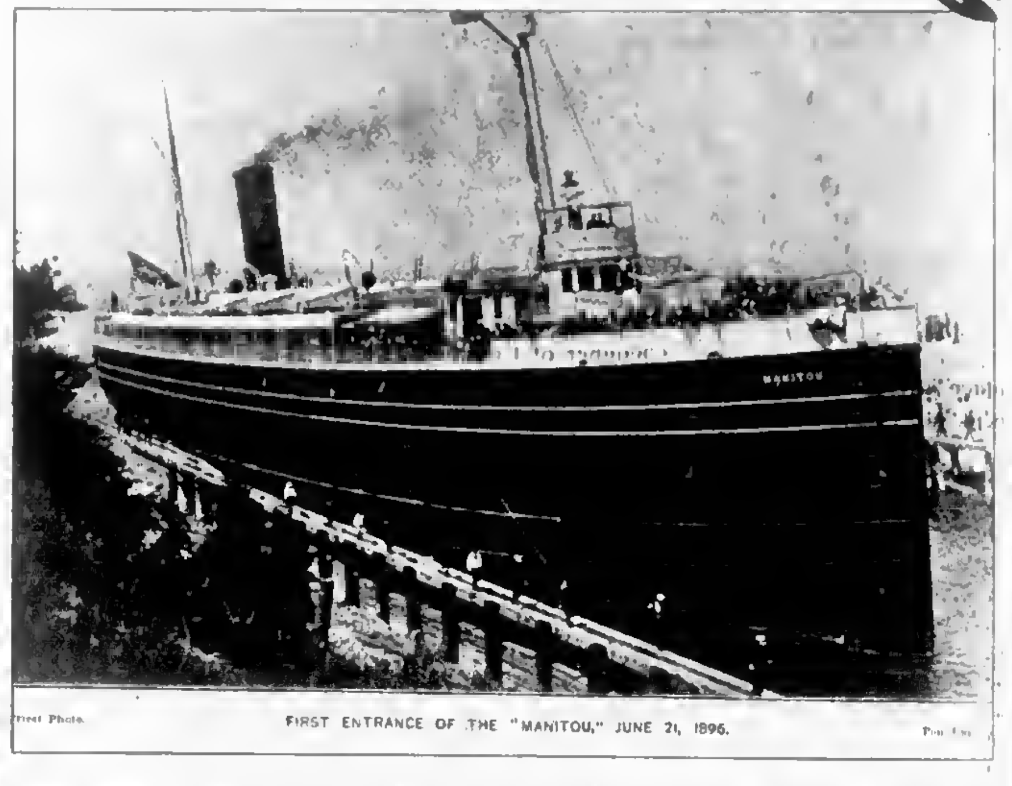
LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO

The Manitou was launched in Chicago in 1893, 274 feet of the finest luxury capable of carrying nearly 400 passengers. At first she stuck to ports in lower Lake Michigan, then in 1896 demand was so great Charlevoix was added to the list. Pictured is the Manitou's maiden entrance into Round Lake on June 21 when practically the entire town turned out to greet her— the largest vessel to enter the harbor to that time. Within a few years it became evident that this was the liner's most lucrative port of call. So, for a while the southern ports were eliminated and Charlevoix became the Manitou's first destination, 20 hours, non-stop from Chicago, calling three times a week on the way north to Mackinac Island, and three times on the way back, a record at the time. She was not called "The Greyhound of the Great Lakes" for nothing. In 1933 the Manitou was renamed the Isle Royale, painted white, and served until she burned during scrapping operations in Manistee in 1936. Converted to a barge the next year, the once mighty vessel was abandoned in 1949.

Become Familiar with These Five Key Areas

As an investor, what are your goals? You can probably think of quite a few — but over the course of your lifetime, your objectives typically will fall into five key categories. And once you're familiar with these areas, you can start thinking of what they'll mean to you in terms of your financial and investment strategies.

So, let's take a look at each of these areas and see what they might entail for you.

Preparing for retirement — With advances in health care and a greater awareness of healthy living practices, many of us can expect to live two or three decades in an active retirement. To pay for all those years, you'll need to save and invest early and often. So, while you're working, take full advantage of your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan, as well as contribute to a traditional or Roth IRA. After understanding your desired retirement lifestyle, your financial advisor can help you determine how, and how much, to save to provide for your income in retirement.

Planning for the unexpected — You can't see into the future, so you'll need to prepare for anything that comes your way. By building an emergency fund containing six to 12 months' worth of living expenses, you can possibly avoid dipping into your long-term investments to pay for things such as a new furnace or a major car repair. And planning for the unexpected also means having sufficient life insurance to provide for your family in case anything happens to you.

Educating your children — College is already expensive — and college expenses have been rising faster than the overall rate of inflation. If you want to help your children, or grandchildren, pay for school, you may want to invest in a college savings vehicle, such as the 529 plan. You can contribute large amounts to a 529 plan, and earnings have the opportunity to grow tax-free, provided withdrawals are used for higher education. (Withdrawals not used for education are subject to income taxes and a 10 percent penalty.)

Living in retirement — Once you reach retirement, your investment emphasis will shift somewhat, from accumulating resources to making them last. By working with a financial advisor, you can develop a withdrawal strategy that can help make sure you don't outlive the income you receive from your 401(k), IRA and other sources. At the same time, given the possible length of your retirement, you can't ignore the need to invest for growth, so you may need to consider some growth-oriented vehicles in your portfolio to help your income keep pace with inflation.

Transferring your wealth — When you've worked hard your whole life, you want to be able to leave a legacy — one that allows you to provide financial resources to the next generation and to those charitable organizations you may wish to support. So, when it's time to think about transferring your wealth, you'll want to consult with your financial and legal advisors to create an estate plan that's appropriate for your needs. And because these plans can take significant time to create, you won't want to wait too long to start.

So, there you have them: five key financial areas on which to focus as you travel through life. By doing your homework, planning ahead and getting the help you need, you can make the journey a pleasant and productive one.

Expo, regional business after hours event on tap

On Friday, March 23, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will host the Annual Regional Business After Hours in conjunction with their second annual Business Expo and Job Fair.

The event will take place from 5-9 p.m. with an Expo Celebration party to take place afterwards from 9-11 p.m. at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

The event will feature dozens of door prizes, catering by Giuseppe's Italian Grille, and nationally recognized musical duo Chris Calleja and Memarie Gayle. Attendees will also get a chance to preview the second annual Business Expo and Job Fair which will take place at the Castle the following day.

"If you are going to attend one event this year to help grow your business, this is that event," said coordinator Bethany Pearson. "We're expecting to have as many as 600 business representatives, government officials, and community minded citizens attending."

Tickets can be purchased at the door or at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce for $10. All attendees must have a ticket to enter.

With the Expo quickly approaching the committee organizing the event still has a handful of booths available in the upstairs vendor area that they would like to fill. The committee has decided to offer these booths for $100 (half-price) to participating Expo vendors only. Booths will be first come, first served.

WinterFolk concerts continue at library

The Charlevoix Public Library recently announced the continuation of the WinterFolk Concert Series, 6:30–8:30 p.m. on the fourth Monday of each month.

The WinterFolk concerts celebrate local folk artists with an evening of music. The featured performer kicks off the evening with a 45-minute concert, which is followed by an open mic session, an opportunity for the public to share talents. Open mic sign-up begins at 6 p.m. the night of the concert, and is limited to five performers.

March 26 will feature Bob Fawcett, who will serve up his gumbo of original songs, lyrically rich, and seasoned with humor, harmonica riffs and finger-style guitar. Ryan Liace will highlight the April 23 concert with his unique style. This final folk concert is funded through a donation from Rick Potter.

The library will utilize the memorial gift of sound equipment, honoring Sandra Marquardt, who loved and appreciated this concert series. This memorial donation, from friends of Sandy and Friends of the Library, will benefit the library for years to come by providing a wonderful atmosphere for the concert series.

For more information about the folk concert series, talk to Dwain at the library, (231) 547-2651.

More gray foxes found with canine distemper

Morgan Sherburne

COURTESY PHOTO/U.S. FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

Gray foxes, such as this fox, are susceptible to canine distemper. Seven counties across Northern Michigan, including Charlevoix County, have reported cases of canine distemper in gray foxes.

The mild winter has not only wreaked havoc with winter sports — it's to blame for increased cases of canine distemper in gray foxes, said Katie Keen, wildlife outreach technician with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The signs of recognizing an animal with distemper can be easy, said Boyne City interim police chief Craig Remsberg.

He should know. One of his officers had to deal with what they suspect was a distempered fox just Sunday.

"The main thing with a distempered animal is that they behave in ways you would never expect an animal to behave," said Remsberg. "This one did actually walk toward the officer. The animals act like they're intoxicated. They walk in a weaving line and look at you in a spooky way."

Because the fox was within Boyne City's city limits — within the subdivision Harborage Heights just off Front Street — police officers were dispatched to deal with the animal.

Seven counties across Northern Michigan, including Charlevoix County, have reported cases of gray foxes infected with the disease, said Keen. The virus causes respiratory and intestinal problems, such as coughing, diarrhea, vomiting, or discharge from the nose and eyes.

The virus also causes wild animals, such as wolves, coyotes and, in this case, gray foxes, to show abnormal behavior, including a lack of fear, aggression, disorientation and lack of alertness.

The fox in Boyne City was the second that is suspected of having canine distemper in Charlevoix County in a little more than two weeks: another was submitted for testing by the Department of Natural Resources on Wednesday, Feb. 29.

But while the cases have increased, Remsberg said they are still rare. However, he encourages people to exercise caution if they see animals acting out of the ordinary.

"That's the danger with a distempered animal is that they do approach people. People might think, hey, it's just a friendly wild animal, and that can be extremely dangerous," said Remsberg.

Increased contact between foxes because of the mild winter probably is to blame.

"Some cases will pick up when the weather is warm," said Keen. "Also, this time of year is the end of their (foxes') mating season, so that would obviously be a point of contact."

Foxes with distemper have been collected between September and February.

"Occasionally, separate families may share a den," said Keen. "We don't usually see a pack of foxes, but this time of year, they're just active."

If you see a wild animal acting strangely, call 9-1-1, said Remsberg. Dispatchers can then determine whether a local police department or the Department of Natural Resources should deal with the animal.

"Safety is foremost in everybody's mind," said Remsberg. "Don't approach wild animals. A healthy wild animal is not going to behave that way. If it's going to spook, it's going to spook in the opposite way, and should run away from you."

REACTIONS

that stuff out," Jarema told commissioners.

In a later telephone interview, Jarema said he expects the plaintiffs or their lawyer — the newspaper or attorney Robin Luce Herrmann, a media law expert from Bloomfield Hills — to at least pay for the county's legal costs to argue for Christensen and himself to be removed as defendants. He also said he isn't sure the county will be on the hook for any of the newspaper's legal bills because both sides prevailed in part.

"I don't know if the county will be ordered to do any of the legal fees," Jarema said.

However, Johnson's order reads differently. In it he writes:

"Based upon the Court's rulings herein, Plaintiff (Petoskey News-Review) has prevailed, but only in part. The Court is therefore required to exercise discretion in determining whether to award all or 'an appropriate portion' of Plaintiff's attorneys' fees and costs. Unless the parties can agree how to resolved this matter, a further hearing to address this issue will be necessary."

Johnson ordered:

- — Emails No. 1-4 to remain withheld as personal real estate advertisements, not part of the public record
- — Email No. 5 to be released in whole, contrary to prior withholding on the basis of a law enforcement exemption
- — Email No. 6 to be redacted and released, contrary to prior complete withholding on the basis of attorney-client privilege and frank communications exemptions
- — Plaintiff (Petoskey News-Review) prevailed, but only in part, so court discretion in determining whether to award all or an appropriate portion of plaintiff attorneys' fees
- — Punitive damage award of $500 granted to plaintiff for bad faith effort to deny public records for personal reasons
- — Award sanctions against plaintiff attorney for frivolously including prosecutor and county commissioner as individual defendants in public office suit

Additional bids sought for substation

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County undersheriff Chuck Vondra will seek additional bids from contractors who may want to build a planned sheriff's outpost in Boyne Falls, a request by the trio of county commissioners who sit on the building and grounds committee.

Commissioners Ron Reinhardt, Bob Drehenstedt and Rich Gillespie, committee chairman, collectively agreed Wednesday to advertise for additional bids for the proposed facility. The committee met in the afternoon, following the full board meeting that morning.

Reinhardt said he believes the proposed new substation is a priority for county residents east of Lake Charlevoix. He represents the county's eastern region.

"They'd be right next door to the township fire hall," Reinhardt said.

Boyne Falls village officials in recent weeks agreed to chip in the land for the facility, the parcel between their village hall and Boyne Valley Township's fire and rescue barn. Early projections called for approximately $200,000 for the new building, but early bids came in at more than that.

The facility is designed to be more than a law enforcement outpost. Space is available for a county clerk's or treasurer's employee to have office hours there, allowing residents on the county's eastern side a nearer public office to conduct business with the county.

Preliminary plans call for a pole-style building with both office and garage space, including a lobby, private interview room, squad room and evidence storage. There would be enough garage space for six vehicles, such as patrol cars, marine patrol boats, all-terrain vehicles and snowmobiles.

The current Boyne Falls substation is a small office near village hall that sheriff Don Schneider previously described as "inadequate" for law enforcement.

So far, plans for the new outpost are for a bare-bones structure, without plumbing and electrical work. But Frank Shaler, county maintenance supervisor, said he is licensed to do those things.

"It's possible we might be able to do some of that plumbing and electrical work ourselves," he said.

One advantage is $50,000 already set aside for this project.

"We did that two years ago," Reinhardt said.

Vondra said the sheriff's office already received a handful of offers from various contractors, but more couldn't hurt. Companies that already submitted numbers will be informed there is a new bid submission deadline of 5 p.m. March 28.

The building and grounds committee will meet again less than two hours after that deadline to open and review the bids. That session will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the commissioners meeting room, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix, just prior to the next full board meeting.

Local residents get helping hand

Mary Peterson, director of the Good Samaritan Food Pantry (right) stocks shelves along with volunteer Bill Zimmerman. Much of the food distributed through the pantry comes from The Manna Project, another recipient of funds from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

EAST JORDAN — When the temperatures plummet each winter, many area residents are caught without the means to pay for heat, electricity, or water. Local community organizations can step in to help meet those needs.

Since 2000, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has awarded more than $225,000 to area organizations to assist with urgent needs. Three years ago, the foundation created the Urgent Needs Fund dedicated specifically to that cause.

"The fund was started by a generous donor concerned with the effect of the economic downturn on our local community members. As heating costs soared and job loss became common, regular living costs became too much for many area residents to bear on their own," explained Maureen Radke, program officer at the community foundation.

Each fall, the foundation receives applications from local organizations working directly with families and individuals in need. The number of area agencies supported goes up every year, and since 2009, more than $27,500 has been distributed from the fund.

Good Samaritan Family Services is one of the recipients of the foundation grant money, and the organization has helped 43 families so far this year with emergency need, which includes 100 children and several seniors.

"Families come in with shut-off notices, and all of a sudden they have big bills due," said Mary Peterson, director of the Good Samaritan Food Pantry. "We work with other agencies to help them come up with all of the funds to cover the cost."

Peterson said the stories she hears are often heartbreaking.

"One elderly woman told me she had no way to pay for heating, so she closed off her whole house, moved her mattress in the kitchen, and turned on the oven to try to stay warm."

Even though this winter has been milder than winters past, Peterson says she is still seeing many people who are unable to keep up with the rising costs of heat and food.

Bart Adams, treasurer of the East Jordan Ministerial Association, agrees.

"I've seen incredible growth and change in needs over the past years," said Adams. "In 2003 I had less than 25 people come to see me requesting assistance. In 2011, I had more than 230."

One single mother of three visited the ministerial association office after she ran out of propane and did not have the money to refill her tank. Using funds from the community foundation, the association was able to help her and more than 25 other families pay their heating costs.

"Normally, I would only have a few hundred dollars to distribute each month for heating costs," said Adams. "Thanks to the community foundation, we have a large sum of money that can help a lot more families pay their heating bills."

The Urgent Needs Fund not only helps with heating costs, but also supports food distribution. Other organizations receiving funding from the community foundation this year are the East Jordan Care and Share Food Pantry, Charlevoix Community Food Pantry, Beaver Island Christian Church and Food Pantry, Boyne City Seventh-day Adventist Community Service Center, and the Manna Food Project.

"This is what people hear about in the news every day and this is what they want to help with," said Radke. "This is a popular way that donors like to give because they know they are having an immediate impact in their neighbors' lives."

Applications for Urgent Needs grants are taken during the regular grant cycles with the deadlines of March 1 and October 1. There are certain instances where out-of-cycle grant requests are accepted. In all cases, call the foundation for more details.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds — all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come. For more information, contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at (231) 536-2440, or online at www.c3f.org.

GUILTY PLEA

State Police began a criminal investigation into the matter. The state police handled the investigation at the request of Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan who is also member at St. Mary.

After an 18-month investigation, the criminal charges against Veryser were issued on Oct. 31, 2011. Veryser turned herself in the following day and she has been free on a personal recognizance bond since.

In all, in court documents, police say Veryser embezzled more than $100,000 from the school.

In court Friday, when Judge Murphy asked her why she believes she is guilty of the charges, Veryser replied, "I used school funds for my own use. I knew it was wrong and I'm sorry."

In August, Cheboygan County Circuit Court Judge Scott Pavlich, who is handling the civil cases, granted a motion to dismiss the charges in Veryser's civil suit against the diocese.

In court Friday, Veryser's attorneys said an agreement has been reached in the diocese's remaining counter-suit against Veryser which would settle the matter. Under the terms of that agreement, the attorneys said, Veryser's up-front restitution payment of $37,500 at the time of sentencing would serve as payment in-full for purposes of the lawsuit.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema said he wanted the restitution amount on the record to be $75,000, but agreed that he would not seek criminal sanctions against Veryser if the additional $37,500 were not paid.

"That's up to the discretion of the diocese," Jarema told the judge.

The attorneys also noted that Veryser's plea was a "Killebrew plea." Under such a plea, the two sides have agreed in advance that the state sentencing guidelines in the case place the minimum sentencing guideline range at 0-17 months. That means that Veryser would not face state prison time unless the judge exceeded the guidelines at the time of sentencing. Jarema has previously said that such an upward sentencing departure is unlikely under the circumstances.

Usually a judge's ultimate sentence is not a part of plea agreements, but because this plea was a "Killebrew plea," Veryser would have the option of withdrawing the plea if the sentence came back higher than the agreed-upon range.

Before leaving the bench Friday, Judge Murphy said, "I don't expect any problems there," referring to the sentence.

A specific sentencing date was not set Friday, but it will likely take place in about a month.

Diocese of Gaylord officials released the following statement following Veryser's plea Friday:

"Mrs. Veryser's guilty plea and admission to embezzlement charges Friday is another step toward healing in what has been a very arduous and heart-wrenching two years and we look forward to the day when we can close the door on this sad chapter in history. We are grateful to the civil authorities who have worked very hard to bring the truth to light and continue to ask for prayers for St. Mary Parish and School, the Charlevoix community and for all those involved."

More gray foxes found with canine distemper

Morgan Sherburne
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

The mild winter has not only wreaked havoc with winter sports — it's to blame for increased cases of canine distemper in gray foxes, said Katie Keen, wildlife outreach technician with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The signs of recognizing an animal with distemper can be easy, said Boyne City interim police chief Craig Remsberg.

He should know. One of his officers had to deal with what they suspect was a distempered fox just Sunday.

"The main thing with a distempered animal is that they behave in ways you would never expect an animal to behave," said Remsberg. "This one did actually walk toward the officer. The animals act like they're intoxicated. They walk in a weaving line and look at you in a spooky way."

Because the fox was within Boyne City's city limits within the subdivision Harborage Heights just off Front Street — police officers were dispatched to deal with the animal.

Seven counties across Northern Michigan, including Charlevoix County, have reported cases of gray foxes infected with the disease, said Keen. The virus causes respiratory and intestinal problems, such as coughing, diarrhea, vomiting, or discharge from the nose and eyes.

The virus also causes wild animals, such as wolves, coyotes and, in this case, gray foxes, to show abnormal behavior, including a lack of fear, aggression, disorientation and lack of alertness.

The fox in Boyne City was the second that is suspected of having canine distemper in Charlevoix County in a little more than two weeks, another was submitted for testing by the Department of Natural Resources on Wednesday, Feb. 29.

But while the cases have increased, Remsberg said they are still rare. However, he encourages people to exercise caution if they see animals acting out of the ordinary.

"That's the danger with a distempered animal is that they do approach people. People might think, hey, it's just a friendly wild animal, and that can be extremely dangerous," said Remsberg.

Increased contact between foxes because of the mild winter probably is to blame.

"Some cases will pick up when the weather is warm," said Keen. "Also, this time of year is the end of their (foxes') mating season, so that would obviously be a point of contact."

Foxes with distemper have been collected between September and February.

"Occasionally, separate families may share a den," said Keen. "We don't usually see a pack of foxes, but this time of year, they're just active."

If you see a wild animal acting strangely, call 9-1-1, said Remsberg. Dispatchers can then determine whether a local police department or the Department of Natural Resources should deal with the animal.

"Safety is foremost in everybody's mind," said Remsberg. "Don't approach wild animals. A healthy wild animal is not going to behave that way. If it's going to spook, it's going to spook in the opposite way, and should run away from you."

that stuff out," Jarema told commissioners.

In a later telephone interview, Jarema said he expects the plaintiffs or their lawyer — the newspaper or attorney Robin Luce Herrmann, a media law expert from Bloomfield Hills — to at least pay for the county's legal costs to argue for Christensen and himself to be removed as defendants. He also said he isn't sure the county will be on the hook for any of the newspaper's legal bills because both sides prevailed in part.

"I don't know if the county will be ordered to do any of the legal fees," Jarema said.

However, Johnson's order reads differently. In it he writes:

"Based upon the Court's rulings herein, Plaintiff (Petoskey News-Review) has prevailed, but only in part. The Court is therefore required to exercise discretion in determining whether to award all or 'an appropriate portion' of Plaintiff's attorneys' fees and costs. Unless the parties can agree how to resolved this matter, a further hearing to address this issue will be necessary."

Johnson ordered:

- — Emails No. 1-4 to remain withheld as personal real estate advertisements, not part of the public record
- — Email No. 5 to be released in whole, contrary to prior withholding on the basis of a law enforcement exemption
- — Email No. 6 to be redacted and released, contrary to prior complete withholding on the basis of attorney-client privilege and frank communications exemptions
- — Plaintiff (Petoskey News-Review) prevailed, but only in part, so court discretion in determining whether to award all or an appropriate portion of plaintiff attorneys' fees
- — Punitive damage award of $500 granted to plaintiff for bad faith effort to deny public records for personal reasons
- — Award sanctions against plaintiff attorney for frivolously including prosecutor and county commissioner as individual defendants in public office suit

Additional bids sought for substation

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County undersheriff Chuck Vondra will seek additional bids from contractors who may want to build a planned sheriff's outpost in Boyne Falls, a request by the trio of county commissioners who sit on the building and grounds committee.

Commissioners Ron Reinhardt, Bob Drehenstedt and Rich Gillespie, committee chairman, collectively agreed Wednesday to advertise for additional bids for the proposed facility. The committee met in the afternoon, following the full board meeting that morning.

Reinhardt said he believes the proposed new substation is a priority for county residents east of Lake Charlevoix. He represents the county's eastern region.

"They'd be right next door to the township fire hall," Reinhardt said.

Boyne Falls village officials in recent weeks agreed to chip in the land for the facility, the parcel between their village hall and Boyne Valley Township's fire and rescue barn. Early projections called for approximately $200,000 for the new building, but early bids came in at more than that.

The facility is designed to be more than a law enforcement outpost. Space is available for a county clerk's or treasurer's employee to have office hours there, allowing residents on the county's eastern side a nearer public office to conduct business with the county.

Preliminary plans call for a pole-style building with both office and garage space, including a lobby, private interview room, squad room and evidence storage. There would be enough garage space for six vehicles, such as patrol cars, marine patrol boats, all-terrain vehicles and snowmobiles.

The current Boyne Falls substation is a small office near village hall that sheriff Don Schneider previously described as "inadequate" for law enforcement.

So far, plans for the new outpost are for a bare-bones structure, without plumbing and electrical work. But Frank Shaler, county maintenance supervisor, said he is licensed to do those things.

"It's possible we might be able to do some of that plumbing and electrical work ourselves," he said.

One advantage is $50,000 already set aside for this project.

"We did that two years ago," Reinhardt said.

Vondra said the sheriff's office already received a handful of offers from various contractors, but more couldn't hurt. Companies that already submitted numbers will be informed there is a new bid submission deadline of 5 p.m. March 28.

The building and grounds committee will meet again less than two hours after that deadline to open and review the bids. That session will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the commissioners meeting room, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix, just prior to the next full board meeting.

Local residents get helping hand

EAST JORDAN — When the temperatures plummet each winter, many area residents are caught without the means to pay for heat, electricity, or water. Local community organizations can step in to help meet those needs.

Since 2000, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has awarded more than $225,000 to area organizations to assist with urgent needs. Three years ago, the foundation created the Urgent Needs Fund dedicated specifically to that cause.

"The fund was started by a generous donor concerned with the effect of the economic downturn on our local community members. As heating costs soared and job loss became common, regular living costs became too much for many area residents to bear on their own," explained Maureen Radke, program officer at the community foundation.

Each fall, the foundation receives applications from local organizations working directly with families and individuals in need. The number of area agencies supported goes up every year, and since 2009, more than $27,500 has been distributed from the fund.

Good Samaritan Family Services is one of the recipients of the foundation grant money, and the organization has helped 43 families so far this year with emergency need, which includes 100 children and several seniors.

"Families come in with shut-off notices, and all of a sudden they have big bills due," said Mary Peterson, director of the Good Samaritan Food Pantry. "We work with other agencies to help them come up with all of the funds to cover the cost."

Peterson said the stories she hears are often heartbreaking.

"One elderly woman told me she had no way to pay for heating, so she closed off her whole house, moved her mattress in the kitchen, and turned on the oven to try to stay warm."

Even though this winter has been milder than winters past, Peterson says she is still seeing many people who are unable to keep up with the rising costs of heat and food.

Bart Adams, treasurer of the East Jordan Ministerial Association, agrees.

"I've seen incredible growth and change in needs over the past years," said Adams. "In 2003 I had less than 25 people come to see me requesting assistance. In 2011, I had more than 230."

One single mother of three visited the ministerial association office after she ran out of propane and did not have the money to refill her tank. Using funds from the community foundation, the association was able to help her and more than 25 other families pay their heating costs.

"Normally, I would only have a few hundred dollars to distribute each month for heating costs," said Adams. "Thanks to the community foundation, we have a large sum of money that can help a lot more families pay their heating bills."

The Urgent Needs Fund not only helps with heating costs, but also supports food distribution. Other organizations receiving funding from the community foundation this year are the East Jordan Care and Share Food Pantry, Charlevoix Community Food Pantry, Beaver Island Christian Church and Food Pantry, Boyne City Seventh-day Adventist Community Service Center, and the Manna Food Project.

"This is what people hear about in the news every day and this is what they want to help with," said Radke. "This is a popular way that donors like to give because they know they are having an immediate impact in their neighbors' lives."

Applications for Urgent Needs grants are taken during the regular grant cycles with the deadlines of March 1 and October 1. There are certain instances where out-of-cycle grant requests are accepted. In all cases, call the foundation for more details.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds — all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come. For more information, contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at (231) 536-2440, or online at www.c3f.org.

State Police began a criminal investigation into the matter. The state police handled the investigation at the request of Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan who is also member at St. Mary.

After an 18-month investigation, the criminal charges against Veryser were issued on Oct. 31, 2011. Veryser turned herself in the following day and she has been free on a personal recognizance bond since.

In all, in court documents, police say Veryser embezzled more than $100,000 from the school.

In court Friday, when Judge Murphy asked her why she believes she is guilty of the charges, Veryser replied, "I used school funds for my own use. I knew it was wrong and I'm sorry."

In August, Cheboygan County Circuit Court Judge Scott Pavlich, who is handling the civil cases, granted a motion to dismiss the charges in Veryser's civil suit against the diocese.

In court Friday, Veryser's attorneys said an agreement has been reached in the diocese's remaining counter-suit against Veryser which would settle the matter. Under the terms of that agreement, the attorneys said, Veryser's up-front restitution payment of $37,500 at the time of sentencing would serve as payment in-full for purposes of the lawsuit.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema said he wanted the restitution amount on the record to be $75,000, but agreed that he would not seek criminal sanctions against Veryser if the additional $37,500 were not paid.

"That's up to the discretion of the diocese," Jarema told the judge.

The attorneys also noted that Veryser's plea was a "Killebrew plea." Under such a plea, the two sides have agreed in advance that the state sentencing guidelines in the case place the minimum sentencing guideline range at 0-17 months. That means that Veryser would not face state prison time unless the judge exceeded the guidelines at the time of sentencing. Jarema has previously said that such an upward sentencing departure is unlikely under the circumstances.

Usually a judge's ultimate sentence is not a part of plea agreements, but because this plea was a "Killebrew plea," Veryser would have the option of withdrawing the plea if the sentence came back higher than the agreed-upon range.

Before leaving the bench Friday, Judge Murphy said, "I don't expect any problems there," referring to the sentence.

A specific sentencing date was not set Friday, but it will likely take place in about a month.

Diocese of Gaylord officials released the following statement following Veryser's plea Friday:

"Mrs. Veryser's guilty plea and admission to embezzlement charges Friday is another step toward healing in what has been a very arduous and heart-wrenching two years and we look forward to the day when we can close the door on this sad chapter in history. We are grateful to the civil authorities who have worked very hard to bring the truth to light and continue to ask for prayers for St. Mary Parish and School, the Charlevoix community and for all those involved."

a fellow commissioner. However, the cover sheet in the e-mail must be revealed, he ordered.

"With respect to the single page e-mail cover sheet, the portions showing who it was from, who it was to, the date of the e-mail, the name of the sender at the top, and his closing and typed signature on the bottom do not by any stretch of the imagination involve confidential matters related to legal advice," Johnson wrote in his order.

Jeremy McBain, newspaper executive editor, said he is pleased with Johnson's ruling.

"I'm very happy to see this case come to conclusion in our favor. I appreciate the judge's support of a transparent, open government. I was particularly happy with the judge taking to task Charlevoix County prosecutor John Jarema over his unprofessional actions throughout the course of this case," McBain said.

Newspaper publisher Doug Caldwell echoed McBain's sentiments.

"In today's environment, the transparency of government is vital and we felt compelled to pursue this action to make sure we could find out the truth. Judge Johnson's ruling validated our decision to pursue this lawsuit," Caldwell said.

Jarema referred questions to written language coming from Christensen, a prepared statement on behalf of both officials.

"I am grateful the Court looked at the information and agreed with Mr. Jarema and I that the only e-mail sent during the meeting was in fact generated by the MLS System and not subject to FOIA request. What is unfortunate is that Mr. Jarema and the County had advised the PNR in our responses that this was the case, however they chose to challenge those facts," Christensen wrote.

The statement continued: "The Court held that the issue of the e-mail sent during the meeting is private, as we have stated all along. The Court stated that Mr. Jarema has to turn over a redacted e-mail which pertains to a current embezzlement case, that is still on-going. The Prosecutor's Office has said that as soon as that case is finished, a full disclosure will be forwarded to the PNR. Lastly, regarding the personnel issue, the Court again agreed with us that an attached document is also protected. However, the Court stated that we should have provided the e-mail as it basically served as a cover letter to the attached documents."

Because the Petoskey News-Review prevailed only in part, with the first four e-mails declared private and not public records, Johnson wrote that "The Court is therefore required to exercise discretion in determining whether to award all or 'an appropriate portion' of Plaintiff's attorneys' fees and costs. Unless the parties can agree how to resolve this matter, a further hearing to address this issue will be necessary."

Judge: Jarema was "antagonistic"

Emmet County Judge Charles Johnson took Charlevoix County prosecutor John Jarema to task for state Freedom of Information Act violations which may entitle the Petoskey News-Review to both attorneys' fees and punitive damages, as a result.

The newspaper filed a FOIA lawsuit last year that sought to compel Jarema to turn over various requested e-mails between himself and county commissioner Chris Christensen. Jarema refused across the board, but Johnson said that was the wrong legal move for a public official.

In his written opinion from Friday, Johnson scolded Jarema for putting personal issues above the requirements of his public office.

"The record before this Court clearly establishes that Jarema was antagonistic towards Plaintiff. The reason for this antagonism is not known, but it does not matter. It was Jarema's duty to obey the law as set forth in FOIA," Johnson wrote. "To the detriment of his office as Prosecutor and to Charlevoix County, Jarema engaged in a course of conduct inconsistent with a good faith effort to comply with FOIA."

Johnson said Jarema not only violated state law, but also behaved in an "arbitrary and capricious" manner. He further said Jarema's "purposeful dilatory tactics" were motived by his personal animosity for the newspaper and its executive editor, Jeremy McBain.

"In conclusion, the Court finds that Jarema's refusal to produce the nonexempt documents or portions of documents was not the result of an oversight or mistake. He was not acting in a reasonably responsible manner. Instead, he was acting in bad faith, motived by personal animus. His actions in delaying and then denying Plaintiff's FOIA requests in their entirety were arbitrary and capricious," Johnson wrote. "For the above reasons, the Court must award punitive damages to Plaintiff. In so doing the Court finds no evidence that Mr. Christensen or any other official of Charlevoix County participated in the improper conduct of Jarema. Yet pursuant to the clear language of FOIA, it is Charlevoix County that must pay the punitive damage award, together with any attorneys' fees and costs awarded to Plaintiff."

That means Johnson entirely blames Jarema for this violation of state law, but acknowledges that Charlevoix County taxpayers may have to pay for the violations.

"Jarema clearly ran afoul of the law and the citizens of Charlevoix County do not deserve this sort of juvenile behavior from their prosecuting attorney," McBain said.

Attorney Robin Luce Herrmann, of Bloomfield Hills, the newspaper's plaintiff counsel, said "it's unfortunate for everyone that it came to this."

Gretchen Olsen, of Petoskey, the county's civil defense attorney, could not be reached for comments, despite repeated attempts Monday and Tuesday.

Jarema on Monday referred questions to written language coming from Christensen, a prepared statement on behalf of both officials.

"As to the punitive damages, I have spoken to Mr. Jarema and he understands the decision of the Court and respectfully disagrees with its interpretation of some of the facts. The Court has mandated a redacted version of one e-mail which deals with an on-going criminal investigation. Mr. Jarema stated he believed, that based on his research, this information was fully exempt from the disclosure during the criminal case, and the Court found it was only partially exempt. Mr. Jarema is passionate in prosecuting cases and is extremely careful and mindful that both sides are entitled to a fair and impartial jury which is not influenced by the media. Since Mr. Jarema has acknowledged it was his decision to withhold the information during the ongoing investigation to protect the case, he has offered to pay the punitive fine himself," Christensen wrote.

Meanwhile, Johnson didn't scold Jarema alone.

He also awarded sanctions against Luce Herrmann for including Jarema and Christensen in the initial lawsuit filing as individual defendants, along with their respective public offices. They never should have been named as individual defendants, Johnson ruled.

"The Court finds that the action brought against Jarema and Christensen personally was frivolous," he wrote in his decision.

Michigan FOIA provides remedies against public bodies, Johnson explained, not individual office holders.

Charlevoix's Brad Klinger skiing in top contest

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

Charlevoix's own Brad Klinger is among several Northern Michigan youth who qualified to compete in the Rocky Mountain/Central Division J4 Junior Championship (formerly Junior Olympics), March 14-16 in Steamboat Springs, Colo.

Brad, 13, is the son of Todd and Suzanne Klinger. He is a seventh grade student Charlevoix Middle School where he is also a member of the school's ski team.

On Feb. 23-25, Brad qualified for the Colorado event when he placed 16 out of 71 in the qualifers at Marquette Mountain.

Brad will compete in super G, giant slalom, and slalom events. He has been skiing the USSA/CUSSA circuit this year for the Win Alpine Ski Team.

Contacted in Colorado Wednesday, Suzanne Klinger said Brad was taking practice runs Wednesday and was slated to make his first runs in the competition on Thursday. Updates were not available before press time Thursday.

According to the organization's website, "The USSA Junior Championships (formerly Junior Olympics) have been sponsored by the USSA as the premier junior championship tournament since the mid-1970s. Virtually all of USSA's Olympic and World Champions have participated in the USSA Junior Championship program.

"Athletically, the Junior Championships is often the launch pad for junior athletes to achieve results and performance standards to gain invitations to U.S. Ski Team training camps or U.S. Ski Team international competition opportunities ... In many cases, Junior Championship medals will provide automatic advancement to higher-level competition."

Charlevoix Hotel ruins demolished, removed

Nearly six weeks after a fire destroyed the Charlevoix Hotel, demolition began late last week on what remained of the structure formerly located at 206 Antrim St.

The owner of the property, John Connelly, who lives in the Flint area, recently hired Swanson K & D Inc. of Charlevoix to clean up the site. Crews were on the site, Friday, using excavators to knock down what remains of the building load debris in to large refuse containers. Work has continued this week and as of Wednesday afternoon crews were removing the last of the debris and filling in the hole that was created when the building's foundation was removed.

The roughly 100-year-old building was destroyed when a fire broke out early Jan. 28.

Although the structure had not been used as a true hotel for many years, it was still serving as a long-term rooming house at the time of the fire. The seven people who were in the building at the time of the fire escaped without serious injury.

Fire officials believe the fire started in a bathroom and although an exact cause of the fire has not been identified, authorities believe it was accidental. The property is listed for sale.

THE PATIENCE OF OUR customers and the perseverance of our hard-working employees helped Consumers Energy tackle the challenges created by the late winter storm that struck Michigan on March 2 - 3.

High winds and 18 or more inches of wet, heavy snow affected electric service to more than 189,000 customers. The storm downed nearly 3,000 wires across northern Michigan, and left damaged trees, utility poles and cross arms in its wake.

The storm restoration effort involved about 2,500 utility and contract employees, including crews from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania. These dedicated professionals worked tirelessly to restore power to customers while protecting public and employee safety. We salute their grit, skill and determination to get the job done under the most trying circumstances.

Michigan's icy winters have long tested our resolve. This storm was especially challenging for customers and Consumers Energy. We met the challenge by working together, just as we've done for the past 125 years.

Proudly serving Michigan for 125 YEARS

New ministry, 'The Breakfast Club' to offer hot meals twice weekly

Merk Lindsay
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

M. CHRIS LEESE/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Leslie Cunningham (left) and Bev Boss, both of Charlevoix, stand arm-in-arm during a training meeting Saturday at Charlevoix's Community Reformed Church. The women are committee members for the new Safe Haven Ministries of Charlevoix and it's Breakfast Club project.

One relatively small local Sunday school class has decided to take a stand, and make a difference in people's lives in Charlevoix County.

When Jan Boss decided to start a new Sunday school class last October she knew it would be special, but could not have foreseen just how that would come to be. The class was called Justice for the Poor and centered around learning more about poverty in America. "We started the six-week class just debating the state of poverty in our area," Boss said.

By the end of the six weeks, there was a core group of nine who had decided they would do something tangible to improve peoples lives. The group discussed multiple potential plans, and eventually made the decision to start off with a twice-weekly meal, serving the needy families in the area.

"We decided the first step would be to offer a hot breakfast to anyone who will come, and The Breakfast Club was born," Boss said.

Working with the head of the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry, Linda Boss, was a big help in the early planning stages, Jan said. Linda, Jan and seven other members of the original Sunday school class have remained and head-up the program. Nate and Joy Klooster, Jill Eakes, June Otis, Valerie Pederson, Leslie Cunningham and Bev Boss make up the rest of the nine.

"All of the members have been wonderful, and the amount of other volunteers as well," Jan Boss noted.

The program is run by Jan Boss, who is the director of spiritual formation for the church, but uses volunteers from all over the area, not exclusively from the church. The group is working to get people involved, as a way of continuing that initial Sunday school class goal of educating others about poverty.

"We have really gotten a good response, and have even booked out our volunteer schedule far into the future," Boss said.

The Breakfast Club falls under the Safe Haven Ministries of The Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix, but accepts support from local residents and businesses as well. The group currently is well-stocked to begin the meals, but will be developing a working budget and seeking donations in the future.

"Once we've had several meals and the word gets out, and things begin to grow, we will be able to get a better idea of what we need," Boss said.

The first meal will be served from

City OKs tax break for DCL expansion

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday gave its blessing to a request from a Charlevoix-based manufacturer for a 12-year tax abatement on improvements the company is planning to make in the next two years.

DCL, Inc., located in the city's industrial park, is proposing to expand its Ance Road facilities to the tune of about $2.8 million over the next two years.

On its application DCL officials said the improvements are expected to retain 3-5 jobs and create 6-10 jobs over the next two to three years.

If approved, the abatement would apply to 50 percent of the company's added property value from the improvements. City treasurer Rick Brandi estimated that if the improvements take place as expected, under the abatement the city would collect about $17,000 per year in additional taxes instead of $34,000 in new revenue.

DCL has two current tax abatements. One from 2008 and another from 2000 that is set to expire this year.

The lone person to speak during a public hearing on the matter Monday was city resident Shirley Gibson who said she appreciates what DCL is doing in the community, but said she is against tax abatements.

The council voted unanimously in favor of the measure, which now will go to state officials for their consideration.

More docks in marina?

Also on Monday the city council gave city manager Rob Straebel the OK to apply for a state grant that would pay about half of the expected $43,000 cost of preliminary engineering work to construct an additional dock on the north end of the city's East Park marina.

Straebel said the new dock would have fingers of 60 feet to accommo-

School bus hits, injures pedestrian

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

CHARLEVOIX — A downstate man was injured when he was hit by a Charlevoix Public Schools bus while he was crossing Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix Thursday, March 15.

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan identified the injured man as Jon Edward Stasevich, 60, of Grass Lake.

Stasevich was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix Ambulance crews where he was treated and released.

Authorities said the incident happened at about 11:30 a.m. at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton Streets.

Doan said bus driver James Gilbert Bearss, 75, of Charlevoix, was driving a 2009 Bluebird Charlevoix Public Schools bus loaded with students on the homebound trip of the day when the accident happened. Charlevoix schools had a half day of school Thursday.

Doan said the bus was headed east on Clinton Street and turning left (north) onto Bridge Street when he hit Stasevich who was walking east in the crosswalk in the middle of the northbound lane.

Doan said the contact with the bus happened about in the area of the bus' driver's window and knocked Stasevich to his knees.

Bearss did not stop the bus, but continued on to drop off the students on the bus at Charlevoix Elementary School, according police.

Doan said authorities were notified of the crash when a passing sheriff's deputy was flagged down by someone at the scene.

Doan said when officers caught up with Bearss at the school a short time later, he said as he was making the turn onto Bridge Street, he was distracted by students on the bus and did not see Stasevich in the crosswalk until the last second. According to police, Bearss reported that he saw Stasevich fall to the road surface, but did not stop because of the students on the bus needing to be dropped off at the elementary school to catch other buses.

No one on the bus was injured.

Police cited Bearss for failure to stop and identify at a traffic crash. He was given a March 23 appearance date in 90th District Court.

Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent Chet Janik said the driver was a substitute driver who the district regularly uses to fill in for absent regular bus drivers.

Janik said the bus driver was placed on an administrative leave from further driving assignments with the district until an investigation into the incident is complete.

District superintendent search moves forward

School board chooses search firm, interviews for interim Monday

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Among the work planned for later this year at Kipke Field is replacing the siding on the press box.

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education is moving forward with its efforts to replace outgoing district superintendent Chet Janik, who will be leaving in late April to take the position of Leelanau County administrator.

At a special meeting on Wednesday, the board chose the Michigan Association of School Boards to assist it in the search for a new superintendent.

On its website the Michigan Association of School Boards describes itself as a "voluntary, nonprofit association of local and intermediate boards of education located throughout the State of Michigan. Our membership is comprised of 600 boards of education, representing nearly all public school districts in the state."

Assisting school districts with superintendent searches is one of the many services the organization offers.

Enlisting the help of the association will cost the district $6,700 and a cap of $500 in incidental expenses. The board could also have chosen to use the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District or another search firm to assist in the search.

McLean

School board president John McLean said Thursday that several factors figured heavily in the board's decision to use the Michigan Association of School Boards.

He said the association is "much more structured" in its approach to the search process. He said the organization will do community, student and teacher forums and offers online tools for people who are unable to attend the forums to provide their input to the search process.

"That was a big selling point for us," McLean said.

Similar online tools for community input will also be available during the interview process.

McLean said another big selling point was the fact that the association will not only help shepherd the district through the selection process and help put the contract together, but will also work with the board and the new superintendent for the first year doing workshops leading up to and through the superintendent's first year evaluation.

"Those things are all a huge plus for us," McLean said.

McLean said the process is expected to take about 12 weeks, which will begin in earnest in mid-April, right after spring break.

In the meantime the board has scheduled interviews with three finalist candidates to serve as interim superintendent between the time of Janik's expected departure around April 23 and the arrival of the new superintendent.

Interviews for the interim position will take place starting at 6 p.m. on Monday, March 26, in the middle school library and they are open to the public.

The three finalists for the interim position are:

— Patrick "Pat" Bootz, Ellsworth, who has 11 years experience as a superintendent. He was superintendent in Ellsworth for seven years, at Mio AuSable Schools for four years, and served as interim superintendent in Ellsworth, Harbor Springs and Arenac Eastern.

— Michael Linton, Central Lake, who has two years experience as a superintendent at Central Lake. He also served as a principal at Central Lake and Lapeer East High School.

— Marsha Wells, Charlevoix, who has 14 years experience as a superintendent. Her experience includes serving at Portage Public for four years, Grand Ledge Public for six years, and Delton Kellogg Schools for four years.

In other recent business conducted at its regular monthly meeting Monday, the board extended the contracts of all of its administrative and non-union staff. All but one of the contracts was approved unanimously, including principals Doug Drenth, Travis Garrett and Suzanne Klinger., Montessori teacher Molly Arnold, technology coordinator Scott Mays, transportation supervisor Gordie Russell, food service manager Mike Washburne and bus driver/mechanic Ken Rogers.

Athletic director Brian Certa's contract was renewed by a 4-3 vote with board members Glen Catt, Kevin Pearsall and Mike Pearsall voting against the renewal.

Catt said he thinks there have been more problems in the athletic department since Certa took over two years ago, while board member Valerie Snyder said, "I think we gave Mr. Certa a difficult situation. I'd like to see the board step back and get out of his job."

All of the contracts now extend through the end of the 2014-15 school year and all came with no pay increases, which Janik noted has been the case for four of the past five years. (The one year there was a pay increase for those positions, it was intended to offset changes in health insurance.)

The board also heard an update from its buildings and grounds committee about the status of planned work at Kipke Field in the coming weeks. Using money from its 2008 facilities improvement bond, the district plans to reside the pressbox and renovate the inside of the Novak Field house — including overhauling the interior configuration of the building.

Bids for the project are due on April 26 and the work is expected to take about six to eight weeks.

Wildfire burns about an acre in Norwood

A wildfire scorched about an acre of land in Norwood Township on Saturday, March 17.

Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan said at about 1:30 p.m. fire crews were called to a report of a grass fire at 16121 Paddock Road in Norwood Township, the Tom Wieland Farm.

When firefighters arrived they found a grass fire in a unfarmed hillside between two fields. Several neighbors with hand tools were helping keep the fire from spreading, Ivan said.

The Charlevoix Township Fire Department assisted Charlevoix city firefighters with their grass truck. No one was injured, and the fire was quickly extinguished with no additional damage to any structures or adjacent properties.

Ivan said the fire burned about an acre. Firefighters were on scene for about 45 minutes.

Fire officials said Wieland reported that the fire was started by lingering embers from a large brush pile that he burned shortly after the snowstorm earlier this month.

Zonta plans May literary luncheon

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club will be hosting its annual Literary Delights, a Michigan women authors' luncheon, from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday, May 19, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Tickets for the event are $40 per person and include a catered lunch and basket raffle drawings. Three Michigan women authors, Ellen Airgood, Nancy Ellison and Fleda Brown, will be speaking at the event and copies of their books will be available for sale and signing at the event. All of the proceeds of the event go to support projects to advance the status of women locally, nationally and internationally, including our Sights on Success event, which is a free, day-long event offered to middle school girls to build teamwork, self esteem and confidence.

Featured author for March is Nancy Ellison, who resides on the shores of Grand Traverse Bay with her husband. She has had a long working relationship with two Northern Michigan hospitals, where she had the opportunity to write books to ease children's fear about their hospital experiences. Ellison is also a former Zontian. Her latest book is called "Spruce," a children's book about a young tree eager to learn many things, especially how to shout, but finds that maybe he is meant to do other things.

For more information or to purchase a ticket for the event, contact Linda Weller at (231) 547-4548. Reservations are required.

Local DDA board OKs I-75 billboard proposal

Sign in Standish area would beckon northbound travelers

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

Motorists on I-75 may soon get a little more enticement to visit Charlevoix in the form of an advertising billboard.

On Monday, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority board gave authority executive director Keith Carey approval to move forward with a cooperative advertising effort among the authority, the Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau and Castle Farms.

Earlier this year the board began looking for ways it could piggyback on an upcoming Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau Pure Michigan campaign with the limited funds it had available.

Around that time, a proposal for a cooperative billboard advertisement came up, but at $4,300 for each of the three organizations, it was too expensive for the authority.

Recently, however, a new revised proposal came in within budget at $1,667 per organization.

The plan, if approved by the bureau and Castle Farms, calls for a 12-foot by 24-foot billboard to be placed on northbound I-75 in the Standish area for a one year period.

The exact design of the sign has yet to be determined, but one idea tossed around Monday was to use an aerial photo of Round Lake in the design.

Board members said they would be agreeable to spending a few extra hundred dollars part way through the year to change the sign for the appropriate season.

Carey said the cost of the billboard would be covered by savings he expects the authority will see in printing costs for a downtown store directory.

Carey said he is working on developing a smart phone application that will guide guests through the downtown area and therefore he plans to spend far less in printing costs for the directories. Carey said he would have more details on the directory smartphone application in the coming weeks when it is ready for distribution.

A trip without sun can be illuminating

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Did I mention 28 days and no sun?

When we returned north I said to my girlfriend, "Do you know what it's like to live someplace where the sun doesn't shine?" She was quick to reply "Yes, I live in Michigan." "But no," I exclaimed, almost choking on my glass of house red, "Michigan has had more sun than northern Florida this winter!" This is a good thing for Michiganders but not for a snow bird expecting clear blue skies.

Maybe it was fate, or better yet, our guardian angels urging us on, but we are very grateful we made the decision to pack it up and leave our southern rental earlier than planned. We spent the first night in Nashville, Tenn. where the temperature was warmer than northern Florida. While traveling on I-65 past Henryville, I couldn't help but notice the sun was out. We pulled over in Greenwood, Ind. and within minutes we were checking into a motel as breathless as a new bride and groom. In reality, it was the sun we were excited about and quickly went about moving the motel furniture into the parking lot to absorb and enjoy the most beautiful sun ever. Well, golly gee, (this is Florabama talk) I was finally able to use my sun block. The housekeeping staff whirled by me with their cart as it was still early in the afternoon and rooms needed cleaning. They occasionally helped me move the cumbersome chair to get the best rays possible. Easily dozing off after an hour I looked up at a passerby and was about to ask them to refresh my margarita when I realized I was sunbathing in a Red Roof parking lot.

After a wonderful, warm day, a great meal and a good night's sleep we headed back onto the highway not realizing that the temperature would drop by 40 degrees and an unforgiving tornado was going to head in our direction. Even with the technology of a phone bearing a high definition weather application, nothing said take cover. We drove on not realizing that 20 hours later the place that gave warmth and comfort would become a scene of disaster and loss. We continued on, still unaware that the snow arriving north of us would be wet, heavy and accumulative. When we finally pulled into our driveway it was euphoric; as if we had clicked our heels and said, "There's no place like home." Yes, Toto (make that Higgins) we are home and fortunate to have missed all the major storms and arrive without mishap and to a house that still had electricity.

It's truly been an education on this trip. Some of the things we learned: When the elastic on sheets is worn through and their size is no way comparable to the bed, you can use duct tape to keep them in place. When spiders are larger than your hand don't step on them. When a bed is so uncomfortable your back hurts looking at it, cover it with sleeping bags and two comforters and then add sheets (remember the duct tape). When a washing machine doesn't work well, hit any button and at some point water will flow into it. You can bring electricity into a house from an extension cord plugged into an outdoor outlet.

Ahh yes, my friends, this has been quite an experience: Learning painfully about ourselves and how we handle life when it's not so rosy, and realizing that the sun does not always shine just because an ad says it's the "Sunshine State;" that renting a home site unseen was a huge mistake; that pictures may speak louder than words, but seeing something in person is the truth that will set you free. This and the angst of childbirth too shall pass. On an added note: We are fortunate the angels kept us safe while travelling and that Higgins (our new dog) has entered our lives.

United Way to host 'Alternative Spring Break'

Char-Em United Way is sponsoring Alternative Spring Breaks for area high school and college students. "You don't have to travel to a foreign country to have an Alternative Spring Break experience," points out Casey Adams, United Way's AmeriCorps VISTA. "This project gives you the opportunity to stay home and help right here in Charlevoix and Emmet counties."

This year there will be a variety of different projects across Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. The first is the Bergmann Beautification Project which will be held at the Bergmann Center in Charlevoix on from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Thursday April 5. Second, the Raven Hill Discovery Center in East Jordan needs help with their Blurred Boundaries: Ancient to Modern Megaliths exhibit. This will involve recreating famous rock sculptures from across the world from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. on April 2-3. Third, the Emmet County Recycling Center in Petoskey is planning an environmental-based project at their facility from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Finally, the Habitat for Humanity needs assistance improving bookcases for the homes they build as well as other projects around the ReStore in Harbor Springs from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. on April 5.

All four projects will take place on a "weather-permitting" basis. Each destination will provide lunch and refreshments and all volunteers will get a free United Way T-Shirt and water bottle.

Pre-registration is required, so all interested volunteers should contact Casey Adams at vista@charemunitedway.org or call Char-Em United Way directly at (231)-487-1006.

LOOKING BACK…

Charlevoix's fourth schoolhouse (right) was constructed in 1889 right after the previous school burned to a shell. These schools were both midway between Clinton and Mason Streets just east of Grent Street. The Charlevoix Sentinel newspaper said the new edifice "excites the admiration of every visitor." About six years later, an increased population made it necessary to build two elementary schools, on the north and south sides of town, for grades one through four to ease the burden on the downtown school. In 1901 a new high school arose by Mason Street (left), and the first classes were taught here in 1902. After a new elementary school and gymnasium went up in 1927-28, now the Charlevoix Public Library, the fourth schoolhouse was used only for storage and band practice, and came down in 1945. The other building lasted until 1961 when the high school was moved to a new structure at May and West Garfield Streets. Shown above is now the area of the library's Community Room and parking lot.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." The disc is available at the Society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State St. next to the Congregational Church, from 1-4 p.m.Thursday-Saturday. It is also available at the Central Drug Store, Round Lake Books, Castle Farms, and Ell-Air Gallery. Call (231) 547-0373 for mailing and society membership information.

Kenneth H. "Coach" Brill, 85, of Charlevoix, passed away on Wednesday, March 14, 2012, at Hiland Cottage, Hospice of Little Traverse Bay in Petoskey. Ken was born on March 5, 1927 at home in Greene County, Ohio, the son of John H. and Bertha (Koogler) Brill. He grew up in Beavercreek, Ohio graduating from high school in 1945. Fifteen days later, he was drafted into the U.S. Army, where he proudly served his country during Word War II. After leaving the service, he attended the University of Dayton where he graduated with a bachelor's degree in 1951.

While in college, he married Sue A. Griffith in 1949. Ken and Sue had four children and were married for 42 years. On Dec. 11, 2011, Ken married Suzanne A.(Petersen) Muma, his best friend for more than 20 years.

Hugh Allen Murray, 88

Hugh Allen Murray, 88, of Mackinaw City passed away peacefully on March 10, 2012 at Hiland Cottage in Petoskey. The funeral took place March 15, at the Church of the Straits in Mackinaw City, officiated by The Rev. Dave Wallis. Interment was at Lakeview Cemetery.

Mr. Murray was born in Muncie, Ind. on Nov. 11, 1923, the son of Maurice and Lillian (Mathews) Murray. Hugh loved his family, the water and his beautiful north. He was a seaman in the merchant marine for a year during World War II serving on lake freighters. Hugh was an avid sailor; racing and cruising the Great Lakes. He started to sail at a very young age and spent many years sailing his own boat, the Astrid, all over the Great Lakes as well as racing in many Port Huron to Mackinac races. County transit adds Petoskey, Gaylord trips

Reduces monthly Traverse City visits to quarterly

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

BOYNE CITY — Charlevoix County Transit System recently added monthly shopping trips to Petoskey and Gaylord, but reduced the number of runs to Traverse City per year.

Jill Drury, transit manager, said the county agency made the change to better address customer needs and to save money. Charlevoix County commissioners discussed the altered schedule last week after Drury reported on the changes.

"We're trying to give more service," said Ron Reinhardt, county commissioner from Wilson Township.

Drury said officials initially intended the formerly monthly trips to Traverse City to primarily be for medical appointments at Munson Medical Center and its adjoining medical district. But most passengers on the trips went to the mall, instead.

Drury said shopping trips will be more affordable for taxpayers if the bus runs stay within the region, rather than the long and expensive trips to Traverse City's far side. Medical trips to Traverse City or other places will continue to be scheduled with advanced reservations, she said.

"I would love to see more done between Emmet and Charlevoix counties to increase transit between the counties," said Jon Bautel, owner of Boyne's Beyond Borders in Boyne City.

The closer shopping trips will better promote an awareness of the impact of local shopping on local economies, said Bautel, who hasn't owed a vehicle in two years. He also said that when he does want to visit a large store in Petoskey, he will look to transit.

"If I need to do some major bulk shopping at Meijer, I'll take transit to get there," Bautel said.

> "We hope to have the new Saturday service in place and ready to roll this spring."
> — Jill Drury, Charlevoix County Transit manager

Not everyone thinks the change is for the better, though.

Jodi Blaha, of East Jordan, said the county's disabled residents highly value the monthly trips to Traverse City's indoor mall, an excellent place for those who use wheelchairs or walkers. She considers the move to reduce trips there discrimination against the disabled, Blaha said.

"It's a blessing to the disabled in many ways. We just want the once-a-month trip to Traverse City restored. Doesn't it matter what we want?" she said.

Drury said it's nonsense that the transit agency intends to discriminate against local disabled residents.

"It's an attempt to provide more service to the residents of the county by offering more locations and more frequently, but keeping Traverse City there as a special occasion," she said.

The Traverse City trip costs about the same as the Petoskey and Gaylord trips combined, plus two bus loads of people can participate, rather than just one, Drury said.

At least four transit bus trips from Charlevoix County to Traverse City will be scheduled each year, though more dates may be added. The shopping trips to Petoskey and Gaylord will continue on a monthly basis.

Joel Evans, county board chairman from South Arm Towoship, said the service can't be everything to everyone, but said it is a valuable public service.

"This transit is a great service. Sometimes we get focused on our own wants and needs," Evans said.

Additionally, Saturday service will soon be added to transit's offerings.

"We hope to have the new Saturday service in place and ready to roll this spring," Drury said.

Partnerships with Straits Regional Ride, Otsego County Bus System, the Friendship Centers of Emmet County and Antrim County Transportation also are in the works, so additional transit connection options are available. The agency also recently launched a pilot project to offer Saturday evening service between Boyne City and Boyne Mountain Resort, in Boyne Falls.

Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners tackles full plate

Road construction, trail grant application, bond payoff all handled

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County leaders tackled several major issues last week, including funds for a priority road construction job, a six-mile non-motorized recreational trail grant application and a bond pay-off maneuver that will save taxpayers millions, among other business.

County commissioners unanimously voted Wednesday, March 14 to transfer $1 million from the general fund to the road fund to cover a financial shortfall for the complete overhaul planned for Boyne City-Charlevoix Road. Several commissioners said they want a repayment plan for the transfer, especially since they already transferred $1 million for the project back in November.

"We have to work out the payment plan before we expend the money," said Rich Gillespie, commissioner from Beaver Island.

The bids for the project came in higher than anticipated, so county commissioners agreed to cover the gap, even if only temporarily. Officials previously discussed a $200,000 per year payment from the voter-approved 1-mill road levy, but none of that is yet finalized.

"We can gain more, in my opinion, from the payback," said Ron Reinhardt, commissioner from Wilson Township.

Commissioner Chris Christensen, of Boyne City, said he'd be happy with just $1 million paid back to the general fund because the project is so important for county residents.

Federal dollars funneled through the Michigan Department of Transportation will cover most of the 2.5-mile section between Stephens and Sumner roads. The low bid received by the state came from M & M Excavating Company, of Gaylord, at $1.47 million.

Local money will be spent to complete the 7.5-mile stretch from Stephens Road to Western Avenue, very near U.S. 31. The low bid at $2.97 million came from Payne & Dolan, of Gaylord, though the next nearest bid from Rieth-Riley Construction, of Petoskey, amounted to less than a $2,000 difference.

"This was very close, these two bids," said Bob Drebenstedt, commissioner from Marion Township.

Commissioners discussed how representatives from both companies lobbied them in recent weeks about which should receive the job, including details about the numbers of employees who live inside the county and more. But in the end, officials went with the low bid.

"The integrity of the bidding system, if we don't go with the low bidder, is shot down," said Reinhardt, the board's liaison to the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

Commissioners also unanimously voted to support the road commission awarding the bid to Payne & Dolan.

Non-motorized recreational trail grant application

The board also conducted a second public hearing on an extension to the coming Boyne City-Charlevoix Road non-motorized recreational trail, from Camp Sea-Gull to U.S. 31 near Charlevoix. Just two citizens spoke about the expected $2.9 million project.

"You just don't have a complete thing for us to take a look at," said Bob Taylor, a Bay Township resident and long-time trail critic.

Ross Maxwell, county parks and recreation director, explained that the drawings are conceptual only and will not be finalized unless the desired state grant is awarded, which will include funds for proper engineering.

Resident Nancy LaCroix also spoke during the hearing. She said officials should not design the trail to cross U.S. 31 at Waller Road because it's not a safe enough spot. She also asked whether that highway crossing cost was included in the projections and officials answered it was.

Commissioners also asked questions.

Christensen wanted to know why this planned trail extension is expected to cost more per mile than the trail's first leg from Boyne City to the Park of the Pines at the Bay-Evangeline townships line. He also questioned whether planners ever considered alternate routes.

Lucas Porath, engineer for the Petoskey-based Northwest Design Group firm, explained the trail extension will involve 3,000 feet of boardwalk to cross wetland areas, which cost far more than simple blacktop trails. Also, alternate routes remain part of the ongoing trail design process, he said.

Maxwell said the project is expected to be funded with $2.2 million in federal grant dollars, $300,000 in state grant money and $400,000 in private donations.

Christensen questioned whether the county will be on the hook for any money not collected from donors and Maxwell said that no, the county could simply reject the grants and not do the project.

"I'd just as soon see the bike trail go in as long as it doesn't take county money," Reinhardt said.

Gillespie said he wants to see a list of landowners along the planned trail route who agree to have the pathway cross their property, but commissioner Shirlene Tripp, of Hayes Township, said that permission isn't needed unless the trail ventures outside designed right-of-ways.

Commissioners voted 5-1 to apply for a Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund grant for the project, with Gillespie the sole dissenter.

Grandvue bond payoff

Finally, commissioners voted 5-1 to pay off in May the bond voters approved for Grandvue Medical Care Facility, the county nursing facility.

Christensen learned while he researched the county's 2010 audit that the Grandvue bond could be paid off early after rising property values in the mid-2000s bumped up the tax revenue stream from that millage. Officials never adjusted the levy rate as property values fluctuated, but instead kept collecting 0.54 mills.

That means the county collected far more than needed to make the annual bond payments. County coffers have enough money from the tax to pay off the remaining principal balance in two months, the earliest possible debt retirement date for the Grandvue expansion bond.

The move will save about $350,000 in future interest payments and will keep about $4 million in uncollected taxes in citizen pockets.

Tripp was the sole dissenter in the bond payoff vote.

Commissioners also voted Wednesday to: apply for a state trust fund grant to buy state land adjacent to Whiting Park; buy new software for the county register of deeds office; and, apply for a federal grant to build a multi-purpose building on Beaver Island for road commission, sheriff's and transit vehicles.

And current print subscribers will have free access to all online content and the e-edition, Caldwell said.

The Petoskey News-Review also offers an e-edition that is included at no additional cost with all print subscriptions. The e-edition allows readers to view the traditional print layout of the paper on a computer or tablet device.

The Gaylord Herald Times will also implement a meter next week. The Charlevoix Courier made the transition last month.

Great Lakes Energy's Dave Matz points out the safety transfer switch that allows this portable generator to be safely connected to the home.

Great Lakes officials urge generator safety

Warnings for those who bought generators in the wake of the recent March storm

Great Lakes Energy reminds members with new portable generators that they need to be safely installed to avoid hazards that could result in a fatality and property damage.

A meter base designed for safely connecting a portable generator to your home in an emergency can be purchased for $350 from Great Lakes Energy.

Cooperative officials said the investment protects members from potential dangers. An improperly connected portable generator can back-feed power into the power line and potentially electrocute lineworkers working to restore your service and neighbors served by the same transformer. Your generator, wiring and appliances could also be damaged when power is restored.

The electric meter fits into the special base, which has a utility/generator transfer switch for safe operation of your portable generator. The switch prevents both sources from feeding power into the home at the same time and creating a dangerous situation. It also prevents power from back-feeding into the power line.

Installation of the meter base and generator wiring work should be done by a licensed electrician. A professional can help size a portable generator to safely meet your emergency needs and will ensure the work is done safely and correctly.

The meter base is rated for a 200-amp service with a 100-amp maximum for the generator input. The top of the meter base is locked and the bottom area is left accessible for wiring in the portable generator.

Instruct your electrician to install the necessary equipment that will enable you to safely and quickly connect and disconnect the portable generator during an emergency.

For more details, contact Great Lakes Energy at (888) 485-2537, ext. 1303.

Girl Scouts mark 100 years with gifts for newborn

It may be a few years before Aveleigh Kughman is old enough to join a Daisy Girl Scout troop, but she's already received her first Girl Scout T-shirt and a warm welcome into the Girl Scout family.

Members of the Charlevoix County Girl Scouts recently presented Aveleigh and her mom and dad, Ashley and Scott Kughman, with a gift basket containing 100 items to mark the 100th birthday of Girl Scouting in the United States.

The Girl Scouts representing Boyne City/Boyne Falls, Charlevoix and East Jordan troops decided to celebrate Scouting's anniversary in this way after coming across an article commemorating a similar project planned by area Scouts in 1992. Troops worked for several weeks planning and creating their basket of baby articles which included infant clothing, toys, toiletries and several items handcrafted by Boyne City Girl Scout alumni and supporters. The girls earned money for the project, and designated part of their cookie sales proceeds to purchase items for the gift basket.

Charlevoix County Girl Scouts and their leaders enlisted the cooperation of the Charlevoix Area Hospital to identify the first baby girl born in Charlevoix County on or after March 12, considered to be the official birthday of Girl Scouting in the United States. Aveleigh was born March 14, 2012, at 7 pounds, 13 ounces, 20.5 inches long. She has two siblings, a brother, Xaiver, 4, and a sister, Zaidee, 3.

The Girl Scout movement began as a way to build girls of courage, confidence and character. Over the next 12 months, several events and activities have been planned to commemorate the 100-year milestone achieved by Girl Scouts of the United States in 2012.

BREAKFAST CLUB

7:30-9 a.m. on Tuesday, March 27, and will be open to anyone wanting to attend. All of the meals will offer hot food and a well-balanced selection of proteins, fruits, carbohydrates and beverages.

"We will always have hot food, and plan to try to keep it healthy and delicious," Boss said.

The program will continue to offer a hot breakfast at 7:30 a.m. every Tuesday and Friday and will welcome all comers. The dates are designed to complement the lunches served by the Church of God on Wednesday and Thursday each week.

"The Lighthouse Lunches the Church of God does along with our breakfasts give someone in need a potential four meals a week" Boss said. "When we decided to do a meal we looked at what the Church of God was doing and were surprised to see them serving as many as 50 to 60 people per meal."

The group can feed a similar amount, and eventually plans to be able to feed up to 100 people, should the need be there. They also consider this a first step, with the idea of continuing to work on assisting those in need in Northern Michigan in different ways.

For more information on Breakfast Club program, contact the Community Reformed Church at (231) 547-9482. The church is located at 100 Oak St. in Charlevoix, and also has a website at www.communityreformed.net.

date larger boats. He said city harbormastor Hal Evans reports that the marina regularly has to turn away larger vessels because there is not enough docking space for them.

"This looks like it could be an untapped market for us," Straebel told the council.

If the preliminary engineer work comes back favorable, then the city would proceed with an application for another grant to help pay for the actual construction.

He noted that even under the best circumstances, the new dock construction would likely not happen until 2014 or 2015.

He said one matter that would have to be cleared up is docking for the Keewenaw Star. Currently the city leases dock space to the large tour boat on the north end of the marina and that dock space would not be available if the new dock were constructed. Streabel said city officials would look for a location on the new dock for the Star to dock. He said the city would need to get permission from the state for such a move.

Test turns

In recent meetings the council has been debating the possibility of creating curb extensions or "bump outs" at pedestrian crossing locations at the intersection of Clinton and Bridge streets when crews take up a Clinton Street street and infrastructure project later this year.

City officials regularly hear complaints about the pedestrian crossings at that intersection — especially crossing Bridge Street on the north side of Clintoo.

Engineers doiog preliminary design work and city street superintendent Pat Elliott brought the idea to the council suggesting that the bump outs might be a way to help mitigate the problem by shortening the distance between the curbs

Michigan Department of Transportation officials have given their tentative blessing to the concept, but several city council members have expressed concerns about the idea — especially as it relates to right turns semi trucks departing from the Beaver Island Boat Company docks must make when turning from East Clinton to Bridge Street.

To help city council members get a better idea of what impact the bumpouts would have, city officials are planning a demonstration that would use spray paint on the pavement to mark where the bumpouts will go and then have a semi truck and the city aerial fire truck make several turns at the intersection. The demonstration is slated for 5:30 p.m. on Monday, March 26.

At an earlier meeting, the council gave Elliott the OK to move forward with preliminary plans for the bumpouts with the idea that the curb extension portion of the project could be cut later. Tentative figures presented at an earlier meeting estimated that the bumpouts might add as much as an additional $30,000-$35,000 to the street project's costs.

In other business, the council unanimously approved sending a letter of support to the state which will soon be considering another grant to help pay for the proposed non-motorized trail along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Traverse City St. Francis basketball coach Keith Haske (middle) yells to his team during quarterfinal action at Petoskey High School Tuesday.

Andy Sneddon
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS EDITOR

PETOSKEY — The uniforms were Gladiator blue rather than Rayder maroon.

But the style of play, and the result looked oh so familiar.

Michael Jenkins scored 15 points to lead four Traverse City St. Francis players in double figures Tuesday as the Gladiators snuffed out Negaunee, 71-59, in a Class C boys basketball state quarterfinal game before an estimated 1,800 spectators at Petoskey High School.

St. Francis, 24-2, advancesd to a state semifinal on Thursday, March 22 against Shelby, 24-2, at the Breslin Center on the campus of Michigan State University.

It'll be the sixth trip to the Breslin for second-year St. Francis coach Keith Haske, who, in a combined 16 seasons between the girls and boys teams at Charlevoix, took the Rayders to the Breslin five times. Twice, he led the Charlevoix boys to state runner-up finishes.

On Tuesday against Negaunee, 22-3, Haske's Gladiators employed the same uptempo in-your-face style that brought him so much success at Charlevoix during his amazing 13-year run there.

The Gladiators, who last made it to the Breslin in 2006 where they lost in a state semifinal, forced the Miners into 21 turnovers — more than double their season average — and simply wore Negaunee down with tough-to-beat combination of size, talent and depth.

"It's kind of how we wanted to play," said Haske, whose team used an 18-7 second-quarter run to build a double-digit lead, and never allowed Negaunee to get closer than nine in the second half. "I think we got them going at our pace tonight. ... (And) we played bad enough defense at times that I think they had no choice but to go shoot layups.

"It's funny how that works sometimes. You hate giving them up, but it does keep the pace of the game where we want it and certainly our depth was huge tonight. Our guys off the bench gave us a big lift."

Sound familiar?

It was.

The Gladiators start 6-foot-9 senior Sean Sheldon, a William & Mary signee who was named to the Associated Press Class C All-State team on Tuesday, along with 6-6 junior Kody Kleinrichert.

Among Haske's slew of talented non-starters is the 6-5 Jenkins along with 6-4 Conner Archer. Add to that cat-quick guard Devin Sheehy and a host of other talented athletes, and the Gladiators proved too much for a Negaunee team that simply ran out of gas under a torrent of constant full-court pressure.

"The pressure and the press is risk-reward, and their reward has been, all season long, in having teams succumb to that," Negaunee coach Mike O'Donnell said. "That constant up and down, and the physically draining game that it makes it.

"They've got some great athletes and they come off the bench and they don't lose anything size wise or athleticism wise. They're just a good, talented team."

Sheldon finished with 14 points and nine rebounds, Kleinrichert added 11 points, and Byron Bullough had 10.

Sophomore guard Tyler Jandron scored 19 points to lead Negaunee, while Tanner Uren and Brock Weaver, both juniors, added 18 and 12, respectively. The 6-6 Uren, the only Miner over 6-2 to play in the game, finished with seven rebounds.

Negaunee led just once, 18-17, after a Zach Marsbell 3-pointer to open the second quarter. Kleinrichert tied it with a free throw, triggering an 18-7 run that left St. Francis up 12, 35-23, late in the second quarter.

The Gladiators extended their advantage to as many as 16 points in the third quarter and were up 55-41 entering the fourth. Negaunee drew within nine three times in the final stanza, the last with under three minutes to play.

But the Miners, who stuck with a seven-man rotation, simply didn't have enough left in the tank to complete the STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Colo. — Brad Klinger, 13, of Charlevoix completed competition at the Rocky Mountain/Central Division Junior 4 Junior United States Ski and Snowboard Association Championships Saturday with a 58th place finish in slalom at Steamboat Springs.

Klinger, who's been skiing the USSA/CUSSA circuit this year for the Win Alpine Ski team, qualified for the Junior Championships (formerly known as the Junior Olympics) by placing 16th out of 71 skiers in the qualifers at Marquette Mountain Feb. 23-25.

Klinger opened the competition with a 37th place finish in Super G on Thursday, and then tied for 37th in Giant Slalom Saturday.

Klinger is among a group of top skiers across the Midwest and Rocky Mountain regional for his age group (ages 12-13) and is a seventh grader at Charlevoix Middle School, where he's also a member of the Charlevoix Middle School ski team.

Also competing in the J4 Championships is Mitch Makela of Petoskey and Petoskey middle schooler, along with Maddy Fuhrman of Harbor Springs. Makela finished 35th in his opening round of competition in Super G and was 32nd in GS and 49th in Slalom, while Fuhrman was 70th in Super G, 69th in GS and 62nd in Slalom.

Last weekend at the J3 Championships in Vail, Golden Peak, Colo., Petoskey Middle School's Garret Lundteigen, age 14, finished sixth in slalom, 17th GS, 21st Super G and 42nd in downhill. Also competing in the J3 (ages 14-15) Championships was Harbor Springs' Shea Fuhrman, who was 47th in downhill, 42nd Super G, 48th GS and 49th in slalom.

Lundteigen races for the Boyne Racing Team, while Fuhrman is a member of the Win Alpine Ski Team.

Rayders power-up comeback against St. Francis, which shuffled one fresh body after another onto the court throughout the night.

"We could have folded when it got the 13-, 15-point mark a couple times," said O'Donnell, whose team fell to McBain in overtime in a quarterfinal last year at Petoskey. "But we kept battling, got it back down under 10 points a couple times, had a couple chances to get it even closer.

"The legs just kind of fail you a little bit (under the pressure). We were trying to play catchup from one step behind. It was something we haven't seen, this style. I give them credit for being able to do that and run the guys and play that type of game."

The Gladiators are on a mission, Haske said, after losing in a district final last year to Elk Rapids. That loss came two nights after St. Francis had ousted a very good Suttons Bay team from the tournament.

"For our seniors, that stung them last year," Haske said. "We thought after we got by Suttons Bay we were going to make a big run. But that (loss) was huge. Our kids really remember that and I think they're using that as a motivator."

Football coach search on hold

Janik

It appears next season's Charlevoix Rayder varsity football team will have at least another month or more to find out who will be their new head coach come fall.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik and high school athletic director Brian Certa said this week that a coach search committee recently conducted interviews for five finalist applicants for the position and made a recommendation to the board for the person that it felt was best for the job.

But the board is waiting to consider the committee's recommendation until more details are known about the district's teaching staff configuration for next year, Janik said.

Certa said the applicant favored by the committee has said he is very interested in the position, but he would need a teaching position to accompany the coaching position in order to make relocating his family to the area feasible.

Janik explained that the district is expecting at least four teachers to retire at the end of this school year, but, he said, its still unclear how next year's budget, anticipated enrollment and other factors will affect exactly which positions will be open.

Certa noted that layoffs that took place in recent years could also further cloud the matter as a circumstance could arise where a laid off teacher would have the first shot at an opening.

Certa said building principals were expected to meet this week to work out staffing needs for next year. He said tentatively, his understanding is that available teaching positions would be posted around the end of this month, interviews conducted mid-April and positions filled shortly thereafter.

He said if the person the committee is recommending for the football coaching position is successful in obtaining a teaching position, the school board would then consider the coaching recommendation.

Certa noted that the coach candidate is a certified teacher that would have the proper credentials for at least one of the positions that appears will be available.

He described the recommended candidate as "very dynamic person with a lot of passion."

"He knows the game of football and knows kids well," Certa added.

Several football players attended Monday's regular monthly school board meeting wearing T-shirts that read "We want Waha" on the front and "It's about us" on the back, an apparent reference to the players' preference that current junior varsity coach Doug Waha be named to the varsity position. The players did not speak during the meeting and the coaching position was not discussed.

Waha applied for the varsity position, but was not the person recommended by the committee.

Members of the selection committee include Certa; Tom Kernovic, retired athletic director from Ferris State University; Mark Snyder, former college football player, local real estate agent, member of the Rayder Gridiron Club and local youth coach; Scott Kelly, former varsity baseball coach, Charlevoix High School graduate and football player and executive director of BASES in Charlevoix; and Dr. Craig Boss, staff physician at Charlevoix Area Hospital, Charlevoix High School graduate and football player from Charlevoix's undefeated team of 1977.

Last month Certa said 19 people applied for the football coaching job, vacated when Don Jess decided to step down late last year from the position he had held for nine years.

For the second time this school year, the Charlevoix Schools Foundation has awarded more than $20,000 in grants as part of a three-year fundraising program to help fill the void in classroom and other district needs left by years of budget cuts.

In it its first round of grants, handed out in November, the foundation awarded more than $22,000.

The program, dubbed "Investing in Our Future ... Our Students," began about a year ago when four anonymous donors in the community came forward pledging thousands in seed money for the fundraising campaign. The foundation hopes to ultimately raise a total of $220,000 over the three-year period.

The campaign is focusing its efforts in four key areas: health and wellness, science and mathematics, language arts and humanities, and fine arts.

In the fall round of grants and again this spring, district officials put out a call to staff members to submit funding requests. In the fall staff submitted 52 requests for about $90,000. This time around the foundation awarded more than $26,000 of $98,000 in grant requests.

SPRING 2012 GRANT AWARDS:

- $1,000 to pay for a portion of the annual fourth grade trip to Beaver Island
- $250 for a subscription to a science magazine for fifth grade

- $5,000 to support the high school robotics team
- $864 for equipment for K-four illness activities
- $250 for cooking and other supplies for the fifth- through seventh-grade life skills classes
- $983 for middle school recess equipment

- $2,500 for books for the elementary and middle school libraries
- $2,500 for updated books for the high school library
- $1,500 for high school reference and resource materials

Charlevoix Middle School teacher Amy Pott said the grants are making a big difference in her class by helping to pay for her "Teaching with Toys" curriculum.

Pott explains:

"Teaching with toys is a program that I started about nine years ago and, through the generosity of the Schools Foundation, I have been able to continue and build this program. The program has evolved to where I now have more than 100 different "science toys" appropriate for all age levels.

Beginning after Christmas break, I began introducing the "toys" to my students. I bring out six to eight toys at a time, give them time to explore and figure out how they work, and then at the end we discuss as a class how these toys relate to a science concept. During the discussion, the students all fill out a "Teaching this Toy Paper." This paper explains major science concepts, how the toy works, major

School board selects interim superintendent

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education has selected Ellsworth resident and former Ellsworth Schools superintendent Patrick "Pat" Bootz to serve as its interim superintendent while the search for a permanent replacement for the district's top administrative position takes place.

Bootz was selected from among a field of three finalists for the job at a special school board meeting Monday.

Bootz's extensive experience as a superintendent, including three times as an interim superintendent and his "approachable personality," ranked high with the school board.

Bootz will step in for current Charlevoix superintendent Chet Janik who recently accepted the county administrator position with Leelanau County Board of Commissioners. Janik is expected to leave in late April. Although Bootz's exact start date has not been determined his arrival is expected to overlap with the end of Janik's tenure to assure a smooth transition.

Bootz

Bootz has 11 years experience as a superintendent. He was superintendent in Ellsworth for seven years, at Mio AuSable Schools for four years, and served as interim superintendent in Ellsworth, Harbor Springs, and Arenac Eastern.

The other two candidates were Michael Linton, of Central Lake who has two years experience serving as superintendent of Central Lake Schools and Marsha Wells of Charlevoix has 14 years experience as superintendent of several downstate school districts.

"We were very fortunate to have such qualified candidates express interest in our schools," said board president John McLean. "It was a difficult process to narrow the field. All three (candidates) had qualifications that would benefit our schools."

The search, conducted by Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Superintendent Rick Diebold, included a forum with board members to identify the characteristics they are seeking in an interim superintendent. Top characteristics included past experience as a superintendent, ties to the area, and someone who is decisive, a charismatic communicator and who understands finances and budgeting and can right-size an organization in such a way as to minimally impact student programs.

The district will pay Bootz at a rate of $400 per day.

Janik has said the most important role Bootz will likely play during his time with the district is helping to guide the board through its upcoming budget process for next school year.

The search for a permanent superintendent will be conducted by the Michigan association of School Boards.

McLean said the board plans to meet with Association representatives after spring break to lay out a timeline for the superintendent search. The board has said it hopes to have a permanent replacement for Janik in place before the start of the 2012-13 school year in September.

Sunday grass fire

A Charlevoix Township firefighter sprays water on land scorched by a grass fire that broke out on Shrigley Road in Hayes Township around 3 p.m. Sunday. Fire officials said the fire was the result of a resident burning leaves nearby that began to spread when the wind picked up. Firefighters were able to keep the fire from damaging any nearby structures. Fire officials said about two acres were burned in the fire and fire crews were on the scene for about an hour.

Voters may be asked to pay more for senior programs

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County commissioners this week discussed whether to ask voters in August for an increase to the senior millage.

Commissioners met Wednesday night in Charlevoix and decided by majority consensus to ask voters for a quarter-mill increase from the current 0.4-mill levy, to a 0.65-mill tax, though they haven't yet voted on official ballot language. Not every commissioner agreed, though.

"I want us to be as lean, and efficient as we can be," Charlevoix County's Commission on Aging director Jack Messer said.

Messer provided his annual report to commissioners, including how officials trimmed about $250,000 from last year's budget and finished the fiscal year about $57,000 under budget. The agency recently identified a three-pronged approach to bring expenses in line, including budget cuts, new fees for personal services and a possible tax increase.

Messer said he's got the operation down to bare bones.

"If you crunch the numbers, there's no extra here," he said.

County commissioners Ron Reinhardt, of Wilson Township, Shirlene Tripp, of Hayes Township, and Chris Christensen, of Boyne City, unabashedly supported asking voters for a 0.25-mill increase, as the agency's advisory board recommended, beyond the 0.195-mill increase Messer pitched.

Christensen said the difference is "negligible" and Tripp said she'd rather ask for the larger amount, reminding those there that the senior agency's recent public forum process revealed how seniors would rather the county ask for what's needed up front, rather than come back to voters in a year or two to ask for another bump up.

Commissioners Bob Drebenstedt, of Marion Township, and Rich Gillespie, of Beaver Island, said they prefer asking for a smaller increase. Gillespie said he worries about voter concerns if they ask for too high of a tax hike.

Joel Evans, board chairman from South Arm Township, said he would lean toward the lower request, but agreed to support the larger millage increase proposal going before voters at the polls.

"Either of these figures are justifiable," Evans said.

The statewide senior millage average is 0.7 mills.

Richard Fish, senior agency advisory board chairman, also spoke during the meeting. He said that despite the current tough economy, the agency remains financially viable.

County clerk Cheryl Potter Browe, said officials have until late May to finalize ballot language for the August election. She may soon have language prepared for the senior millage and some others, though commissioners must approve all that before it's put to voters.

"They might possibly be ready at the next meeting," Browe said.

The board's next regular meeting is set for April 11 in Charlevoix.

In addition, commissioners decided in a 5-1 vote to approve a one-year contract with Patrick Suboski to provide equalization services, following the recent retirement of Betsy Mason, that department's former director.

Suboski will receive a $45,000 payment to accept equalization responsibilities, something he's eligible to do because of a required certification level. He will be in Charlevoix County only one day per week and also contracts with several other counties in the same way, officials said.

Drebenstedt voted against the one-year contract because he wanted more negotiation with Suboski and worries one day per week isn't enough, he said.

"He gets to come in and decide what he will be paid," Drebenstedt said.

Kevin Shepard, the county's human resources coordinator, said just five people expressed interest during a three-month search for Mason's replacement and only Suboski submitted a proposal. It would annually cost upwards of $130,000 to hire a full-time equalization director, he said.

Both Shepard and commissioners discussed how the contract amount boils down to supply and demand for those legally qualified to fill the post.

"There's not very many of them in the state and Charlevoix County needs one," Reinhardt said.

Shepard said Mason earned an annual $54,000 salary, plus $20,000 worth of benefits when she retired. That means there is a $29,000 savings with this equalization contract, but the trade off is a five-day employee versus a one-day worker.

Judge May to retire in September

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

CHARLEVOIX — Judge Richard W. May, who has served as 90th District Court judge for Charlevoix and Emmet counties since 1995 announced today, Friday, his intent to retire effective Sept. 30.

Judge May was appointed by former Michigan Gov. John Engler in July of 1995 and took office in August of that year. He has since been re-elected for three additional six-year terms. His current term expires on Dec. 31, 2014.

In a press release issued shortly after 10 a.m. Friday, Judge May said he feels that now is the right time for him to retire from his position as district court judge.

In the release he noted that he and his wife have spent the last 15 years working in Haiti and Guatemala during short term mission trips and, while they are in good health, they would like to devote more time to working with disadvantaged people and communities.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed representing the citizens of Charlevoix and Emmet counties," Judge May said in the release. "My goal has been to efficiently and fairly resolve the cases that have been filed with district court. I have had great administrators, employees, sheriffs, police chiefs, county commissioners and attorneys to work with over those years. I will greatly miss working with these individuals. The cooperative effort of these individuals has made it possible for the district court to be a positive influence in our communities."

Judge May noted in the release that during his tenure, the 90th District Court has been the single busiest district court in Northern Michigan and among the 10 busiest among the 238 district judges in the state. He said his court has processed between and 11,000 and 15,000 cases every year.

He credited the efforts of his staff for the court's ability to process such a large number of cases without a backlog.

May

Judge May said he is announcing his retirement now to allow Gov. Rick Snyder "sufficient advance notice of his retirement so that the best qualified attorney can be appointed and take office by Oct. 1, 2012."

He added that he is willing to do everything he can to assist with a smooth transition when the new judge takes office.

Governer's office spokesman Ken Silfven said Friday afternoon that the governor's office will post the vacancy, accept applications and then work together with the State Bar Association of Michigan which will conduct the initial interviews and help vet candidates through background checks.

Based on the Michigan State Bar Association's work, the governor's office then decides which candidates get additional interviews for consideration.

Silfven said there is no mandated time frame to fill such a vacancy, but the governer's office strives to make them as quickly as possible.

Article VI, Section 23 of the Michigan Constitution read, in part, "The person appointed by the governor shall hold office until 12 noon of the first day of January next succeeding the first general election held after the vacancy occurs, at which election a successor shall be elected for the remainder of the unexpired term."

However, Silfven noted that since the cutoff for filing to run in this year's general election (May 1) will have passed when Judge May steps down, the person appointed to fill the vacancy will serve the remainder of the term which ends on Dec. 31, 2014.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema praised Judge May's efforts during his tenure as district judge. Jarema has been either county prosecutor or an assistant prosecutor for all but about three years of Judge May's tenure.

"He's done a fantastic job," Jarema said. "Instead of being reactive, I would consider him a proactive judge, trying to get to root cause of people's problems."

He added: "He treats people with dignity and respect. I think people respect him for that. He's a good guy and will be missed."

May was the Charlevoix County prosecutor when he was appointed to his judgeship. Jarema worked for May for two summers as an intern and then for a short time in a full-time capacity before May moved into the judge's position.

Emmet County Prosecutor Jim Linderman also praised Judge May's efforts.

"There's no doubt in my mind Judge May has been a very effective and fair judge," Linderman said.

Both prosecutors have filed to run for re-election to their current posts later this year, and both said Friday they haven't considered if they will throw their names into contention for appointment to the judgeship.

Unusual weather is no match for nature

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

It has been an unusual spring. Weather has been so unusual that we might well mark it and tell our grandchildren about it decades from now. One of the questions that occurs on such occasions is, "How do the plants and animals manage in such unlikely circumstances?"

Animals can move or migrate when conditions are something less than favorable. Plants are of more interest to me both professionally and personally.

How do they manage when conditions are so unusual? The plants that surround us can be classified into two groups: What are commonly called "native" plants — that is, those that have been here for a long time and manage without any help from us. The others are "introduced" plants: those that we brought here by accident or design, and that often cannot survive without our assistance.

What can be said with confidence about native plants is that each kind has been able to survive the most extreme conditions of the past many thousands of years. Imagine the most extreme spring of the past 5,000 years, or the driest drought of that same period. Or the coldest and most difficult winter of the same centuries. Each of those makes our somewhat unusual spring fade in importance. How have the plants survived?

Being perennial, or long-lived is one successful strategy. There are native plants in Michigan and other places that can manage to live completely below ground for several years. If the aboveground portions are frozen or dried to death, the plant survives in the soil and re-emerges when conditions are again favorable. An oak tree or a maple could lose all its young leaves in a very late frost, and eventually produce a new crop of them. The next year's buds are already formed within the buds emerging this year.

We are not likely to be happy with the complete loss of this year's cherry crop or apple crop when the flower buds freeze. But from the point of view of the tree, such a calamity is only a temporary setback in what is likely to be a long life.

For smaller, shorter-lived plants, the best strategy is variation. Unlike the plants we grow in gardens or flowerbeds, the native plants of any particular kind are not identical. Individuals that can adapt, survive to reproduce. And those that cannot are no longer with us. Trilliums are not all exactly alike in their response to harsh conditions, nor are milkweeds or any of the other thousand or so kinds of native plants we see around us.

For those concerned with alien, invasive plants, such unusual weather patterns can be a positive thing. Any plant not well adapted to our conditions, even the most unusual or rare conditions, is less likely to survive than are the long-selected natives. There is no cloud that does not have a silver lining.

Praise to natural selection and its sturdy products.

Finally, an important reminder. Ed Voss, the premier plant taxonomist of Michigan for more than 40 years, died Feb. 13. As close to an irreplaceable person as any I know.

Charlevoix's second channel bridge was constructed around 1864, a one-lift device about 16 feet above the water, a height not much different than that of today's bridge. The draw was wide enough for only one sailboat to pass. Just one cart at a time could negotiate the roadbed. Willard Smith, editor of the Charlevoix Sentinel newspaper, claimed the rickety structure "was a menace to life and limb." In 1869, two lifts were installed spanning 24 feet. All these lifts were raised by ropes threaded over pulleys atop poles and connected to winches, each manned by three men recruited off the street or out of the town's one saloon when bridge duty arose. Smith called the winches "miserable appliances." In late 1877 the scow schooner Hunter hit the bridge so hard she demolished half of it. By June 1878 Charlevoix's first metal and wood swing bridge was in place.

LOCAL Highlights

Robison murders topic of historical society program

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a program on the still-unsolved mystery of the shooting deaths of the Robison family at their vacation cottage near Good Hart in 1968.

The program will take place at the Depot, Depot Beach, at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, April 3. Hosting the program will be Dick Smith, Emmet County Prosecuting Attorney at the time of the tragedy, who titles himself "Last Man Standing," because he is possibly the last person alive who was at the scene when the bodies were discovered. Smith was interviewed by CNN in 1998 on the 30th anniversary of the crime. He will present his recollection of that day, and his perception of what happened from a prosecutor's viewpoint.

Light refreshments will be served. There is no admission charge, but support donations for the society appreciated. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

Library to offer investing workshops

The Charlevoix Public Library is offering two workshops to assist people in understanding the road to retirement in this complex financial world.

Your Retirement: Boom or Bust will be offered from 6:30–8 p.m., Tuesday, April 17. The program is organized to provide direction on how to control the management and oversight of your retirement assets. Participants will learn how to differentiate between assumptions about the future and actual knowledge and how to apply an "adaptive" investment strategy.

Then, from 6:30– 8:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 22, How to Invest in a Complex World will be presented. This presentation brings plain-English instruction on the principles, process, tools and tactics used to structure a purposeful and well-diversified portfolio that takes into account current economic trends. The session concludes with attendees participating in structuring a "real-world" portfolio based on a specific set of criteria.

These two sessions are provided free of any charge or sales pitch by the Michigan Office of Financial and Insurance Regulation. Register to reserve your spot by calling the library at (231) 237-7340.

Zonta seeking scholarship applications

Charlevoix Area Zonta Club is currently accepting applications for its annual Mary Feindt Memorial Scholarship, which awards a $500 scholarship to one female high school senior who will be attending college following graduation, and who plans to pursue a math or science-related major in college. The scholarship recipient will be chosen based on financial need and her involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields (excluding the fields of medical science and computer science) not on her grade point average or academic record.

To be considered for the scholarship, the student must complete the Mary Feindt Scholarship application, submit a written essay and provide two letters of recommendation from a math or science instructor which confirms the students' involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields.

Applications are available at the counselor's office at all Charlevoix County high schools or may be obtained by calling Maura A. Snabes at (231) 547-9969. The deadline for receiving applications is May 1, to the Charlevoix Area Zonta Club c/o Maura Snabes, Scholarship Committee Chairwoman, P.O. Box 633, Charlevoix, MI 49720. STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel (middle, facing right) talks to city council members and other city officials Monday prior to a test to see how proposed curb extensions at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets might affect truck turns.

Bump-out tryouts

City officials put downtown curb extensions to the test

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix City Council moved closer to a decision on whether it will move forward with a proposal to install curb extensions — also called bump-outs — at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets during a Clinton street infrastructure overhaul this summer.

Earlier this year, engineers working on preliminary plans for the road work suggested since the city would be working in the intersection anyway, it may wish to consider installing the curb extension as a means of expediting traffic flow and improving pedestrian safety during the busy summer months.

The rationale behind the plan is that if pedestrians have a shorter distance to cross at the intersection, not only will they be less exposed to hazards it also might allow a few more vehicles to make the left turn from eastbound Clinton Street to northbound Bridge Street.

Michigan Department of Transportation officials have given their tentative blessing to the plan, but several city council members have expressed concerns about the plans. The concerns have centered around two factors: The added cost and the impact the bump-outs might have on large vehicles, such as trucks making deliveries to the Beaver Island Boat Company, as they try to make turns at the intersection.

To help shed some light on the turning concerns, the city council convened a special work session meeting at the intersection Monday during which large vehicles made nearly every turn allowed at the intersection with markings on the pavement to indicate about where the bump-outs would be.

The vehicles used in the test were two city fire engines and a Way Transportation semi with a 53-foot flatbed trailer.

The fire trucks generally were able to negotiate the turns without impacting the areas where the bump-outs would be — although the right turn from eastbound Clinton to southbound Bridge was very tight.

The Way Transportation truck didn't fare as well on the right turns. Even with swinging out wide past the centerline before turning back right the trailer's back tires went several feet up on to the existing curb — especially in the turns on to and off of west Clinton Street.

However several among the roughly 20 people who gathered for the demonstration conceded that most of the trucks which drive to and from the Beaver Island Boat Company docks are shorter than 53 feet.

At the conclusion of the demonstration, city manager Rob Straebel asked the council members, if money was not a concern, would they support installing the curb extensions.

The general consensus: Yes.

Which leaves the question of cost.

Initial cost estimates placed the additional cost to construct the bump-outs at $30,000 to $35,000. Those estimates should be much firmer when the matter is back before the council for its consideration at its next regular meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 2.

On Wednesday city officials opened bids for multiple aspects of the work the city hopes to do on Clinton Street this summer. The council had previously said it would like the curb extension costs separated out so it could choose after the bid openings if it wishes to include them in the project.

Straebel said Wednesday that city staff will evaluate the bids and will likely bring a recommendation to Monday's meeting.

He also said that in recent discussions, Michigan Department of Transportation officials seemed willing to at least discuss the possibility to adjusting the timing of the traffic lights and pedestrian crossing signals at the intersection to help with traffic flow in the summer.

Cable project set to begin next week

Crews will replace an electric cable installed in 1962

A Consumers Energy project to replace an aging underway electric supply cable that connect's Charlevoix's north and south sides is set to begin next week.

The project to replace the 46,000 volt electric cable had been slated to take place late last fall, but a last-minute regulatory snafu and impending winter weather prompted Consumers officials to delay the project to the spring.

The cable runs approximately 4,300 feet on the bottom of Lake Charlevoix from an area near the Chicago Club on the north to Northwest Marine on the south.

The cable was originally installed in 1962. Testing has demonstrated that the cable is nearing its end of life and could fail in the future.

"While the original cable has served the area well and safely, it is time to replace it with a modern cable to avoid an unanticipated outage that could last several days and to also increase service reliability to the city of Charlevoix," said Jim Anderson, executive director of electric assets at Consumers Energy.

In a news release issued Wednesday, Consumers officials said employees from contractor Durocher Marine will use a barge to begin removing the old cable the first week in April. Cable removal is expected to take about a week. Following removal, the new cable will be installed along the same route and is planned to be trenched about six feet below the lake bottom. This work is expected to take about two weeks. The new cable is scheduled to be put into use in the middle of May.

In addition to increased electric service reliability to the city of Charlevoix, another benefit to the project is that the above ground electrical facilities at the Chicago Club will be replaced with below ground facilities, resulting in a much more visually pleasing shoreline.

While the work is ongoing the south side of the city of Charlevoix will be served from a temporary substation located at St. Mary's Cement Plant.

Consumers officials said during this time it is possible that residents and businesses on the south side of Charlevoix might experience an occasional light "flicker" due to large motors starting at the cement plant. Such events are expected to be minimal and may not occur at all.

"We are extremely grateful for the cooperation of St. Mary's and the city of Charlevoix for their help in coordinating and support of this complicated project," said Anderson.

The project is part of Consumers Energy's plan to invest $6.6 billion in its operations through 2016, making it the second-largest investor in the state, company officials said.

Consumers Energy, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy, provides natural gas and electricity to 6.8 million of Michigan's 10 million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

This Consumers Energy electrical equipment, located just east of the old railroad bed near U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix will soon disappear as crews move the equipment underground as part of an upcoming underwater transmission cable replacement project. As seen here, work on the land-based portion of the project has already begun.

State documents reveal Merriman case fees appeal back-and-forth

Shari McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Documents recently released by the Michigan Attorney General's Office under the state Freedom of Information Act show lawyers there did not intend to handle the financial aspect of a defense-filed appeal on a local 2008 murder case, something they repeatedly and clearly told Charlevoix County prosecutor John Jarema in writing.

Both state attorneys and Jarema thought the other would handle the appeal, and while they stayed busy sending the case file back-and-forth through the mail, they both missed a key filing deadline with the Michigan Court of Appeals. Missing that deadline may cost Charlevoix County taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars. Now officials wait to learn whether the Michigan Supreme Court will hear the case.

In early February, county commissioners publicly questioned who flubbed the appeal on the Charles Merriman murder case — not the criminal conviction itself — but the appeal filed on behalf of Petoskey-based attorneys Dan Hartman and Michael Atchison that would allow them to be paid for defending Merriman, which Hartman initially pitched as a pro bono task on his part. Atchison was the original defense attorney, and Hartman stepped in to assist.

The trouble is nobody from the county or state filed an appellate brief to support Charlevoix County Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas' decision that because Hartman failed to request payment until after the trial ended, he should not receive any money from public coffers.

Jarema told commissioners during a Feb. 8 board meeting that he believed it was up to the state attorney general's office to make that appellate argument. But by the time Jarema answered commissioners' questions, state appellate judges had already overturned Pajtas' order in January in a 2-1 split decision without ever reading the county's argument.

Court records show Hartman asked for approximately $53,000 in payment. Atchison requested an additional $14,000 in addition to payment under the standard consortium agreement as a defense attorney.

Michigan Court of Appeals judges tossed out Pajtas' ruling and said he abused his discretion when he denied Hartman payment for 710 hours of work in an extraordinary case. A jury convicted Merriman in 2008 of murdering his brother, Bill Merriman, after a 16-day trial believed to be the longest in Charlevoix County history.

Jarema told county commissioners on Feb. 8 that he supports Pajtas' position and again turned the case over to the state attorney general's office, adding that officials there "are supposed to file — this time — an application for leave (permission) to appeal to the Supreme Court."

(See Jarema's verbal explanation from that day in an online video at the Petoskey News-Review's website.)

> "I think that must have fallen through the cracks in the transition from one attorney general to another."
> — Bill Schuette, Michigan attorney general

However, letters to Jarema from then-Attorney General Mike Cox's office dated Sept. 23, and Dec. 1, 2010, definitively explained that state attorneys do not automatically handle this type of appeal, one that doesn't challenge the actual criminal conviction. The letters included the attorney general's protocol to determine which appellate cases they handle, which they don't, and how county prosecutors are meant to request assistance. That protocol includes a telephone call to the attorney general's office to confirm whether lawyers there will handle the case.

State attorney general's officials released the letters to the Petoskey News-Review after a state Freedom of Information Act request by the newspaper.

The documents show Jarema sent the case to the state the first time and officials there sent it back in September 2010 with an explanation that they don't handle this type of case. Jarema sent the file to the state again in November 2010 and state officials subsequently sent it back to Charlevoix County a second time in December 2010, this time with a more strongly worded explanation that they don't handle this type of case.

The Dec. 1, 2010, letter — sent precisely one month before it became current state Attorney General Bill Schuette's office — reads: "Pursuant to the protocol provided to all 56 county prosecutors, our office does not automatically handle applications for leave or delayed applications for leave — even if granted. It is a case-by-case basis. I have again attached the protocol. I have no record of our office's discussing the matter after the Court of Appeals granted leave. This is not the type of case that our office would take on a granted application. It appears to be heavily a factual issue involving county funding for indigent defense and not attacking the validity of the underlying conviction. We are returning the file via UPS Next Day Air. We will continue to handle your county's claims of appeal and remain open to discussing granted applications. I encourage your attorneys to contact our office before forwarding material to discuss whether our office will handle the case, to avoid any confusion."

Jarema said this week that he thought the state Court of Appeals had not yet agreed to hear the case when he received the Sept. 23 letter from the attorney general's office. By the time he received that office's second letter dated Dec. 1, appellate court officials had already contacted him in November to inform him that nobody filed a brief. That's when he sent the case file for a second time, Jarema said.

"I was under the impression when I received this letter (dated Sept. 23) that the delayed application for leave to appeal had not been granted and when I received notice that it had been granted, I would contact the Attorney General's Office per their instruction," Jarema said in a written response to questions.

Jarema explained that he didn't follow up with state attorneys about the case after sending the file to them the first time because it's not necessary.

"Once the file is prepared and shipped, we do not contact the Attorney General's Office to see if they are going to hit the deadline. They are the experts in handling criminal appeals which is why my office uses their services," Jarema wrote.

The two letters came from Joel McGormley, the attorney general's appellate division chief under both Cox and current attorney general Schuette. John Sellek, attorney general spokesman, said established protocol calls for this type of case to be handled by county prosecutors, such as Jarema.

"It's not typically the kind of case we handle. We usually handle criminal conviction appeals," Sellek said. "We did want to work with him (Jarema) and believe he's a great prosecutor. We are backing him now."

Schuette elaborated for himself, though he wasn't the state attorney general when all this started.

"John is a great prosecutor and I'm happy to work with him on this appeal and take it to the state Supreme Court," Schuette said last month.

But Schuette could not explain why his office didn't file the lacking brief to support Pajtas' decision when it went before the state Court of Appeals, like Jarema told commissioners should have happened.

"I think that must have fallen through the cracks in the transition from one attorney general to another," Schuette said.

In February this year, after the state Court of Appeals overturned Pajtas' ruling, Jarema sent the file to the state for at least the third time. On March 1, lawyers there filed an application for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court. Detroit-based Frank Eaman, appellate counsel for Merriman's defense attorneys, filed an opposition brief Friday last week.

Meanwhile, other prosecutors in Northern Michigan said they never would have thought the arguments against Hartman's requested payment would be a state responsibility.

"They used to handle all appeals," said Charles Koop, Antrim County prosecutor. "But unless you've made special arrangements with the attorney general's office, I don't believe they would handle the appeal of a case about how much a defense attorney should be paid. If the AG was going to handle that appeal, the prosecuting attorney would have to make arrangements with the AG as to why they should handle it."

However, state attorneys can always be counted on for opinions and input, Koop said, even if they don't handle the case themselves.

Chippewa County Prosecutor Brian Peppler said it all depends on what type of case is on the table.

"My understanding is and always has been that if it went to trial, generally they'll handle it. However, I think this is an ancillary issue and my understanding would be the AG's office would not handle it," Peppler said. "I think

The Great Lake Charlevoix Ice Out contest ended recently and there are six winners.

Each year the winner is whomever accurately guesses when a 100-pound rock with an atomic clock attached will fall through the ice on Lake Charlevoix near Boyne City. The annual event is sponsored by the Alano clubs of Boyne City and Charlevoix.

The winners are Suzanne Baccinski, Sue Wangeman, Don and Joanne Ziegler, John Looze and Greg Shepard. They will receive an equal share of the $1,000 prize — a $166.66 payout to each.

The annual contest didn't wrap without a hiccup, though. There was trouble on the water this year.

Unseasonably warm temperatures broke up the ice on Lake Charlevoix early and the rock drifted toward the shoreline on an ice floe. When it finally crashed through the ice, an equipment failure prevented the atomic clock from stopping.

It's a good thing contest organizers kept a close eye on the rock and knew from observations that it plunged into about three feet of water between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Wednesday, March 14. The contest ticket sales were set to continue through the next day, Thursday, March 15.

Organizers named this year's rock Rocky Balboa. Organizers named last year's rock J. Alfred Proofrock, which sank through the ice at 8:22 a.m. on April 10, 2011.

It pays to get good grades . . .

GRANTS

vocabulary needed, and how to teach it to a younger student. The eighth-grade science students experiment with the toys and prepare to teach younger students for three months. After spring break, we invite the elementary students up to enjoy a day with toys and learning. Before the students come to visit, I talk to the grade level teachers and we discuss what areas in science they would like to work on and I select the appropriate toys for that age level and subject area. Our goal is to see as many students as possible.

The generosity of the grants awarded has allowed me to not only continue but to also build this program. The main goal for this program is to be as hands-on as possible, unfortunately when hundreds of hands touch and play, toys do break and wear out. The foundation awarded a grant this fall to add new toys, but also to replace toys. It is beneficial for the eighth grade to explore and form ideas around the toys and then to be able to teach the science concepts to younger students as another way to reinforce those concepts.

I also received a grant this fall for new chemistry equipment. Much of the equipment I had in the lab was purchased and used since the 1970s. So, to upgrade that equipment was extremely beneficial.

This spring I received a grant to purchase materials to allow for hands-on application projects. Students are so creative when given the opportunity. I recently threw a challenge out to them to create a visual that demonstrates the rock cycle. The ideas the students came up with were so creative and original, unfortunately it became my supplies that limited their ideas. The grant just awarded to me will help build my supply base to cultivate their creativity and expand the hands-on approach to teaching science.

Gifts or deferred pledges over three years are accepted. Credit card and on-line giving options are also available. Any contributions should be made out to Charlevoix County Community Foundation and contain the words "Charlevoix Schools Foundation Fund" in the memo line. Additional information is available by calling (231) 536-2440 or www.c3f.org.

The foundation hopes to make its next round of grant awards in the fall of this year.

APPEAL

I would have called before I shipped anything down there."

To further complicate the issue, county commissioner Rich Gillespie, of Beaver Island, reported Jarema proposed an out-of-court settlement with Hartman when Gillespie and Jarema spoke in late January — rather than continuing to pursue an appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court — despite his public statements on Feb. 8 that he supported Pajtas' decision that Charlevoix County taxpayers should not have to foot Hartman's requested legal bill. The situation continues to raise questions, especially because Jarema wrote a letter of recommendation for Hartman in his unrelated bid to fill a prosecutor vacancy in neighboring Otsego County.

Gillespie said, "(A settlement) was of no interest to me. Mr. Hartman, according to what I've seen, said in writing that he was doing this on a pro bono basis, so it would violate the public trust. To protect the public trust from things such as this that can have an impact on taxpayer dollars, we have to toe the line. I think we should be toeing the line. Mr. Hartman first said he took the case because of its complexity and then later stated that it was very involved and took more time than he thought it should. Complexity, to me, means something is involved. I fail to understand the difference."

In his letter of recommendation submitted last month in Otsego County, Jarema complimented Hartman's handling of the Merriman case. The letter included Jarema's admiration of Hartman's preparedness for court and mastery of DNA evidence, along with other complicated scientific nuances.

"This trial was novel in the facts and included highly unusual circumstances since there wasn't a body, weapon or witnesses," Jarema wrote to the 46th Circuit Court in Gaylord.

Ron Reinhardt, county commissioner from Wilson Township, declined to comment on what the letters released by the state reveal, as did Chris Christensen, county commissioner from Boyne City. Both said they prefer not to publicly comment on pending legal matters that involve the county.

County commissioners Shirlene Tripp, of Hayes Township, Bob Drebenstedt of Marion Township, and Joel Evans, board chairman from South Arm Township, could not be reached for comments this week. Both Tripp and Drebenstedt attended an out-of-town conference.

Hartman previously said Eaman, appellate counsel for Merriman's defense attorneys, took on the case as part of a political effort to bridge the disparity between public prosecution and public defense spending in Michigan.

BOYNE CITY

Leadership class seeks volunteers in supporting free clinic

Members of the inaugural Leadership Charlevoix County class are helping to support the Boyne Area Free Clinic through a community service project and they need volunteers.

One of the project's objectives is to spruce up the clinic in Boyne City and a beautification event is scheduled there on April 28. The class will enlist help from local high school students to assist with the physical transformations, but also seek community support through in-kind donations for supplies such as paint, paint brushes and art work.

The class members are excited about all aspects of the service project.

"Our leadership class believes we chose a very deserving agency for our community project. We look forward to working with the clinic," said Jennifer Kenney, a leadership class participant.

The idea behind the event is to provide an inviting environment for the clinic's clients through updated paint, decorations and grounds.

"Our class is excited to get youth volunteers to work with us on improving the overall appearance of the clinic. It will be a very rewarding project for everyone involved," said Sara Kessler, another leadership class participant.

The Leadership Charlevoix County class includes 14 participants from the community. The program's purpose is to cultivate new, emerging leaders from the area, strengthen individual leadership abilities and create awareness of leadership opportunities in the community.

The program is a partnership among the Boyne Area, Charlevoix Area, East Jordan Area and Beaver Island chambers of commerce, as is funded through a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Part off the program's requirements is for the class to identify a community need and develop a project around that need. The Boyne Area Free Clinic provides free medical services to the uninsured and under-insured in the area who do not qualify for Medicaid or Medicare.

The class chose the clinic for its community service project because of the agency's support of the community. The class is helping with strategic initiatives, grant writing and the beautification project.

Class members will contact area schools to invite students to participate and also will continue to look for in-kind donations, including artwork to hang on the clinic walls.

Anyone interested in helping this effort is asked to call Sue Hocquard, a class participant, at (231) 675-6089.

vocabulary needed, and how to teach it to a younger student. The eighth-grade science students experiment with the toys and prepare to teach younger students for three months. After spring break, we invite the elementary students up to enjoy a day with toys and learning. Before the students come to visit, I talk to the grade level teachers and we discuss what areas in science they would like to work on and I select the appropriate toys for that age level and subject area. Our goal is to see as many students as possible.

The generosity of the grants awarded has allowed me to not only continue but to also build this program. The main goal for this program is to be as hands-on as possible, unfortunately when hundreds of hands touch and play, toys do break and wear out. The foundation awarded a grant this fall to add new toys, but also to replace toys. It is beneficial for the eighth grade to explore and form ideas around the toys and then to be able to teach the science concepts to younger students as another way to reinforce those concepts.

I also received a grant this fall for new chemistry equipment. Much of the equipment I had in the lab was purchased and used since the 1970s. So, to upgrade that equipment was extremely beneficial.

This spring I received a grant to purchase materials to allow for hands-on application projects. Students are so creative when given the opportunity. I recently threw a challenge out to them to create a visual that demonstrates the rock cycle. The ideas the students came up with were so creative and original, unfortunately it became my supplies that limited their ideas. The grant just awarded to me will help build my supply base to cultivate their creativity and expand the hands-on approach to teaching science."

Gifts or deferred pledges over three years are accepted. Credit card and on-line giving options are also available. Any contributions should be made out to Charlevoix County Community Foundation and contain the words "Charlevoix Schools Foundation Fund" in the memo line. Additional information is available by calling (231) 536-2440 or www.c3f.org.

For more information about investing in the Our Future ... Our Students campaign, contact committee members: Pam Barnes, Gaye Hodge, Sue Herzog, Angie Way, John Murray, Kriz Balasz, Julie Voci, Hugh Mason Judy Telgenhof and Betty Hoffman.

The foundation hopes to make its next round of grant awards in the fall of this year.

APPEAL

I would have called before I shipped anything down there."

To further complicate the issue, county commissioner Rich Gillespie, of Beaver Island, reported Jarema proposed an out-of-court settlement with Hartman when Gillespie and Jarema spoke in late January — rather than continuing to pursue an appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court — despite his public statements on Feb. 8 that he supported Pajtas' decision that Charlevoix County taxpayers should not have to foot Hartman's requested legal bill. The situation continues to raise questions, especially because Jarema wrote a letter of recommendation for Hartman in his unrelated bid to fill a prosecutor vacancy in neighboring Otsego County.

Gillespie said, "(A settlement) was of no interest to me. Mr. Hartman, according to what I've seen, said in writing that he was doing this on a pro bono basis, so it would violate the public trust. To protect the public trust from things such as this that can have an impact on taxpayer dollars, we have to toe the line. I think we should be toeing the line. Mr. Hartman first said he took the case because of its complexity and then later stated that it was very involved and took more time than he thought it should. Complexity, to me, means something is involved. I fail to understand the difference."

Visit charlevoixcourier.com to view related documents and video.

In his letter of recommendation submitted last month in Otsego County, Jarema complimented Hartman's handling of the Merriman case. The letter included Jarema's admiration of Hartman's preparedness for court and mastery of DNA evidence, along with other complicated scientific nuances.

"This trial was novel in the facts and included highly unusual circumstances since there wasn't a body, weapon or witnesses," Jarema wrote to the 46th Circuit Court in Gaylord.

Ron Reinhardt, county commissioner from Wilson Township, declined to comment on what the letters released by the state reveal, as did Chris Christensen, county commissioner from Boyne City. Both said they prefer not to publicly comment on pending legal matters that involve the county.

County commissioners Shirlene Tripp, of Hayes Township, Bob Drebenstedt of Marion Township, and Joel Evans, board chairman from South Arm Township could not be reached for comments this week. Both Tripp and Drebenstedt attended an out-of town conference.

Hartman previously said Eaman, appellate counsel for Merriman's defense attorneys, took on the case as part of a political effort to bridge the disparity between public prosecution and public defense spending in Michigan.

Leadership class seeks volunteers in supporting free clinic

Members of the inaugural Leadership Charlevoix County class are helping to support the Boyne Area Free Clinic through a community service project and they need volunteers.

One of the project's objectives is to spruce up the clinic in Boyne City and a beautification event is scheduled there on April 28. The class will enlist help from local high school students to assist with the physical transformations, but also seek community support through in-kind donations for supplies such as paint, paint brushes and art work.

The class members are excited about all aspects of the service project.

"Our leadership class believes we chose a very deserving agency for our community project. We look forward to working with the clinic," said Jennifer Kenney, a leadership class participant.

The idea behind the event is to provide an inviting environment for the clinic's clients through updated paint, decorations and grounds.

"Our class is excited to get youth volunteers to work with us on improving the overall appearance of the clinic. It will be a very rewarding project for everyone involved," said Sara Kessler, another leadership class participant.

The Leadership Charlevoix County class includes 14 participants from the community. The program's purpose is to cultivate new, emerging leaders from the area, strengthen individual leadership abilities and create awareness of leadership opportunities in the community.

The program is a partnership among the Boyne Area, Charlevoix Area, East Jordan Area and Beaver Island chambers of commerce, as is funded through a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

Part of the program's requirements is for the class to identify a community need and develop a project around that need. The Boyne Area Free Clinic provides free medical services to the uninsured and under-insured in the area who do not qualify for Medicaid or Medicare.

The class chose the clinic for its community service project because of the agency's support of the community. The class is helping with strategic initiatives, grant writing and the beautification project.

Class members will contact area schools to invite students to participate and also will continue to look for in-kind donations, including artwork to hang on the clinic walls.

Anyone interested in helping this effort is asked to call Sue Hocquard, a class participant, at (231) 675-6089.

BASEBALL PREVIEW

Experience counts

Veteran-laden Rayders poised for exciting season

This could be an exciting year for the Charlevoix Rayder varisty baseball team.

Head coach Allen Telgenhof did not lose a single starter to graduation and has six seniors return from last year's team.

Although the Rayders 10-20 over all and 5-9 in the Lake Michigan Conference for a sixth-place finish, the team saw improvement all season long and finished 6-4 in its final 10 games.

Two key players among those returning seniors are co-captains Coby Herriman and Andrew Potter

Herriman and Potter, both four-year starters, were voted co-most valuable players by their teammates and also received all-conference and all-district honors.

Herriman, in particular notched some big milestones on the mound last year setting the school record for strikeouts by a pitcher, both for a single season and for a career. He also threw his second no-hitter of his career, against Harbor Springs, last season. His first came during his sophomore year when he threw a no-hitter against Ellsworth.

From the plate, Potter led the regulars with a .295 batting average as well as in runs scored with 19. Herriman was second in average, hitting .256 and leading the team in RBIs with 11 and stolen bases with 16. On the mound, Herriman and Potter finished 1-2 in wins, innings, strikeouts and ERA.

Defensively, Telgenhof noted that Herriman will be moving to first base when he is not pitching this season. He previously played third base. Potter will anchor the infield at shortstop.

Other returning senior starters are leftfielder Isaac Klooster and all-conference honorable mention rightfielder Morgan Stewart.

Junior Tommy Zipp will be the cleanup hitter, centerfielder and number three pitcher. Sophomore Shane Sutherland will be the number four starting pitcher and will play shortstop, second and first. Junior Tag McCreadie will play second and will see action in the outfield and on the mound, Telgenhof said.

The catching duties will be handled by sophomore Luke Klinger. Freshman Will Telgenhof will be his backup and will play all over the field, as will sophomore J.J. Bottomley. Nate Moon, another freshman, will likely start at third base.

Also battling for playing time will be seniors Travis Rainey and Jesse Drost.

"We have a great mix, with plenty of four-year varsity players but a great influx of youth," Telgenhof said. "The new guys are very talented and versatile which is great. We are expecting big things this season, challenging for conference and district championships."

Another goal Telgenhof said he and his team have is to play in the Class C regional tournament which Charlevoix which will host.

"We have not won a district championship since 1988 and it's time for that streak to end. This group of seniors has worked very hard and now is the time for that work to pay off."

Telgenhoff said hopes his Rayders will one of the top teams in the league, along with Kalkaska, Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids.

"In my opinion, Coby and Andrew are the top 1-2 pitchers in the league, if not Northern Michigan, and that's a huge advantage," Telgenho said. "This is the hardest working group of baseball players that we have had. They are very serious about their business and they deserve to win this season."

He noted that both the varsity and junior varsity teams this year are benefitting from additional coaching of former professional baseball player, Mike Epping who has joined the Rayder coaching staff.

"I already see the impact that he has had on the players that he's had a chance to work with," Telgenhoff added.

The Rayder varsity squad opens its season on Friday, April 13 at Kalkaska. Game time is 4:30 p.m.

Haske's Gladiators fall in Class C final

EAST LANSING – Antuan Burks and Monte Moore sat together during the 2008 Class C Final and watched Flint Beecher come up just three points short of winning an MHSAA championship.

They agreed they'd be back to finish the job.

The Buccaneers gave it a run at the 2010 semifinals, and again last season. This winter, not only did they again play into the final weekend of the season – the Bucs put together arguably the best in the program's illustrious history.

Beecher capped a perfect season Saturday with a 74-60 win over Traverse City St. Francis in the Class C boys basketball state championship game at Breslin Center.

The title is the Bucs' first since winning Class B in 1987 – and made good on that middle school dream of its current varsity captains, Burks and Morris.

"We sat by each other here saying we're going to finish it," Burks said. "We're going to bring a championship home. We made history today."

Beecher finished 28-0, becoming the 12th team in state history to win that many in one season.

Beecher had established a reputation for its incredibly fast pace of place, and the Bucs got going quickly Saturday. They had six fast-break points and constantly pushed the tempo in taking a 23-9 lead after one quarter and 41-21 at halftime.

St. Francis, 25-3, didn't go quietly, though. The Gladiators cut the deficit to 12 with 2:10 to play in the third quarter, and multiple times seemed on the verge of making the game a lot closer.

Senior center Sean Sheldon finished with game highs of 22 points, 19 rebounds and six blocks, and senior point guard Devin Sheehy capped his high school career with eight assists.

"The style of game we play, I figured if we could be close at halftime, usually we make a second-half run," said second-year St. Francis coach Keith Haske. "I really thought in the second half we went to their level, really played some good basketball."

Morris led Beecher with 18 points, seven rebounds and six assists, and Burks had 16 rebounds and six assists.

St. Francis, which won the Lake Michigan Conference title, was playing in its first state final.

It was the fourth time Haske, who coached at Charlevoix for 13 years, has taken a team to a Class C state championship game.

He led the Charlevoix boys to the final in 2001 and '04, and the Charlevoix girls in '04. Each of his teams finished as the runner-up.

Chase Fairchild came off the nch to score 14 points to lead ockford, which was unranked finished 22-6.

"No one expected us to go all the way to the state championship game," Rockford junior guard Chad Carlson said. "We got here and played together as a team. It was a great season for us. We just couldn't get it done."

CLASS B

Lansing Sexton 67, Stevensville Lakeshore 32

The Big Reds completed one of the most dominating runs in state boys basketball history, putting the finishing touches on it with a memorable closing performance in the Class B title game.

In its third-straight championship game appearance, Sexton won its second-straight title, rolling past Stevensville Lakeshore.

The Big Reds finished 27-1. On its own, that's impressive enough. But consider:

Sexton's 74 wins over three seasons is tied for sixth-most in MHSAA history for that long of a stretch.

The Big Reds went undefeated as the only Class B team among all Class As in the Capital Area Activities Conference Blue, arguably the strongest league in the state this season.

They won all of their games by at least eight points, taking down Class A semifinalist Romulus, highly-ranked Lansing Eastern twice, Class A quarterfinalist Okemos twice, Class A reigning champion Kalamazoo Central, plus No. 4 Lansing Catholic and No. 3 Detroit Country Day during the postseason.

That only loss was by one, 81-80, to Detroit Pershing. The Doughboys were ranked No. 1 in Class A at the time.

The Big Reds finished off Lakeshore early, rattling off 14 straight points and ending the first half with a 20-2 run which made it 32-10 at halftime.

Mr. Basketball runner-up Denzel Valentine, who is headed to Michigan State, capped a four-year varsity career with 15 points, 11 rebounds and seven assists. He'll next suit up for Michigan State.

Senior Bryn Forbes, who has signed with Cleveland State, scored a game-high 19 points.

"That's one of the best high school basketball teams I've seen in the state of Michigan," Lakeshore coach Sean Schroeder said.

Lakeshore, 24-3, entered the tournament ranked No. 7 and was playing in its first MHSAA final. No Lancer scored more than six points.

CLASS D

Southfield Christian 76, Climax-Scotts 44

Two years ago, Southfield Christian won one game. A year ago, the Eagles were 11-10 and bowed in its district opener.

On Saturday, Southfield Christian won its first state championship, rolling past Climax-Scotts 76-44 in the Class D final.

Chris Dewberry scored 30 points, Lindsey Hunter III had 15, and Gavin Toma added 13 for Southfield Chrisitan, which finished 24-2.

The Eagles made 12 of their 26 3-point attempts (46 percent). Their dozen triples tied the 2007-08 Saginaw team for the most in title game history.

Dewberry hit six of those 3-pointers, and was 10 for 13 from the floor overall.

Southfield Christiun contained 6-7 juniors Malachi Satterlee and Aaron Cook to a combined nine points and six rebounds, and the Panthers to 21 percent shooting from the floor as a team. Senior Jacob Hinga had 11 points and eight rebounds to lead Climax-Scotts, which started three juniors, finished 26-2.

Readers' reward

Students at Charlevoix Elementary School logged up more than 110,000 hours of reading during the month of March as they took part in this year's March Into Reading event. Because this year's event had a Dr. Seuss theme the reward for the students this year was to see their principal, Doug Drenth go for a dip in Oobleck. Named for the sticky substance in Dr. Seuss' book "Bartholomew And The Oobleck," Oobleck is a highly viscous substance made with corn starch and water. On Wednesday, fourth grade teacher John Haan made a large vat of Oobleck for Drenth using 1,000 pounds of corn starch, water and a concrete mixer. When all was said and done, both Haan and Drenth went for an Oobleck bath and then were hosed off by members of the Charlevoix Township Fire Department.

LEFT: Paper Dr. Seuess-style hats line a hallway at Charlevoix Elementary School Wednesday. The hats mark reading time and other student accomplisments during the school's March Into Reading event. The students had to earn enough hats to ring the outside hall of the school to earn their prize of seeing their principal take a dunk in Oobleck.

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

For many people, juggling a family of four kids and a career as an elementary school teacher would offer plenty of running around.

Apparently, it's not enough for Charlevoix Elementary School second-grade teacher Nicole Sterrett who will be running in the Boston Marathon on April 16.

After qualifying for the Boston run by completing The Detroit Marathon in just under 3 hours, 34 minutes (well under the 3 hours 45 minute cut-off time for her age group), Sterrett made the decision to give it a try.

"I had actually qualified for Boston (last year) with my time at the Charlevoix Marathon also, but the (2011) race was full before I could get in," Sterrett noted.

Disappointed at missing the previous race, Sterrett made plans to get into the 2012 run right away. Runners are allowed to use their times in qualifying races for up to two years following completion, and both Detroit and Charlevoix's marathons are qualifiers.

"Having a qualifying run in both the 2010 and 2011 Charlevoix race gave me choices, and I plan to run in this year's (Charlevoix) race as well," Sterrett noted.

The Boston Marathon is sponsored by the city of Boston and takes place each year on Patriot's Day, the third Monday in April. Started in 1897, the Boston Marathon is the world's oldest annual marathon. The Boston Athletic Association hosts the event, attracting 500,000 spectators and more than 20,000 participants each year.

Nicole and her husband, Todd Sterrett, have four children ranging in ages from 4 to 10. Nicole said having a husband who supports her running is what allows her the time she needs to train and be ready for such a big race.

"With both of our careers, and the children, making the time to run each

Area's fruit trees affected by freeze

Morgan Sherburne
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Three weeks ago, farmers across Northern Michigan watched the hot weather, held their breath and hoped.

A week of 80 and above degree temperatures pushed crops five and six weeks ahead of schedule. But there was more than two months of temperatures ahead of them that could easily dip into the dangerous 20-degree range.

Of course, those temperatures came to pass. Just days after Northern Michigan's last day of 80-degree weather, on Sunday, March 18, the thermometer dipped to 25 degrees.

"We were definitely significantly impacted," said Richard Friske, owner of Friske Orchards in Charlevoix and Friske's Farm Market in Atwood.

By Friday, March 16, the blossoms on Friske's apricot trees had bloomed in full while his plum and tart cherry trees developed buds — five to six weeks ahead of schedule. But two days later, those blossoms were first nipped by that 25-degree low.

Mainly, fruit trees took the hardest hit by the cold temperatures, said Rob Sirrine, community food systems educator with the Michigan State University Extension in Leelanau County.

> "We have a long ways to go before we're out of the woods yet."

That Sunday's freeze stopped the apricot blossoms in their tracks. But the freeze did not kill all buds uniformly.

To find a good bud, Friske had to pinch off blossoms and look at their base to see if the tiny fruit — about the size of a push-pin head — was still green and alive.

"You could find one in ten or so, so that's good," he said. "To determine whether a bud is good or not, you have to destroy the fruit, so I quit checking ... The apricots were exceptionally overloaded, and so with the amount

Taking a channel swim could land you in jail

City council sets public hearing on swimming law

Steve Zucker

A group of young people swim off the end of the Pine River Channel's north pier as the Beaver Islander makes its way into the channel last summer. Although the swimmers pictured here are not technically in violation of the current "no swimming" ordinance, they would be in violation of the proposed revised ordinance.

Despite the record-setting high temperatures the area experienced in March, it'll likely be many more weeks before area waterways are warm enough for swimming.

But that won't keep the Charlevoix City Council from wading into a proposed ordinance amendment that would further restrict swimming in and around the Pine River Channel and dramatically increase penalties for violators.

On Monday the council voted to set a public hearing on the ordinance for its next regular semi-monthly meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 16.

Currently, the ordinance (Title IX, Chapter 118 of the Charlevoix City Code) prohibits swimming or wading in the channel from just east of the drawbridge to the north and south pierheads extending into Lake Michigan. Violators face a municipal civil infraction punishable by a fine of $50 for the first offense, $75 for the second in two years and $100 for the third or subsequent offense in two years.

The city council enacted the ban on swimming in the channel in 2007 amid concerns about boat traffic and dangerous currents.

However, the ordinance has done little to dissuade people — mainly teens and young adults from jumping from the piers on hot summer days. Often the situation turns into a game of cat-and-mouse between channel swimmers and police trying to enforce the ordinance.

The current ordinance also does not prohibit swimming beyond the ends or on the non-channel sides of the pierheads, further muddying the waters on enforcing the ordinance.

After four years, a close call between the Beaver Island ferry "The Emerald Isle" and a swimmer in the channel last summer prompted the council (at the behest of council member Jill Picha) to take a look at upping the ante on the swimming ordinance.

As proposed, the revised ordinance would add to the existing prohibition on "swimming or wading in the Pine River Channel:"

— Swim or wade within 15 feet of a (Pine River Channel) pier

— Dive from a (channel) pier

— Access the Pine River or Lake Michigan from a pier for the purpose of swimming or wading, or diving

The proposed ordinance also increases a violation of the ordinance from a municipal civil infraction to a misdemeanor offense punishable by up to a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

At Monday's meeting the council also approved an amendment to its 2008 lease agreement with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers regarding the city's use of the pier(s). The original lease included only the south pier and was done in large part in furtherance of efforts to preserve the lighthouse. The amendment essentially gives the city the authority to enforce the new ordinance, should it be enacted.

Following the public hearing at the April 16 meeting the council could take action to enact the proposed ordinance, or postpone consideration to a later date. If approved by the city council, the ordinance would take effect 30 days following the approval vote.

Lions Club to help promote organ donation

On Wednesday, April 11 the Michigan Secretary of State offices are joining with the agency's partners at Gift of Life and the Michigan Eye Bank to encourage residents to get a heart (on their driver's license) by adding their name to the Michigan Organ Donor Registry.

Locally on that day, the Charlevoix Lions Club is joining with the Michigan Secretary of State office, located on M-66 in Charlevoix, to promote National Donate Life Month. Lions Club members will be on hand at the Charlevoix office that day to help bring awareness to the effort.

Event organizers said one donor can bring the gift of sight, life, and mobility to nearly 50 people. All people are eligible to sign up, regardless of age or medical condition. Everyone is evaluated at the time of death based on the needs at that time.

Anyone who wishes to sign up for the Michigan Organ Donor Registry program may do so year-around, at any Michigan Secretary of State office. Residents may also sign up by accessing any of three websites: MichiganEyeBank.org, GiftOfLifeMichigan.org, or Michigan.gov/sos. Then click on the sign-up link.

The registry is confidential and is maintained and accessed by Gift of Life Michigan to assist hospitals in the recovery and transplantation of organs and tissues. There is no cost to the donor or the donor's family.

Charlevoix Knights' Cash Raffle Party set for April 21

Organizers of the Charlevoix Knights of Columbus' annual Cash Raffle Party are promising even more fun at this year's 36th annual event as they continue to hone the popular fundraiser for maximum enjoyment for attendees.

The event offers 26 cash prizes in varying amounts totaling more than $14,750 awarded through random drawings throughout the party.

This year's party is set for 6-11:30 p.m. on Saturday, April 21, in Castle Farms' Knights East Garden.

Tickets are $150 each. Each ticket admits two adults and includes all food, entertainment and a beverage allowance.

Music will again be provided by Steve Larson of Disc-O-Nection from 6:30-11:30 p.m.

The meal will again be catered by a Matter of Taste, which will serve an array of gourmet foods from 6:30-10 p.m.

Refreshments will be served at two mixed cocktail bars and a beer/wine bar from 6-11 p.m.

Knights of Columbus member Steve Seely explained that the raffle again will be broken down into 26 cash prizes including 20 $250 prizes and fifth through first place prizes of $500, $750, $1,000, $2,000 and $5,000, respectively.

Seely said event organizers have been tweaking the event's prize distribution format and drawing process in recent years in an effort to continually improve the party experience.

He said the biggest change this year will be that winners for the random $250 prizes will be drawn as winning tickets and not as part of a "drawdown elimination." He said "drawdowns will now only be done for the five major prizes.

Ticket holders need not be present to win. Four 50/50 drawings will also be offered during the party.

Seely noted that proceeds from the event are the major source of funding for the Knights of Columbus' support for many youth and other activities in the community throughout the year. In 2011 the organization supported more than 22 area programs with cash proceeds from this party.

Tickets may be purchased by contacting Seely at (231) 499-3674, Ed Linse at (231) 547-4526, Gabe Campbell at (231) 547-9739, or John Haggard at (231) 547-4046, Roger Nesburg at (231) 547-5111 or Paul Hoelderle at (231) 547-6127.

That's the way the email bounces

Steve Zucker
Courier editor

[illegible]trary to what the Internet [illegible] may have some people [illegible]ing, I have not been de[illegible] from existence.

[illegible] just my old email ad[illegible] that has, with a couple [illegible] keystrokes and/or mouse [illegible] been eliminated.

You see, recently, because [illegible] company-wide [illegible] that have taken place [illegible] email system, the email [illegible] from my former life [illegible] Petoskey News-Review [illegible] member — szucker@[illegible]skeynews.com — has [illegible] deleted, rubbed out, [illegible] zipped. What[illegible] to call it, it's gone. It [illegible] even forward to my new [illegible] addresses anymore.

Messages sent [illegible] now [illegible] are returned to send[illegible] [illegible] with me. I know [illegible] you are.

This turn of events has already, and I suspect will for weeks to come, cause some problems for folks trying to send things to me.

I must confess that I am partly to blame for the problem. When I first started in the editor's chair here nearly two years ago, it was originally supposed to be on an "interim" assignment.

When interim became permanent, I never bothered to change the settings in my email program to make the return address reflect my new position. Frankly, I didn't think it would ever matter.

It would appear I was wrong.

So, here's the important part of this column. If you would like to send an email to me, the correct addresses that will get your message to my inbox are szucker@charlevoixcourier.com or news@charlevoixcourier.com. Either one works equally well.

I apologize to any of you who may have had trouble with this issue recently. Hopefully the problem will resolve itself as time passes and more folks get the word.

Changing an email address, especially after nearly 15 years with one company can be a tricky thing. On the plus side, I get far fewer duplicate emails. However, the downside — besides the frustrated people trying to send me legitimate email messages — is the huge quantities of junk mail I'm getting now that previously was filtered out. Zapping them from my inbox has become something like a game of Missile Command. (That was a video game from the 1980s for any teens or 20-somethings reading this column — long before there was such a thing as email. Instead I called my friends on a rotary-dial phone by dialing only the last five digits of the phone number ... uphill ... both ways.)

As always, thanks for your continued support.

Relationships: Let's (not) talk about it

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

She says, "Dear, I'd [illegible] to talk about our relationship."

He picks up the [illegible], quickly turns off the TV, [illegible] her his undivided attention and replies, "I'm all ears. I love our little talks."

OK this is the adult version of make believe.

Yes we women like to fix relationships and improve communication, but truly this is a woman thing not a man thing. Most men get defensive or impatient when it comes to talking. His not talking doesn't mean his not wanting to improve a relationship. It's the fact that women like to talk because it makes them feel better. Men don't feel the same about conversation, so this feeling of wanting a connection on the woman's part turns into a silence that's so quiet even a housefly can be heard scratching its hind legs.

This type of distancing occurs in most, if not all of the couples I meet in life and at work. In the real world a surprising number of men want a deeper emotional connection. They also want to regain feelings of love and wonderment they experienced when you first met. They just don't want to talk about it. On a positive note most men regard their partner as their best friend. Even though we see in movies and read in novels that men have roving eyes, most men are satisfied with their partner. They want to be part of your life but are uncomfortable with being the one responsible for any change. Women being from another planet according to John Gray author of "Men are from Mars, Women are from Venus," feel differently.

When it seems like a wall exists between you and your partner and irritability is frequent, maybe it's time not to talk, but to act instead. Though we usually blame each other, and add to this finances or kid what we should be doing is looking to selves and what fuel we may be pouring onto this relationship.

Generally men feel inadequate when corrected, just like women do. Men cover this feeling of inadequacy with impatience and anger. So, if you feel, as a woman, you are trying to improve things by telling him what you think he's not doing right, he's hearing that he is not meeting your expectations. He may feel that he is not your guardian and protector, which is what he signed on for. When women hear anger from their spouses, their minds go to fear of being isolated and being shut out.

Men do not understand that angry voices are their own way to protect themselves. What anger actually does is push her further away and into more isolation.

Men want to feel like good providers and not like wimps; a reason most do not ask for directions or will ask a woman to schedule the doctor and dentist appointments. When a woman is struggling emotionally, she wants closeness with her man. When a man is struggling emotionally, he is likely to get into a fight with someone or want to be left alone.

Biologically we are designed so differently, not just in looks, but in the wiring of our brains. I am not trying to get all Freudian, but I can see from experience that girls get comforted quickly when they cry and boys are often rejected for doing the same. So even as a young child women have learned to expose that they are vulnerable and men to cover it up.

When each person in the relationship is feeling the other is inconsiderate, what we claim as an insensitive remark is a knee-jerk reaction. Couples often make the mistake that their comment is superior or correct when both are correct and both should be respected. Oftentimes underlying anger by either party may be undiagnosed depression. Understand that depression often shows its face as anger, irritability, anxiety, insecurity, procrastination, over eating and over spending. Also know that depression is treatable and, according to Dr. Steven Stosny, author and psychologist, "Anger is depression turned outward." So, if you feel you need help seek it.

In the meantime, if your marriage is fair to well, it helps to let your spouse know they are appreciated for what they do to help in the marriage and in the household. Find an activity to do together you both can enjoy. Acknowledge that you both have dreams and be certain not to squelch them. Realize actions speak louder than words and that once in a while silence can be golden.

Health officials urge cancer screening

Dear Editor,

America is making progress in the fight against colorectal cancer. However, it still remains the second leading cause of cancer death. According to the Michigan Cancer Consortium, during 2010, 5,170 Michigan men and women were diagnosed with colorectal cancer and 1,740 people died from colorectal cancer. The good news is that colorectal cancer is one of only a few cancers that can actually be prevented through the use of regular screening tests.

Screening saves lives. I urge our community to become more aware of the need to get screened for colorectal cancer. Unfortunately, nearly half of Americans are not getting the recommended screenings they need. Many deaths expected from colorectal cancer this year could be avoided with wider use of proven screening tests. In an effort to help this situation, the Health Department is offering free colorectal cancer home screening kits to men and women age 50-64 who meet certain income requirements. To learn more about free screening test kits available to eligible individuals, call the Health Department at 1-800-432-4121.

WRC says thank-you for support

Dear Editor,

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan appreciates the support of Scott Roggenbeck, owner of Save-A-Lot in East Jordan.

Scott has been donating $20 gift cards to be given away in monthly random drawings for families attending our free community play group in East Jordan. The gift cards allow families to purchase groceries and gas at Save-A-Lot.He also donated $40 in gift cards to help cover playgroup expenses in purchasing needed items for making a year's worth of homemade play dough, as well as craft items and other playgroup supplies.

East Jordan playgroup leader, Kate Essenberg, describes Scott as a "go-getter with a big heart." His support of the center's community playgroups shows he really cares about families and is passionate about helping families stretch their food dollars as far as possible.

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan thanks Scott for his contributions.

BUSINESS

Grand Bay Marine relocates and expands

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Grand Bay Marine in Charlevoix is moving locations. Seen here are sales and service members, and their families.

For more than a dozen years Grand Bay Marine has been serving the needs of boat owners and enthusiasts in the Charlevoix area.

Grand Bay Marine has announced its planned expansion and move to its newly acquired location in the former ProBuild lumber property in Charlevoix.

"We are very excited to be expanding into our new location, giving us one of Northern Michigan's largest indoor showrooms," said Liz Carney, owner and president.

Grand Bay Marine has completely renovated the former ProBuild lumber property, which was vacant for years. The three-building facility will allow Grand Bay Marine to expand its parts, service and storage business.

"We feel so fortunate to be in this community," said Carney. "This is a great step toward our long-term goals."

Carney began her career in the boating industry more than 25 years ago in central Michigan. When the opportunity to open a retail boat business in Traverse City opened up, she took it and began Grand Bay Marine.

"I commuted for several years while the business grew, until eventually we decided to make the move north permanently," Carney noted. She and her husband, Kevin, have lived in the Traverse City area since, raising their five children and growing the business.

After a few years of success in the Traverse City market, Carney opened the second location in Charlevoix. They were able to lease a property along U.S. 31 where the business currently is. Now, celebrating its 15th anniversary this year, Grand Bay Marine is Regal Boat's third largest dealer in the world and Northern Michigan's largest dealer for Correct Craft's Nautique Boats, Stingray Boats and Berkshire Pontoons.

With their new location, and the extra large showroom, they will be able to display more boats indoors for year-round business. The goal is to have up to 15 new boats on display in the more than 41,500 square feet of space.

"We definitely will be expanding our boat line, showcasing some larger boats and several new pontoon styles," Carney noted.

"Grand Bay Marine offers a wide selection of everything a new or long-time boating enthusiast needs," she added.

Carney attributed the business' success to high levels of customer service and going the extra mile with their customers. Things they offer, such as training for first-time boat owners with their new boat in the water, are what she feels sets them apart.

"We really want to be considered the place to go for a one-stop shopping experience," she said.

The all new Grand Bay Marine will officially open for business on Saturday, April 7. On Memorial Day weekend they will host a grand opening event, with special sales and other offers.

"We plan on having everything from boat rides and demos to prize giveaways, food and beverages," Carney said.

Grand Bay Marine's new location is 6472 M-66 North in Charlevoix. Hours are 9 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Sunday.

OBITUARIES

Arthur Roy Ranger III, 52

Arthur Roy Ranger III, 52, of Big Rapids and formerly of Charlevoix died Friday, March 30, 2012.

He was born on April 10, 1959, at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, Texas, the son of Arthur A. and Patricia (Ratigan) Ranger. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1977. He received his bachelor of science degree in land surveying in 1981 from Ferris State College. He married Beth Ward on June 6, 1981, in Big Rapids.

Upon graduation, Art was employed by Wightman & Associates in St. Joseph, Mich., until he received his professional license in 1985. They moved to Charlevoix where Art worked in his father's company, Ranger Engineering. In 1994, Art started Ranger & Associates, Inc., a stand-alone land surveying business. Art was a longtime member of the Michigan Society of Professional Surveyors. He was first and foremost a surveyor and an avid outdoorsman who loved hunting and fishing.

Art is survived by his wife, Beth Ranger of Big Rapids; his parents, Alvin and Patsy Ranger of Charlevoix ; sister, Corinne (Paul) Vita of Saratoga, Calif. and their children, Jonathan and Julia; two brothers, Robert (Lisa) Ranger of Midland and their children, Scott and Alissa, and William (Amy) Ranger of Traverse City and their children, Max, Emma and Isabelle; and special nieces "daughters," Emily, Leslie, Laura and Elizabeth, who shared their lives with Art and Beth at various times.

A private, family-only memorial service will take place. Memorial contributions may be directed to Little Traverse Conservancy or donor's choice.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

LOOKING BACK…

In 1923, realtor Earl Young was hired by the Bartholomew family to plat their 37.5-acre plot of land west of town on the Lake Michigan shore for an intended 85-lot upscale resort colony. But family matters intervened in 1924 and Earl ended up buying them out. He developed the land himself, now called just Boulder Park. The first houses appeared about three years later. In 1928 he began Boulder Manor and Charlevoix's collective jaw dropped. Few people knew Earl had been collecting and hiding huge "glacial erratic" boulders from all over the tip of the mitt and the Upper Peninsula for this project. He got the stone-work finished and the upper floor roughed in, as seen here, when the Great Depression hit in late 1929. He lost the Manor to the bank, never knowing if he would ever get it back. But he succeeded in doing so in December of 1937. The bulky weatherbeaten shell was described as "not finished, in poor condition, with no finished rooms, no plumbing, and unfinished roofing." This was remedied in 1938. Earl finished Boulder Manor the following year — then and still one of the most astonishing buildings in Northern Michigan.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." The disc is available at the Society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State St. next to the Congregational Church, from 1-4 p.m.Thursday-Saturday. It is also available at the Central Drug Store, Round Lake Books, Castle Farms, and Ell-Air Gallery. Call (231) 547-0373 for mailing and society membership information.

Electrifying work

Crews from Durocher Marine use a barge to remove an old 46,000-volt electric cable from the bottom of Lake Charlevoix Tuesday. The work is the first phase of a Consumers Energy project to replace the electric cable which connects the north and south sides of Charlevoix. Cable removal is expected to take about a week. Following removal, a new cable will be installed along the same route from near U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix to near Northwest Marina. The new cable is expected to be trenched about six feet below the lake bottom and is scheduled to be put into use in the middle of May.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

An Easter message from Bishop Bernard A. Hebda

Bishop Hebda

As a result of an accident in Rome and a full cast on my leg, the last six weeks have found me largely homebound, identifying with Jimmy Stewart in Alfred Hitchcock's "Rear Window." While trying to fulfill my role as Bishop as best I could from home, I nonetheless found myself repeatedly gazing out the window at the "back 40," giving me a new familiarity with the work of our Creator here in Gaylord. As Providence would have it, I have had a front row seat as an icy and barren tableau has been transformed into a three-dimensional masterpiece teeming with life waking up after a long winter. The days are longer, the skies are brighter, and all of creation seems to be at its best.

What a blessing for me that the transition so closely paralleled our liturgical journey through Lent to Easter. The connection is no accident. As Pope Benedict XVI noted last Easter, "Just as the sun's rays in springtime cause the buds on the branches of the trees to sprout and open up, so the radiance that streams forth from Christ's resurrection gives strength and meaning to every human hope, to every expectation, wish and plan." In that context, our pilgrimage through Lent to Easter serves as our annual reminder of our need for the new life that Jesus alone can offer as He awakens us from the sleep of sin and death. From St. Paul to John Paul, from Ephesus to Onekama, our Easter celebrations sing forth: Awake, o sleeper, arise from the dead, and Christ will bring you light. In the Roman Catholic tradition, those who gather for the Office of Readings on Holy Saturday morning hear the words of that ancient hymn in the context of a magnificent 4th century Easter homily describing the joyful reunion between Adam and his Savior: that long-awaited moment when the Risen Christ, the New Adam, brings light and life to the old: I order you, o sleeper, to awake. I did not create you to be held a prisoner in hell ... Rise up, work of my hands, you who were created in my image ... the banquet is ready ... the treasure house of all good things lies open. The kingdom of heaven has been prepared for you from all eternity.

From those of us who claim to be followers of Christ, a skeptical world weighed down by recession and relativism is awaiting a response that might give credibility to that proclamation. How can the life of a believer not radiate with joy at such good news? How can we doubt the value of a human life, no matter how defenseless, when we're reminded of all that Christ, seeing our potential, did to restore life and to save it from the clutches of sin and death? How can we not wipe the sand out of our sleepy eyes and allow the light of Christ to lead us to lives of deeper love, greater generosity toward those in need and renewed forgiveness for those who have hurt us?

As a Catholic, I have always been grateful that the Church gives us a whole octave of days to celebrate the Easter victory and a whole season — the 50 days leading up to Pentecost — to consider and explore the ways in which we might allow the Easter mystery to penetrate and transform our lives. Let us use this time of lengthening days and rising temperatures to remind us of Christ's Easter victory over death and darkness so that we might share the Light of Christ with all of our brothers and sisters, humbly but convincingly proclaiming with our very lives that Christ is risen! He is truly risen!

The Diocese of Gaylord encompasses the entire region of the 21 most northern counties of Michigan's lower peninsula with 80 Catholic churches and 17 Catholic schools. www.dioceseofgaylord.org.

Easter egg safety tips offered

Many Michigan families celebrate Easter by decorating eggs and hosting Easter egg hunts. The Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development recommends following these quick handling tips to ensure a safe Easter holiday and meal:

— Purchase eggs from refrigerated cases

— Check egg cartons before buying; do not buy cracked eggs.

— Separate eggs and foods from raw meat, seafood and poultry in grocery carts and in your refrigerator

— Wash hands for in warm, soapy water for at least 20 seconds before and after each step of preparation from cooking to hiding.

— Keep hard-boiled eggs, peeled or in the shell, in the refrigerator below 40 degrees Fahrenheit for no more than one week and store eggs in the refrigerator, not in the door.

— Cook two sets of eggs, one to eat and one for the Easter egg hunt which should be discarded.

For more information about food safety and proper food handling, visit www.michigan.gov/foodsafety or contact your local Michigan State University Extension agent.

Officials offer water safety classes

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool is offering a boating safety and personal water safety class for individuals and families. This class will be offered from 6-8 p.m. on Thursday, April 19 and again 4-6 p.m. on Saturday, April 21. Course content will include boating safety information and skills as well as personal water safety as it relates to activities in and around pools and lakes. During the class individuals are encouraged to participate in real-life simulations that will teach them how to be safe as well as how to respond to life threatening situations. Therefore, participants are asked to bring their personal floatation devices (life jackets), swim-suits as well as a change of clothes and shoes.

This class is designed to help individuals (young and old) avoid accidents that can occur in and around the water as well as how to respond to such situations. Summer time is a busy time on the water for many families and individuals. This program promotes the use of personal floatation devicess but will also teach individuals how to respond should they be in a situation where they find themselves in the water without the assistance of a PFD (for example, fly-fishing, unexpected slip and falls into the water, etc.).

Retired U.S. Coast Guard Commander David Smith, author of the book "Water Rescue," and now living part-time in Charlevoix, has designed this program so that it is relevant for individuals and families who participate in recreational water activities.

"Approximately 4,500 people drown annually. A number of these fatal instances could be avoided if the proper safety measures were taken," Smith said. He also noted that the average time for a child to drown is 20 seconds and the average length of boat involved in a fatal accident is less than 16 feet. The emphasis of the class is on keeping people safe while they enjoy all that lakes and pools have to offer.

The fee for the class is $15 for an individual and $25 for a family. Participants are encouraged to get in the water but it is not required. The class is limited to 30 people per session. For more information or to register, call Al Gooch at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, at (231) 547-0982. For more information regarding pool programs and services visit www.charlevoixpool.org.

day would be impossible without his support," she said.

Sterrett runs every day that she's able, following a training program designed to prepare her for marathon runs. During a 16 week period she runs anywhere from 8 to 9 miles each day, plus a long run of up to 22 miles one day a week.

She said training for this marathon has been more difficult than getting ready for past marathons because of its timing earlier in the year.

Because the Boston race takes place in April, she had to start training in early January. That meant running on the treadmill, and in the cold and dark. She even slipped and fell a couple times in the process.

"It can be tough sometimes," she said. "Sometimes I'm running in bad weather, or in the dark and cold when you really don't want to be out there."

Sterrett is a lifelong resident of Northern Michigan, having grown up in the Petoskey area before going off to college at Grand Valley State University near Grand Rapids. After meeting and marrying her husband, the couple initially moved back up north when Nicole took a position in the Boyne Falls school system. A few years later they relocated to Charlevoix when she took a teaching position here.

Although Sterrett has always been an active person, in sports and life in general, she has not been a long-time runner. Starting out with walking, over time she decided to pick up the pace a little and grew into short runs.

"I had just had my second child, and really was just trying to get back in shape and maintain my health at first," she noted.

After a while, her friends encouraged her to try running in one of the area's 5K-style events, which she did and found she enjoyed.

"I think anyone can get out and walk or run if they want to," Sterrett said. "The key is to start slow, at your own pace and then build up to whatever level you want to be at."

For her, the passion for running caught on and soon led her to her first marathon run. Starting with a half marathon in the Charlevoix race, her desire to run competitively continued to grow and led her to the Detroit Marathon.

For Sterrett, the Boston Marathon is the pinnacle of races to be involved in and complete. Although she has run the length of the Boston run many times, one of her goals is to simply complete the marathon.

"I would also like to break three and a half hours overall" she said. "My main goal is to get out and have fun though" she added.

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

LEFT: Charlevoix's Nicole Sterrett runs on a section of the Little Traverse Wheelway near Big Rock Point — one of her favorite routes to run in preparation for the upcoming Boston Marathon.

Sterrett said she has talked about the upcoming race with her students, who at first didn't really have a concept of just how far 26.2 miles is.

"I had one student say, 'I hope you win first place,' and then another one, who had a better understanding of the race said, 'I hope you win 36th place.'"

She said she's used the race to talk with the students not only about the race and where she will be going, but also about physical fitness and working hard toward your goals.

Sterrett said she's also taken encouragement and a few pointers from elementary school principal Doug Drenth, who ran the Boston Marathon a few years ago himself.

"He's been very supportive," Sterrett said.

The Sterretts will be going to Boston as a family, spending the weekend enjoying the area before the run and returning afterwards.

Sterrett said running is something she will probably always do now, because she enjoys it so much. Her future plans are to try something new, such as a triathlon, as well as continuing to run in races.

"This year I'm going to run the half marathon in Charlevoix with a friend who's running it for the first time, kind of as a coach" Sterrett said.

of blossoms we had on those trees, we could end up with a halfway decent crop."

Even if the cold weather doesn't freeze blossoms, it could prevent those blossoms from becoming pollinated. It has been too cold for bees to fly, said Friske.

In the roughest shape are Friske's tart cherries, as well as the tart cherries of growers in the Grand Traverse area.

"The tarts got pretty nailed, especially in Leelanau County. One of the bigger growers I've talked to has lost upwards of 90 percent of their tarts," said Sirrine. "No buds, no fruit. If (frost) takes out 30 percent (of blossoms), growers can still potentially produce a full crop. But when you get up to 90 percent, that's a huge hit."

Farther south, fewer farmers were affected, said Sirrine, and across the counties, apples and sweet cherries are in better shape because they develop later than apricots and tart cherries.

Friske's apples, his main crop, were also at a less-developed stage. He hopes they were not affected by the recent cold temperatures. But farmers still have nearly two months before the end of May, when they consider themselves to be beyond the danger of a freeze.

"Any one cold night can really change things," Friske said. "We have a long ways to go before we're out of the woods yet."

MORGAN SHERBURNE/NEWS-REVIEW

Richard Friske, owner of Friske Orchards in Charlevoix, estimates one in 10 apricot blossoms may still produce fruit after the recent cold snap, which followed mid-March's 80-degree weather. Temperatures have also been too cool for bees to fly, making Friske wonder if the remaining blossoms have been pollinated.

Season previews

Rayders looking for returns

The Charlevoix Rayder girls tennis team members have worked to build strength and endurance in the off season in an effort to improve upon their 4-8 record from last year.

"The girls have already set their goal to make a run deep into regional play," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "We will be led by a very strong singles group."

Senior Kelsey Way, who went 7-7 last year, will lead the Rayders singles lineup at the No. 1 position.

"Kelsey Way is a strong athlete," Randall said. "She looks very confident on the court and I really see her breaking out this year."

Sophomore Madi Carey and junior Kelsea Stevens will play at No. 2 and No. 3 singles, respectively.

Randall noted that Carey played doubles as a freshman last year but through the summer she worked on her play for a singles game.

"She really shows a lot of power and really plays well with more experienced players," Randall said.

Stevens played No. 4 singles last year and also did a lot of work over the summer to improve her game, Randall noted.

"The quality of her stroke and confidence have really made her play a lot more dynamic ... Both of these girls have a strong serve. They are focused and determined coming into the season," she said.

Sophomore Lexie Barnes is in her first year playing tennis and will be playing No. 4 singles.

"She has a lot of charisma for the game and brings a lot of athleticism to the court," Randall said. "As we work on her strategy for the game, she will really enjoy her season."

At No. 1 doubles will be sophomore Emily Roloff and junior Cassidy Peebles.

"We were forced to make some changes due to injury and these girls will step up to the challenge," Randall said. "Both are very strong and assertive at the net."

Peebles is returning to No. 1 doubles as a junior, Roloff while played No. 2 doubles last year.

"The girls feed off of each other in their excitement and intensity play this flight," Randall said.

Mallory Murray and Taylor Markgraf will play No. 2 singles. Murray is a returning sophomore who played No. 2 doubles last year while Markgraf is a junior who played as a freshman.

"(Murray) has brought a love for the doubles game and is really working on her form and strategy," Randall said. "(Markgraf) has worked on the consistency of her game and stroke."

Shelby Isaac, Carley Scholey, Ashley Louiselle and Erin Stebe will round out the doubles flights.

"I believe their commitment is strong and we are working the strategy and serving strategies," Randall said.

Randall expects the Rayders to be challenged in Lake Michigan Conference play by Harbor Springs and Traverse City St. Francis and in non-league matches with the likes of T.C. Christian.

"We are fortunate this year with a full schedule," Randall said. "We have some tough matches with some time to continue to improve on our strengths."

She added: "The girls are really committed to working the game itself but also the physical fitness, mental toughness and confidence aspects, too."

Charlevoix opens the season at home Tuesday, April 10, with a Lake Michigan Conference match against Grayling.

Senior savy softball team eyes Regionals

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

With a veteran-laden team ready to take the field and a revived junior varsity program, things are looking up for the Charlevoix Rayder softball program.

When head varsity coach Ken Hoffman, who is starting his second season at the helm, sends the Lady Rayders out of the dugout for the first game this season, half of the 12-member squad will be seniors — all with at least three years on the varsity.

With that kind of experience, Hoffman is hopeful for big things from his team this year.

A run at the conference title, of course, is always one of the big goals, but the big prize is another Class C District title and another chance to play in the regionals — this time on their home field.

(Charlevoix is slated to host both the Division III baseball and softball regionals this year.)

The Rayders are coming of a strong season last year when the team posted a 24-6 record, earned a one-third share of the Lake Michigan Conference title (shared with Traverse City St. Francis and Kalkaksa), and a third-straight Division III District title. The Rayders dropped a one-run decision to Tawas in the first round of regional play.

The Rayders lost two standouts to graduation last year — Hannah Hybl (who now plays for Alma College) and Emily Mielke, but there are plenty more veterans to step in.

Hoffman said he expects the seniors' leadership — especially that of captains Kristen Mielke, Chelsie Hoffman and Katie Hybl (a junior in her third year on the varsity) — to be a key factor in this year's success.

"It's nice to have these girls as captains," Hoffman said. "They know what they are doing and usually have the team going at practice before the coaches even get there."

Mielke, who went 11-2 last year and who will be playing for Lansing Community College next year, will take the number one spot in the Rayder's pitching rotation and Hybl will be in the number two spot. Jacy Herriman will likely take then number three spot, Hoffman said.

On offense the Rayders are poised to pack a punch, too.

Hybl led the Rayders last season posting a .500 average, while Chelsie Hoffman and Mielke and fellow senior centerfielder Anna Moon all posted strong seasons at the plate as well.

Rounding out the seniors are Paige Montogmery, who will see time at outfield, DH and first base, outfielder Addis Loper and outfielder and firstbaseman Nicole Pischner.

Also returning this year is sophomore Jennifer Archey, who earned All-District honors as a freshman last season and junior Rachel Shull, who is in her third year on the varsity.

Hoffman also has two freshmen on the team. Nicole Peterson will play third base and Kaitlin Louiska will catch and serve as a utility player.

Hoffman said he again expects Kalkaska and Traverse City St. Francis to be in the hunt for the league title along with East Jordan.

Hoffman said he's also excited about the fact that the Rayders are fielding a 13-member junior varsity team this year for the first time in several years.

"It's great for the program," Hoffman said. They are a good group of girls, some played on the varsity last year. It's going to give us the opportunity to get them some experience and we'll probably move a few up to the varsity from time to time for a little more experience at that level."

The varsity team open its season on Friday, April 13 at Kalkaska. Their first home game is Tuesday, April 17, against Traverse City St. Francis.

Rayders named to All-Area teams

Plude

Potter

Jenna Way

Kelsey Way

Four Charlevoix Rayder basketball players received additional post-season accolades last week when they were named to the Petoskey News-Review's 2011-12 All-Area teams.

For the boys, Andrew Plude and Andrew Potter were named Second Team All-Area.

Plude is a 6-1 senior who averaged 16 points, 4 rebounds and 2 assists per game. He is a three-year varsity letter winner and was recently named as a First-team All-Lake Michigan Conference selection.

Potter is also a 6-1 senior who averaged 13 points, 5 assists, and 3 rebounds per game from the point guard position. He was one of the Rayders' top defenders and recently was an All-Lake Michigan Conference honorable, mention selection.

For the girls, Jenna Way was a First Team All Area pick while Kelsey Way was named to the second team.

Jenna Way is a 5-7 senior who the News-Review noted as "a standout athlete" who earned four varsity letters and led the Rayders in scoring with '12 points per game and to a Class C District championship game. She also earned an All-Lake Michigan Conference Honorable Mention

Kelsey Way is also a 5-7 senior who the News-Review described as an "undersized post player (who) was a steady and consistent presence for the Rayders," averaging 10 points and 7 rebounds per game. Kelsey was also a First Team All Lake Michigan Conference pick.

The News-Review makes its selections for the All-Area Team among the top athletes in its Charlevoix and Emmet county coverage area.

Adopt-A-Highway pick-ups starting soon

Michigan's highway roadsides soon will get a spring cleaning. Almost 3,200 volunteer groups across the state will pick up litter along more than 7,200 miles of state highway from April 14 to 22. It's the first of three pickups this year for the Michigan Department of Transportation Adopt-A-Highway program, which began in 1990.

"Adopt-A-Highway volunteers care about their local communities and Michigan, and want to make a difference," said state transportation Director Kirk T. Steudle. "Their efforts help beautify our state and give visitors a positive impression of Michigan."

In 2011, Adopt-A-Highway volunteers collected more than 75,000 bags of trash and saved taxpayers $1.5 million in cleanup costs. They wear high-visibility, yellow-green safety vests required by federal regulations when working within a highway's right of way. The Michigan Department of Transportation provides the vests and the trash bags for free, and arranges to haul away the trash.

Current volunteers include members of various civic groups, businesses and families. Crew members have to be at least 12 years old and each group must number at least three people.

Sections of highway are still available for adoption. Interested groups should check the Michigan Department of Transportation web page at www.michigan.gov/adoptahighway for more information and the name of their county's coordinator, who can specify available roadsides. Groups are asked to adopt a section of highway for at least two years. There is no fee to participate. Adopt-A-Highway signs bearing a group's name are posted along the stretches of adopted highway.

There are three scheduled pickups: one each in the spring, summer and fall. The next two pickups are July 14 to 22 and Sept. 22 to 30.

De-Sta-Co, employees donate to Bergmann Center

During the 2011 holiday season, De-Sta-Co employees at Charlevoix raised a total of $1,245 for The Bergmann Center.

Bergmann Center officials and De-Sta-Co plant manager Jeff Canfield, and human resources manager Cyndi Noirot wanted to engage employees in supporting a charitable cause during the holidays. Because The Bergmann Center is in the same industrial park as De-Sta-Co, a decision was made to conduct a funds drive for The Bergmann Center.

At the time, De-Sta-Co had approximately 120 employees, so a goal was set at $600 (or $5 per employee). Corporate officials agreed to match up to the amount of the goal.

During the funds drive, Jeff Gunther, a De-Sta-Co employee, heard that someone at The Bergmann Center dreamed of going to Disney World. Jeff went to Disney World during the holidays and brought back a T-shirt signed by many of the Disney characters; which he presented to Debbie, a client at The Bergmann Center.

Canfield, presented two checks to The Bergmann Center on Thursday, March 15 for a total of $1,245 dollars.

The Bergmann Center is a life-skills building center for mentally and physically challenged adults.

Prosecutor called a 'liar, bully'

Prosecutor's assistant calls Jarema out for alleged vindictive behavior

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County's chief assistant prosecutor on Wednesday leveled a laundry list of serious allegations against her boss, voter-elected prosecutor John Jarema, when she gave a shocking speech to county commissioners at an open meeting which Jarema — also the county's civil counsel — attended.

Shaynee Fanara accused Jarema of lying to county commissioners and a judge, refusing to pay her for work she did, launching a false investigation into her on-the-clock county hours and perhaps the most egregious allegation — that Jarema spread false rumors about her having sex with a defense attorney in exchange for better plea bargains. That came as retaliation, Fanara said, after she filed a grievance against Jarema with the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission for his alleged lies to commissioners and a judge.

Fanara called Jarema vindictive and a bully who she believes will never cease harassing her and she pleaded with county commissioners to help her. Jarema later described Fanara's accusations as "unfounded allegations" intended as a ploy to file a lawsuit against the county.

Fanara said she filed a grievance against Jarema for allegedly lying to county commissioners and to Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas about the recent appeal in the Charles Merriman murder case that dealt with defense attorney payments from county coffers. She alleged Jarema knowingly and intentionally failed to file with the Michigan Court of Appeals a brief on behalf of the county because he wanted defense attorney Dan Hartman to "get the money," contrary to his public statements that he backed Pajtas' ruling that no additional money should be awarded, and it was the Michigan Attorney General's officials' fault appellate judges never heard the county's argument.

Merriman's defense team requested tens of thousands of dollars in payment from the court after Merriman's murder conviction, arguing it amounted to an extraordinary case believed to be

"Our county has a no harassment, no bullying policy and that policy was drafted by John's office. I don't understand why he's the only person that can violate that policy."

Opponents ask state to deny park property grant

Group against Hayes Township Camp Sea-Gull plan sends letter to state

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

A citizens group opposed to a Hayes Township effort to buy a shuttered summer camp on the shore of Lake Charlevoix and turn it into a township park has filed a lengthy letter with state officials asking them to deny a sizable grant request for the project.

In March the Hayes Township Board of Trustees voted 4-1 to approve an application to the trust fund to help pay for the purchase of the 20-acre Camp Sea-Gull property.

In the grant application, township officials are seeking $3.37 million for the purchase of the property. That's based on an appraisal the township had done on the property that placed its value at $4.45 million. On the draft application, the township proposes to make up the difference, or $1.125 million through $500,000 in township funds and $625,000 in fundraising. In the proposed grant application, township officials estimate the cost of operation of the park at about $18,500 annually. In the document, the township proposes the park to be used for swimming, fishing, picnicking, kayaking, boat launching, and to provide trailhead, bathrooms and parking for the proposed Charlevoix-Boyne City nonmotorized trail.

The Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund was established by state law in 1976. The money in the fund is from the sale of mineral rights on state property and the money may be used only to buy or develop land for recreation or protection.

In a news release issued Wednesday, organizers of the group calling itself "The Committee to Protect Hayes Township" said the group has filed a nine-page letter accompanied by another 60 pages of support-

EAST JORDAN

Fire destroys East Jordan home

EAST JORDAN — Fire officials believe a problem with a wood-burning furnace was to blame for a fire that destroyed a home near East Jordan last week.

Firefighters from East Jordan, Central Lake and Elmira responded at 5 a.m. Friday, April 6 to the house fire call at the Jason Deming residents, about nine miles east of the East Jordan. The fire burned mostly in the roof and fire officials estimate the flames involved about 50 percent of the structure when they arrived, East Jordan Fire Chief Glen Thorman said.

Firefighters spent more than four hours extinguishing the blaze.

The modular home is a total loss and its residents escaped unharmed but with little but the clothes they wore.

"It's definitely damaged my spirit," Deming said.

Deming bought the home about four months ago and then lost his job to layoffs. He's picked up some handyman jobs for friends, which helped along the way, but this tragedy amounts to another cruel disappointment, he said.

Thorman said during this springtime weather change, with its warm days and cool nights, many residents create excess creosote in their wood-burning heat systems without ever knowing it. That can often lead to house fires this time of year, he said.

Residents often allow their furnace fires to burn low during the warm days and then return to stoke it back up in the evenings. But when the embers burn low, it generates excess amounts of flammable creosote buildup, Thorman said.

Deming was expecting a visit from a representative from his insurance company later on the day of the fire.

Anyone wishing to provide assistance to the fire victims, may call neighbor Mike Bernadyn at (231) 582-6007 or Deming at (231) 838-7418.

Embezzlement sentencing

Former St. Mary School principal Keisha Veryser is scheduled to be sentenced on an embezzlement charge at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, April 17 in 33rd Circuit Court. On March 9 Veryser, 36, of Hayes Township pleaded to two counts of embezzlement, $1,000-$20,000, a five-year felony as part of a plea agreement with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office stemming from allegations that she took more than $100,000 from the school while she was principal. Part of the plea agreement is that she agrees to a restitution amount of $75,000, with $37,500 to be paid at the time of sentencing.

Channel swimming ban discussion

At 7 p.m. on Monday, April 16, the Charlevoix City Council will conduct a public hearing on a proposal to increase the city's ordinance against swimming in the Pine River Channel from a civil infraction to a misdemeanor punishable by up to 30 days in jail and/or a fine of up to $500. Superintendent search forum slated for April 18

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education recently selected the Michigan Association of School Boards to assist in the board's search for the district's new superintendent.

Kantola

The board is inviting district residents to attend an open forum on the search process to be conducted by Michigan Association of School Boards consultant Alan Kantola at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, April 18 in the Charleviox High School Media Center.

Kantula will provide an overview of the search process and receive input from community members regarding the criteria to be used in evaluating candidates.

Those people who are unable to attend the forum, a link to the superintendent selection profile questionnaire is available at the Charlevoix Public School's website, www.rayder.net.

The survey asks participants to rate and rank several characteristics they'd like to see in the district's next superintendents. Some of the topics include level of education, experience, previous district size, salary range, areas of expertise, leadership style, specialized skills, and personal characteristics.

The board is working to find a replacement for outgoing superintendent Chet Janik who will retire from the position later this month to take a the position of Lelenau County Administrator. Janik has been in the position since May of 2007.

Bootz

Late last month the school board selected Ellsworth resident and former Ellsworth Schools superintendent Patrick "Pat" Bootz to serve as its interim superintendent. The board has said it hopes to have a permanent replacement hired before the next school year begins in September.

Farewell reception for Janik

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education will host a farewell reception open house for outgoing district superintendent Chet Janik from 5-7 p.m. on Thursday, April 19, in Charlevoix Public Library Community Room.

Janik, who has served as the district's superintendent since may of 2007, will retire from his position with Charlevoix Public Schools later this month to take the position of Lelenau County Administrator.

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County voters will see some familiar names on their August primary ballot.

Nearly a dozen candidates filed their nomination petitions with the county clerk's office to be placed on the coming election ticket as of Monday. That includes six who seek two-year county commission seats and five after four-year county-wide positions. Most candidates seek re-election, though there are some challengers already lined up in a currently non-existent district.

Incumbent commissioners Shirlene Tripp, Ronald Reinhardt and Joel Evans all seek re-election in districts 1, 3 and 4, respectively. Candidates Shirley Roloff, a former county commissioner, Dennis Halverson, former Charlevoix police chief and current administrator with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, and John Earl Haggard, a Charlevoix business owner and former county commissioner, all seek the seat for District 6.

That's the district created after the recent U.S. Census shifted boundaries, and it now includes all of Charlevoix Township and the city of Charlevoix, where no current commissioner resides. Haggard said that's the reason he opted to jump into the race, an effort to make use of his years of experience in various county positions.

"I think it was time to step forward and be the person to help the county work on their problems and all their good stuff," Haggard said.

Meanwhile, five current elected county-wide officials already filed their petitions to seek re-election. They include clerk Cheryl Potter Browe, prosecutor John Jarema, treasurer Marilyn Cousineau, sheriff William Donald Schneider and surveyor Lawrence Feindt.

Those five incumbent candidates currently are unchallenged in the Aug. 7 primary election. Primary winners will advance to the Nov. 6 general election.

Nomination petitions are available at the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix. Commissioner candidates are required to secure signatures from between three and 10 registered voters, while county-wide office seekers must acquire between 50 and 100 signatures. Completed petitions for elected county seats must be returned to the clerk's office by 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 15, while those seeking township office must return their petitions to their respective township clerks.

Nomination petitions are available at the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office, 203 Antrim St., Charlevoix. Deadline to file is at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 15. Call (231) 547-7200 for more information.

Report: Charlevoix, Emmet counties among healthiest in state

Rachel Brougham
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

PETOSKEY — A set of reports released last week show Charlevoix and Emmet counties are two of the healthiest counties in Michigan, both improving on last year's ranking.

The County Health Rankings and Roadmaps program helps communities create solutions that make it easier for people to be healthy in their own communities. It focuses on specific factors that are known to affect health, such as education and income.

The rankings program, which is now in its third year, helps illustrate what can be done to create healthier places to live, work, learn and play.

According to this year's reports, out of Michigan's 82 counties studied, Charlevoix County ranked 14, up from 18 in 2011. Emmet County ranked seven, up from nine last year. The healthiest county was Leelanau.

The program is the only tool of its kind that measures the overall health of each county in all 50 states on the multiple factors that influence health.

It includes snapshots of nearly every county with a color-coded map that compares each county's overall health with other counties in each of the 50 states. People can compare how their county is doing in areas such as diabetes screening rates or number of uninsured adults to national benchmarks.

"The county health rankings are important because they help us identify factors that are making it difficult for residents to maintain a healthy lifestyle and understand how we compare to other counties in the state," said Linda Yaroch, health officer for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "It's encouraging to see improvement across the health district."

Two other counties in the department's district, Antrim and Otsego, ranked 45 and 51, respectively.

The study revealed that all counties have areas in which they can improve.

In Emmet County, the study showed 32 percent of residents were obese, compared with the national benchmark of 25 percent. In Charlevoix County, that percentage of obese residents was 28.

In addition, Yaroch said the study helped paint the picture of how surroundings contribute to health, including:

— People are nearly twice as likely to be in fair or poor health in the unhealthiest counties;

— Unhealthy counties have significantly lower high school graduation rates;

— Unhealthy counties have more than twice as many children in poverty;

— Unhealthy counties have much fewer grocery stores or farmers markets;

— Unhealthy counties have much higher rates of unemployment.

"It's easier to be healthy if you live in a supportive, healthy community," Yaroch said. "Health is impacted by where you live, work and play."

The county health rankings are just one of several types of indicators being studied in a major "healthy community" assessment under way in the health department's four counties. Other categories of data include demographic characteristics, health resource availability, quality of life, behavioral risk factors and environmental health indicators.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is facilitating the "Mobilizing for Action through Planning & Partnerships" model with financial support and leadership from Charlevoix Area Hospital, McLaren — Northern Michigan, Otsego Memorial Hospital and the Northern Health Plan.

"The approach combines studies with stories," said Jane Sundmacher, public information officer for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

Sundmacher, who is leading the project, added, "Data collection is well under way across the health district. Now we're planning how to collect themes in our communities, insights about quality of life, and community assets through broad-based county level committees."

The committees are in the early formation, and anyone interested in taking part can contact Sundmacher at (231) 347-5041 or at j.sundmacher@nwhealth.org.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis, & more.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

Columnist proposes a phone-lover's lane

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Most of us would by now agree that texting on your cell phone, or even calling someone while driving, is dangerous. There have been enough vehicle accidents directly related to texting or phoning while driving to make a pretty good case that it is at least hazardous. Legal bans of such activity, attempted in some cities, seem not to work very well. Consider how well prohibition of alcohol worked 75 years ago.

What to do?

Not surprisingly, I am willing to offer a potential solution. Many communities with overly busy freeways or tollways restrict access in some lanes to vehicles with multiple passengers. In the same circumstances, trucks are often restricted to specific lanes at busy times of the day. Special lanes for special categories of vehicles are a tested and successful solution to some traffic problems.

I propose, that in places with multiple lane highways, there should be established special lanes for texting and phoning drivers. One lane should be sufficient for both activities.

Initially compliance might be a problem. But if such a special lane had fewer vehicles, it could be attractive to the phoner or texter. I have been informed by teachers that there are especially dexterous young people who can text on their smart phone without removing it from their pocket. I suspect such people are rare enough not to invalidate the idea of highway texting lanes.

The biggest advantage of such highway rules would be the ability to compare accident rates in the texting lane with those in other unrestricted lanes. Then again, if accident rates are noticeably higher in such special lanes, even drivers who plan to phone or text might avoid them.

Maybe texters or phoners could be encouraged to drive more slowly in their lanes than those lanes less encumbered with electronic activity. In our high-tech age we might even envision automobile controls that would set a top speed for the vehicle if the driver is using a messaging device. Changing lanes after completing a session of texting or phoning is also a potential problem. But such lane changing is common enough not to present any additional hazard

The advantages of such a lane dedication system are mostly that those in non-texting lanes might be driving under safer conditions. We could know for sure after even a few months of lane dedication and careful accident reports.

We don't have a local problem that can be solved by dedicated lanes, but maybe we could ask people to text or phone only when they are waiting for the bridge to open and close. Surely there is no serious hazard connected to texting or phoning while waiting for the bridge.

Sink or swim: When should poor judgment be a crime?

Steve Zucker
Courier Editor

"Mama says, 'Stupid is as stupid does.'" — Forrest Gump

I'll admit I've done some pretty stupid things in my life.

One of the more notable instances from recent memory (a few years ago now) involved an electric hedge trimmer, a stubborn sprig of a shrub, my impatience and carelessness and a trip to a doctor's office for stitches.

As I sat in the doctor's office waiting to have my finger sewn up, I consoled myself with this thought: "Surely this can't be the dumbest injury they've treated here."

And so it is, most of us, despite "knowing better," have scars on our bodies, our egos, or both to remind us of boneheaded moves we've made in our past.

Often these instances are not the result of truly low intelligence or ignorance. More often it's laziness ("My safety glasses are way up in the garage, I'll just run the grass trimmer without them"), arrogance, ("I know you're supposed to turn-off the circuit breaker, but I'll be careful) or both.

(I suppose I'd be remiss if I didn't also mention the judgement-imparing effects of alcohol or love, as well.)

Fortunately, for most of us, these lapses in judgement are only occasional.

I mention all this because it's what comes to mind when I think about the city's upcoming proposal to turn an existing ordinance banning swimming in the Pine River Channel from a civil infraction to a misdemeanor punishable by up to 90 days in jail and/or a $500 fine. The city council will conduct a public hearing on the proposed ordinance change at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 16.

The proposal arose last summer following a Beaver Island Boat Company captain's report of a close call with a swimmer in the channel. And it's not the first time the council has heard reports of close calls with boats.

Let's be honest, the existing ordinance, enacted a few years ago to address safety concern, with its $50, $75 and $100 fines, has done little to dissuade youthful swimmers. Indeed, on many a hot summer day, the city police spend a great deal of time playing a cat and mouse game with violators.

Mom always said, "It's all fun and games until someone gets hurt."

Or in this case, maybe dead.

At first blush it seems like a no-brainer.

It seems pretty obvious to me that swimming in and around the channel is generally not a good idea.

So, we think, "Yes. Let's do it. We must protect the children."

You know the cliche: "If it saves just one life ..."

But then there's another side of me that says, "Wait a minute, if we do this, where do we draw the line?

Is possible jail time for swimming in the channel overkill? Or is it preventing kill?

How about running with scissors? Walking with untied shoelaces? Sitting too close to the TV?

Here's a good one: Going outside in the winter without a jacket?

Nearly everyone has been told, "You'll catch the death of you," by some parent or grandparent.

So what's the alternative? Repeal the ordinance, put up signs that read, "Hey, stupid, don't swim in the channel," and let natural selection take its course.

Sounds like the simplest solution, but that's easy to say until we're all sitting in a the high school gym for some teenager's funeral.

So, what's the answer?

It seems to me that the point at which something should move from being simply stupid to illegal is the point at which it starts to have an impact on others' well-being.

And while swimming in the channel is likely to pose the greatest risk to the swimmer, what about the risk to the emergency responders who rush to save the swimmer's life?

If you have an opinion on the channel swimming ordinance, let the city council know.

Fracking squanders water resources

Editor:

Clean water is essential for life. Seems like an obvious statement. Yet gas companies using horizontal fracking confiscate, squander and pollute enormous quantities of water at the expense of farmers, other businesses and the public.

The Michigan DEQ website says 5 million gallons of water are needed to frack a well, the same amount needed to grow 8-10 acres of corn for an entire growing season. The difference is most of the water used to grow corn goes back into the hydrologic cycle in some way. Now picture Michigan with hundreds or thousands of horizontal fracking wells, each using millions of gallons of water which becomes so toxic it can NEVER be returned to the hydrologic cycle. Look around. Every state allowing horizontal fracking has experienced serious damage to drinking water, freshwater aquifers, rivers, streams human health, wildlife and air quality. We live in an era of diminishing freshwater supplies in the U.S. and worldwide. Squandering precious water resources upon which all life depends seems suicidal.

Horizontal fracking is profitable because gas companies won exemptions from the Clean Water, Clean Air and Superfund Acts. The Halliburton Loophole in the 2005 energy bill stripped away EPA authority to regulate fracking through the Safe Drinking Water Act. Drillers are exempt from Michigan's water withdrawal rules. Wells that fail the water withdrawal assessment are granted permits anyway. (See www.dontfrackmichigan.org for details.)

Surely a country that put a man on the moon can come up with a sustainable energy plan. But that can't happen as long as gas companies get subsidies, tax breaks and exemptions from environmental rules by which every other business must abide.

Ban horizontal fracking. End gas company exemptions and subsidies to level the playing field and allow sustainable energy technologies a chance to succeed. We owe this to our children and grandchildren.

Hospice official: Thank you to volunteers

Dear Editor:

National Volunteer Week is April 15 – 21, 2012, a time to recognize and celebrate the thousands of men, women and young people who volunteer in communities across the country. I am the volunteer coordinator for Hospice of Northwest Michigan and I want to honor all those who are dedicated to providing care and support for patients and families in our community who are nearing the end of life's journey.

Across the country, more than 458,000 trained volunteers provide more than 21 million hours of service to hospice organizations. More than 1.58 million people received compassionate care from hospice every year and hospice volunteers are an integral part of the care team.

Here in our community, 48 volunteers work with Hospice of Northwest Michigan to care for patients, help with outreach, assist in the office, provide fundraising support and so much more.

It's a mistake to think that hospice is giving up. Hospice is about living as fully as possible, even at the end of life. Hospices provide care, support and dignity.

To learn more about volunteer opportunities, please call our office at (231) 547-7659. And a BIG thank you to all of our volunteers for all they do.

Sincerely,
Cheri Hoffman,
Volunteer Coordinator

Even with Low Rates, You Can Invest for Income

Not long ago, the Federal Reserve (Fed) announced that it plans to keep short-term interest rates near zero until late 2014. The Fed initially pushed rates to that level in 2008, in an effort to stimulate economic growth. Clearly, low interest rates have a wide-ranging impact — but what effect will they have on you, as an individual investor?

If you need income from your investments, then the continuation of ultra-low interest rates may be a matter of some concern, particularly if you own certain types of fixed-income investments, such as certificates of deposit. While CDs are insured, offer return of principal at maturity and provide regular interest payments, they are not risk-free. With low interest rates, you risk losing purchasing power.

Still, fixed-rate vehicles may well have a place in your portfolio. If you're even somewhat dependent on your investments for income, you may need to broaden your search. Here are a few ideas to consider:

• Build a bond ladder. Long-term bonds, by their nature, are more subject to interest rate risk than shorter-term vehicles. In other words, interest rates are more likely to rise during the life span of a longer-term bond — and when rates go up, the prices of existing bonds will fall. To help lower this risk, you may want to build a "ladder" of bonds of varying maturities. Then, if market interest rates are low, you'll still have your long-term bonds earning higher rates, but if rates rise, you can take advantage of them by reinvesting the proceeds of your maturing short-term bonds. But remember to work with your financial advisor to evaluate whether a bond ladder and the securities held within it are consistent with your investment objectives, risk tolerance and financial circumstances.

• Dividend-paying stocks. You can find companies that have paid dividends for many consecutive years — and in some cases, increased their dividend payout each year. In 2012, companies listed in the S&P 500 are on track to pay out more than $252 billion in dividends, a record amount, according to data compiled from Standard & Poor's. (Keep in mind that the S&P 500 is an unmanaged index and is not available for direct investment.) Of course, stock prices will fluctuate in value, and you may receive more or less than your original investment when you sell. Historically, dividend-paying stocks have been less volatile than non-dividend-paying stocks. Be aware, though, that companies can lower or discontinue dividend payments at any time without notice. Past performance is not a guarantee of future results.

• Refinance your mortgage. Today's low rates are good news for borrowers. With tougher standards in place, it may not be as easy to refinance a mortgage as it once was, but if you qualify, you may want to think about refinancing. You may be able to save quite a bit of money on your monthly payments — and lower payments can translate into a greater cash flow. Plus, if you don't need all the savings, you can put some of the money into an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) or another retirement savings vehicles.

Ultimately, an extended period of low interest rates is just one more factor to consider in creating and adjusting your investment strategy. Work with your financial advisor to help ensure low rates won't affect your income needs.

New 'master' heads revamped Ellsworth farmers market

Fender

ELLSWORTH — The 2012 Ellsworth farmers market takes place from 5-7 p.m. on Tuesdays, beginning June 12, at the corner of Church and Main streets.

Shannon Fender has been hired to serve as the market master. She recently attended the Michigan Farmers Market Association "boot camp" conference in Lansing for two days of training, classes and networking on signs, vendor licensing, market development and community involvement. Fender is currently working with the Ellsworth High School agricultural class students to involve them with the market development and as assistants throughout the summer events. New banners and marketing promotions are being developed to help increase vendors and customers to the evening event.

The vision for the Ellsworth farmers market is to create a signature event for the community that will offer local vegetables, fruits, crafts and either music or a theme night such as Kids Night, Health Awareness Night or Master Gardener Night. Individuals and families are being encouraged to come to the market and spend the evening shopping, enjoying music and activities in Ellsworth.

"I feel that with the support of the village, the school and the community, the Ellsworth farmers market will become a major event on the Breezeway for the village of Ellsworth and local producers and crafters.," Fender said. "I am looking forward to a fun-filled summer of Tuesday evenings."

The Northwest Michigan Council of Governments provided a grant to the village of Ellsworth to fund the market master position this year and to develop a successful business market plan that will ensure the future of this community event.

For more information on becoming a vendor or performer, contact Fender at (231) 536-7351, (231) 536-7952, or ellsworthfarmersmarket@yahoo.com.

LOOKING BACK…

COURTESY PHOTOS/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

John and Phoebe Dixon and their three children were Charlevoix's second permanent settler family, but it almost didn't turn out that way. The Mormon Medad Thompson family, Charlevoix's first, had arrived in 1854 from Beaver Island, establishing their farmstead near the Ferry Beach area. The Dixons arrived in 1855, establishing their homestead in a cabin on the north shore of Round Lake. But the Dixons were so harassed by the Island Mormons under the dictatorial thumb of King James Strang that they fled to the Northport area after a few months for fear of their lives. Only after Strang was assassinated in 1856 did they return, this time to stay. John Dixon went on to become one of the most influential and important movers and shakers of the settlement's early days. He once owned almost all the land on the north side of town and a portion of the valley. Dixon Avenue is named after him. The family established their new home atop a bluff that looked down almost the entire length of Lake Charlevoix, now the residence of Dr. James and Carol Gals.

Those images are two of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." The disc is available at the Society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State St. next to the Congregational Church, from 1-4 p.m. Thursday-Saturday. It is also available at the Central Drug Store, Round Lake Books, Castle Farms, and Ell-Air Gallery. Call (231) 547-0373 for mailing and society membership information.

GRIEVANCE

the longest trial in Charlevoix County history. Court records show the requested amount totaled $67,000 between Merriman's two defense lawyers.

"We received several notices from the attorney general that it was the prosecutor's responsibility to answer that appeal. After receiving final notices from the Court of Appeals that we still had not answered, Mark (Muniak, assistant prosecutor) and I got concerned," Fanara said. "I called John with Mark in my office, it wasn't on speakerphone, but I asked what we needed to do. He stated 'We are not going to answer the appeal. I want Hartman to get the money.'"

Fanara said in her talk to county commissioners the grievance sparked Jarema to allegedly make a false accusation against her.

"Now he's retaliating against me in the worst way. He's telling people that I'm sleeping with a defense attorney in order for them to get better plea deals. This is a complete lie. It's offensive and it's way out of line. This is both offensive to my marriage — my family — as well as the integrity of my work," Fanara said.

Jarema did not address the sex accusations Fanara brought up when he spoke during the meeting, nor later when asked, in writing, to respond to the allegations.

Additionally, Fanara said Jarema failed to register her for a federal student loan payback program worth $10,000 per year for prosecutors across the country and then sent her home when she questioned why.

"When I asked John why he did not sign me up he got mad and sent me home. I came back the next day to go to work and he told me to never question his authority again. I merely wanted to know why, since every other elected prosecutor in the State of Michigan signed up their assistant prosecutors, why he didn't sign me up. That's all I wanted to know. I never did get signed up for that program," she said.

Fanara also described how Jarema allegedly took away money from her paychecks that county commissioners specifically approved as compensation for her taking over office management duties for the prosecutor.

"I came before the board with John and this board granted $10,000 to me to do the office manager duties on top of my current duties. John took that away from me after only several months and later never discussed it with me, never told me that he was taking it away from me, never talked about it. He never came to the board to change it. When I asked why I no longer got the management money since I was still managing, he sent me home again," Fanara said.

She said she picked up the office management duties after numerous disgruntled employees left the prosecutor's employ, she said, and after Jarema allegedly admitted that he does not manage well and needed help in that arena.

"He did actually admit that he wasn't a good manager and asked me to do it," Fanara said.

After Jarema stopped paying her anything extra for managerial work and she asked why, that's when Fanara alleges Jarema retaliated by starting a false investigation into her purportedly falsifying her time slips with the county. Fanara said that highly offended her and caused her to submit a letter to county commissioners.

Later during the Wednesday meeting, Jarema responded to her mentions of being sent home and her pay for office management.

"I did (send her home) because she accused me of harming her family," Jarema said. "She was paid three months to do the office manager position. She went a full budget without getting paid for that and then in the next budget is when that came up. She demanded $10,000."

Jarema told commissioners that Fanara's pleas for help are effectively her way of putting county officials on notice that she intends to file a lawsuit. He also said a newspaper reporter's video-recording during Fanara's speech is a tell-tale sign that her public complaints are indicative of something, though he didn't specifically say what.

"She's asking for help from this board. This board should know that the HR (human resources) person has been involved since September. Joel (Evans, county board chairman) has been involved since November. It was a well-orchestrated thing today because the only time that the paper got up to record was when Shaynee came up to the thing ... And it was last Monday, or the Monday before, she made a demand to this board, a settlement demand," Jarema said.

Fanara then interrupted him from the audience: "No, I did not. This is out of control. That's not true," she said.

Jarema explained to commissioners that he met Tuesday with Fanara and Kevin Shepard, the county's human resources coordinator, about that purported settlement demand. He later expounded on what he called Fanara's "financial demands" when he responded to the Petoskey News-Review's request for comments via email. He wrote:

"I am again apprehensive to respond to these unfounded allegations to this paper as any statement that I make will either be taken out of context or misquoted, even if in written form. My take is that apparently Ms. (Mrs.) Fanara did not like the outcome of the meeting held yesterday when the County would not meet her financial demands so this is her next step in the inevitable, unfortunate process," he wrote.

Jarema also added a post script to the email.

"I hope I will not have to rely on the other papers in this county to print a fair article when the true facts come out," Jarema wrote.

In the end, Fanara said she doesn't want to just walk away from her job as the county's chief assistant prosecutor because she loves her work. She doesn't understand how Jarema's alleged behavior is tolerated, Fanara said.

"Our county has a no harassment, no bullying policy and that policy was drafted by John's office. I don't understand why he's the only person that can violate that policy," Fanara said.

County human resources coordinator Shepard declined to answer specific questions about the obvious conflicts between Fanara and Jarema because it's an ongoing and confidential personnel issue. However, he did say the situation occupied much of his time of late.

"Me and Joel (Evans) have spent a lot of time and effort trying to fix this relationship. They are both good people and they are both great attorneys," Shepard said.

Fanara said after the meeting that she remains out of the county offices through the end of next week on medical leave because of tension headaches she said her doctors blame on Jarema's alleged behavior toward her.

Meanwhile, the next personnel committee meeting among county commissioners is set for Wednesday, April 18. It's unknown whether commissioners will discuss all this at that time.

How to grieve an attorney for misconduct:

1. Request for investigation, also called a grievance, filed with the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission.
2. That request is reviewed by commission staffers.
3. If determined to be a legitimate professional misconduct allegation, then the grieved attorney is obligated to give a full and fair response to the allegation.
4. Commission employees again review the allegation and attorney response to determine whether further investigation is needed.
5. When the commission's investigation is completed, a summary report is generated and provided to the nine-member commission that includes six lawyers and three non-attorneys appointed by the Michigan Supreme Court.
6. The full commission decides what to do with the complaint: dismiss it for lack of merit, place the grieved attorney on probation without publicly revealing details, issue an official admonishment to the grieved attorney without publicly revealing details, or file a formal and public complaint with the Michigan Attorney Disciplinary Board.
7. The board will assign the grievance case to a three-member hearing panel that functions similarly to a non-jury trial.
8. The hearing panel involves commission staffers presenting their misconduct case with testimony taken under oath.
9. Hearing panel members will decide if misconduct is proven and then dismiss the matter or decide on a level of punishment for the grieved attorney. Possibilities include a public reprimand, a law license suspension for between three months and five years, or a complete revocation of the grieved attorney's law license, also known as disbarment.
10. Hearing panel decisions may be appealed to the full, nine-member board. Determinations by the full board may be appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court, but that is a rarity.

— Robert Edick, deputy administrator for the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission

Commissioners react to prosecutor allegations

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Only three of Charlevoix County's elected commissioners spoke Wednesday about an unexpected speech given by the county's chief assistant prosecutor.

Shaynee Fanara spoke at length during the commissioners' regular meeting, when she alleged various intolerable behaviors by her boss, John Jarema, the county's voter-elected prosecutor.

Commissioners Rich Gillespie, of Beaver Island, and Shirlene Tripp, of Hayes Township, spoke about Fanara's allegations before the meeting adjourned, while commissioner Bob Drebenstedt, of Marion Township, said afterwards that the situation makes him pause.

"For her to come in here and make these remarks is significant and very concerning," Gillespie said during the meeting. "That took courage or craziness to do that and I don't know which it is because I don't know all the details."

Tripp said she empathizes with Fanara's alleged bullied situation because she, too, feels like she must fight excessively hard for things she shouldn't have to. It's a pattern that repeated itself during the last seven years, she said.

"Sometimes we end up getting kicked twice, but we'll make it, Shaynee," Tripp said during the meeting.

After adjournment, Drebenstedt said Fanara's allegations raise serious concerns for the county's legal liability in this situation.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' personnel committee meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, April 18, in the commissioners' meeting room, 203 Antrim St., Charlevoix. It remains unknown whether commissioners will discuss Fanara's allegations at that time.

ing documents with the Michigan Department Of Natural Resources Grants Management Department.

In the letter, the committee's lawyer details the group's reasons for opposing the project. Many of those reason have been detailed in full page ads the group has purchased in the Petoskey News-Review earlier this year and by its leader, part-time township resident and lakefront property owner Mark Dorn, during two public hearings the township conducted prior to submitting the application to the state.

Among the committee's contentions are:

— The park is not needed because not only is Hayes Township small with only about 1,800 year-round residents, they point to Young State Park being just 7 miles away offering many of the same park amenities, in addition to other park and lake access sites around Lake Charlevoix.

— The park proposal is not compatible with the township's recreation master plan, adjacent property uses and will end up costing township taxpayers too much.

— The township hasn't done is "due diligence" in advance of the project nor obtained sufficient public input.

According to the committee's release, the letter represented the concerns of more than "112 petition signers and thousands of online survey respondents who objected to the park proposal."

The letter repeatedly cites an online survey that the committee conducted earlier this year that the committee claims shows that 75 percent 37,000 of "area residents" oppose the park.

What the survey really asked was, "If your township had collected $500,000 in extra taxpayer cash, what would you do with it to benefit to benefit the local residents. The choices included "Build another park," "lower taxes," "Improve roads and resident services" and "give the extra cash back to the residents."

The committee does not explain in its letter or news release how it knows that the respondents are from Hayes Township, or anywhere in Northern Michigan, or know anything about the Camp Sea-Gull purchase proposal.

Despite the group's opposition, many people have spoken in favor of the project at the public hearings, some calling it a "once in a lifetime opportunity" for the township.

Township officials have said they do not plan to seek a tax increase to pay for the park or its operation.

"The process of a government is broken in Hayes Township when it fails to reflect the needs of residents and imposes unfair tax burdens on future generations, all because trustees want to misuse state grant money for a wasteful and redundant park project that has not been fairly surveyed with residents and ignores the thousands of acres of existing public access parks and waterfront resources," Dorn said in the news release.

According to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources website, grant applications are evaluated using criteria established by the trust fund's board of trustees. The board makes grant recommendations to the governor, which are forwarded to the Michigan Legislature for final approval and appropriation.

There are eight criteria for acquisition applications:

— Need for project

— Applicant history

— Site quality and project quality

— Natural resource protection and use/recreation opportunities

— Financial deed of the applicant

— Urban Area Recreation Opportunities

— Local Match

— Entrance Fees

A decision on the grant application is not expected until mid-December.

Our mission is to support commerce and provide leadership to enhance the quality of life.

April Business of the Month

The Business of the Month is a business that goes above and beyond business as usual, positively impacting the community. This business is selected by the Chamber Ambassador Committee and will be a contender for the Chamber's Business of the Year Award. This prestigious award is presented at the Chamber's Annual Awards Reception. We are proud to present to you the April Business of the Month:

DCL has been doing business in Charlevoix since 1981. In recent years they have also taken over Bay Shore Steel Works located half way between Petoskey and Charlevoix on US 31. According to President Tim English the best part of being in business in Northern Michigan is "living and working where others just come for vacation."

They chose the field they are in because it was a opportunity to build business, and compete world wide. The one thing left on their bucket list- according to English its to increase the size of the company to allow for more local jobs and of course a company owned G650 Gulfstream Jet for all their long business trips!

Rayders up and running: Track teams kick off 2012 season Friday in Cadillac

Returning Rayder boys ready to repeat

BOYS

With few team members lost to graduation and many top performers returning, the Charlevoix Rayder boys track team is in a prime position to defend its Lake Michigan Conference title and place high in the regionals.

That's the pre-season view of Rayder boys track coach Ken Plude as he sizes up his team for the coming season.

"(In the conference) we are the defending champions and, because we graduated fewer seniors than the rest of the league, we should be favored to repeat," Plude said. "For regionals, I see us finishing in the top three (14 schools) with a chance, if everyone is healthy, to be a contender."

Coach Plude said three-time All-State senior Andrew Plude will be asked to do a "we need you here season," as he has participated in nine of the 17 events in his high school career.

"Vinny Von Lau, who also has an All-State award to his credit, will be among many talented seniors to lead this years team including top distance runner Kirk Achayra, top sprinters Jake MacLean, John Boss, and Alex Gooch."

He also pointed to Josh Hogan and newcomer Matt Batdorff as top high jumpers and two new seniors "with great speed and endurance," Will Jeakle and Myles Kerr.

Other underclassman and new talents Plude noted include:

- Chris Young, junior, top hurdler
- Jackson Buday, sophomore, distance, placed last year at conference and regionals
- Sawyer Russell, junior, top pole vaulter
- Jared Reibel, junior, sprints and relay specialist
- Brandan Arp, junior, shot put
- Aaron Duckworth, junior discus
- Nick Snabes, sophomore, middle distance
- Tristen Rudolph, sophomore, distance
- Charlie Hamilton, junior, sprints and jumps
- Nick Pluda, freshman, middle distance and relays
- Brian Noriet, freshman, long jump and sprints

Girls: We want to be contenders

GIRLS

It may take a few weeks into the season to figure out exactly how they're going to do it, but the 2012 Charlevoix Rayder girls track team has set a goal to be "contenders" for both the Lake Michigan Conference title and regionals this season.

Girls coach Mary Plude said part of the uncertainty centers around a need to reconfigure three of the four relay teams this year.

"We have good newcomers who should fill in the 400 meter, 800 meter and 1600 meter relays, but it will take several meets to make it smooth," Plude said. "We look as if we should fill out all the events with a possible scorer or more. This has always been one of our strong points in our teams.

Plude said with 27 on the roster, another challenge is a smaller team this year. " But I think we can make it up with solid individuals, who can do multiple events and have great attitudes for doing what the team needs," she said.

All-State senior Molly Jeakle returns to the 400 meters, 800 meters and 1600 meters events along with several relays.

Also among the ranks are several cross country All-staters in junior Olivia Certa and freshman Amber Way. Certa, Jeakle, senior Annie Dipert and senior Hilary Way will also return from the All-State 3200-meter relay.

Plude pointed to other strong returners in Caroline Boss (400 meters), Makenzi Kage (300 meter hurdles) Whitney Drost (100 and 200 meters), Sarah Mackenzie (high jump), Jenna Way (shot put, long jump and discus), and Stirling Witthoeft (400 meters)

Plude said newcomers who should add depth will include Madeline Boss, Olivia Storm, Autumn Drost, Kourtney Putman, Ivy Wells, Makenzie Boyd, Allie Hodge and Madison Palmer

Golf team looking for 'core players' to step into leadership roles

The Rayders are coming off a stellar 2011 season during which they won Division III district and regional championships and finished ninth in the state finals.

Gone to graduation are mainstays Wyatt Drost, Thomas Rich and Ryan Wimmer, but the cupboard is hardly bare for second-year coach Keith Grunch.

"We don't have the superstars that we had last year," Grunch said. "We lost several real leaders in those guys, but we have a core of kids that will be more consistent than last year.

"We definitely are capable of shooting the same scores. It's just a matter of getting the kids to gel at the same time and getting them up to their potential."

Two key juniors return in Tanner Catt and Chandler Novotny, both of whom played in the district, regional and state finals last season. Will Jeakle is the lone senior on the roster, and Grunch said he will look to Jeakle for leadership along with the likes of Catt and Novotny.

"He (Jeakle) mostly played on the JV team last year," Grunch said. "He's one of our core guys having played over the past four years and he'll be one of our top players this year."

Other juniors include Joe Rich, Corbin Turkelson and Drew Seymour, while sophomore Brad Rizzo is also in the varsity mix along with freshmen Noah Jeakle and Ryan Joy.

"I envision us getting back to the state finals and competing in the (Lake Michigan) conference, district and regional this year," Grunch said. "I'm looking forward to the year and working with the kids. Getting back to the state finals, that's one thing we talked about and anything can happen at that point."

Soccer team eyes league title, fifth straight district championship

The Charlevoix Rayder girls varsity soccer team returns all but four players from a season ago as they pursue the team's fifth straight district title and the Lake Michigan Conference championship.

Last year the team ended up in a three way tie for the conference title. This year they'd like it all to themselves.

Charlevoix will have a strong leader returning in all-state honorable mention senior back Savanah Joseph, while all-district player, Carolena Elowski, Kelly Greyerbiehl, and Anna Way will add some punch to a verteran line-up.

"We have the luxury of having a lot of experience return to our line-up this season," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "The senior leadership we have is outstanding."

Sydney Carlson, Megan Peters, both outside players, and Hannah Herboldsheimer, attacker, will provide the punch for the Rayders, while Cristen Cole and Lauren Bartling add positive attitudes and hard work ethic.

"I can't say enough about our team chemistry," Madison said. "It all starts with the leaders that are on this team."

And this year, that teamwork goes to a whole new level the junior varsity level to be precise.

For the first time in a few years the program has enough players to field both a varsity and a JV team. However because of team numbers, Madison said, to make that happen she had to have players on both squads agree to be flexible. She said some players will move back and forth between the varsity and the JV during the season as needed.

She said the arrangement will mean more work for coaches who will have to keep track of who has played in how many games to remain in compliance with Michigan High School Athletic Association rules, but she said the JV program allows for more players to see more playing time and that will ultimately benefit the program.

Turning back to the varsity, Madison said the backbone of the Rayders' confidence comes from a solid returning defensive line, including goalkeeper Bailey Stevens.

"Not only do we have quality returners," Madison added. "We will have added depth and experience in a good core of younger players."

Charlevoix sophomore Katelin Hinkley along with freshmen Leah Davis and Ellie Way are expected to make strong contributions this season.

"Katelin and Ellie already scored for us this season in our first game," Madison said of the Rayders' 4-2 victory over Grayling on Tuesday.

Madison said getting that fifth district title will be a little tougher this year now that the district groupings have been shuffled.

"This year we will have Harbor Springs, Elk Rapids, Oscoda, and Burt Lake," Madison added. "It has never been a easy district, but the pairing just got a little tougher."

Charlevoix was slated host Kalkaska on Thursday, April 12.

Rayders open with win over Grayling

CHARLEVOIX — Despite weather that felt more like it was time for football rather than the "futbol," the Charlevoix Rayder girls varsity soccer team enjoyed the warmth of a 4-2 season-opening victory over conference foe Grayling Tuesday.

Anna Way led the Rayders with two goals while Ellie Way and Kaitlin Hinkley had one each.

Playing in a strong northwest wind with temperatures in the mid-30s, windchills in the mid-20s and occassional snow flurries, the Rayders jumped out to an early lead in a first half that saw the bulk of the play on the Vikings' end of the field.

Anna Way opened the scoring with about 22:31 remaining in the first half on an assist by Katie Kitely.

With 14:07 left in the half, freshman Ellie Way scored her first varsity goal unassisted on a shot from near the left corner that sailed over the goalkeeper's head.

About 2:30 later, Anna Way put the Rayders up 3-0 when her high lob shot from near the penalty are sailed over the goalkeeper's reach and under the crossbar.

"We had took advantage of the wind at our backs in the first half," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said.

Grayling worked its way back into the game in the second half.

"Grayling scored twice in the second half," Madison said. "It put us on our heels, even though we were controlling the ball."

After the Vikings drew to 3-2, Hinkley scored with 12 minutes to remaining, assisted by Leah Davis, to put it away for the Rayders.

"Kaitlin's goal gave us the cushion we needed," Madison said.

Bailee Stevens made three saves in goal for the Rayders, who were slated to play host to Kalkaska on Thursday, April 12. See charlevoixcourier.com for results of that game. The Rayders have a home scrimmage set for Saturday and will travel to Traverse City St. Francis on Monday.

Rayders drop season-opener to the Sault

The Charlevoix Rayders varsity baseball team dropped a non-league contest to Sault Ste. Marie 14-7 in their season opener Wednesday.

The Blue Devils, a Division II state quarterfinalist from last season, were up 6-0 in the nightcap before the second game was called after three innings.

In the first game, the Blue Devils scored four runs in the first inning and tacked on six runs in the top half of the sixth to top the Rayders.

The Rayders tried to rally in the bottom of the sixth scoring five runs — three of them off a Tommy Zipp triple up the left-center gap with the bases loaded.

"I was pleased with the way we hit the ball and came back against a tough team," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "We won't make any excuses, but we knew it'd be tough throwing our No. 3 and No. 4 non-conference starters —Tommy Zipp and Shane Sutherland —against their top two."

Zipp took the loss in the opening game and added two hits, while Andrew Potter added two hits including a double. Also for the Rayders, Nate Moon and Will Telgenhof each singled in their first career varsity games, while Coby Herriman and Sutherland singled.

The Rayders go to Kalkaska for a Lake Michigan Conference doubleheader Friday, April 13. The Rayders will then host Travers City St. Francis on Tuesday, April 17.

Rayders net early conference win

It was worth a one day wait for the weather to improve for the Charlevoix girls tennis team as the Rayders notched a 7-1 victory in their season-opening match against conference foe Grayling Wednesday.

The match was postponed one day because of Tuesday's cold and intermittent snow showers.

The No. 1 singles match featured a marathon match in which Charlevoix's Kelsey Way defeated Graylings Daniell Dami, 7-5, 5-7, 7-5.

"What a match this was, lasting three hours, Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "Both girls had their moments of having the upper hand in the match. In No. 3 singles Charlevoix's Lexi Barnes defeated Grayling's Katie Proffitt, 6-0, 6-1.

"This was a first match for Lexi and she played solid fundamentally and really played through a few mental toughness moments to show she will prove herself to have solid play through the season."

In No. 4 singles Charlevoix's Paige Poirier defeated Grayling's Katrina Foguth, 6-3, 7-5

The Rayders swept the doubles matches by the following scores:

Students at Charlevoix High School are hoping to make a difference in the community by giving back to veterans.

Senior Tanesha Rogers, recently partnered with the school's Music Club to put on a benefit concert open to the community. Proceeds will go to the Forgotten Eagles organization which provides for local veterans in need. The Forgotten Eagles' goal is to educate, heighten awareness and publicize the POW/MIAs (Prisoners of War/Missing In Action).

Rogers said her inspiration for the event came from her "father's appreciation of the community and (his) practice of patriotism," which made her want to give back in her own way. Her father, Ken Rogers, annually organized a poker run through the Elks of Charlevoix. The Forgotten Eagles of Michigan (Chapter 6) host contests of all kinds and events to raise money for the veterans in the area. They raised $18,000 last year and received grants from United Way. The money was used to fix homes, pay bills and other necessities.

Forgotten Eagles Benefit Concert will take place at 7 p.m. on Friday, May 11 at the Charlevoix High School auditorium. The Music Club perform wide array of songs. Tickets, which will be sold at the door, are $10 for adults, $5 for children, $4 for students and children 5 and under are free.

Rogers said the reason for organizing show is that she strongly believes, "that as Americans, it is our duty to be proud of what we stand for and represent those who are fighting or have fought for our country. Giving back to our local veterans is a great way to show our appreciation and that we are aware of everything they had to sacrifice along the way."

The Forgotten Eagles of Michigan are currently working on a project in Gaylord for homeless veterans shelter. Rogers see that "a concert fundraiser is a great way to both display the music club and raise money for The Forgotten Eagles at the same time."

For information about the concert, contact Charlevoix High School at (231) 547 3222.

Emily Chapdelaine
CHS STUDENT

Red carpets, fancy dresses, and shiny little trophies will all be part of the first-ever "Ford Awards," on Ocar-like evening of fun the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Program will host at 7 p.m. on Saturday, April 12 at the high school auditorium.

Performing Arts Program director, Jodi Thompson said she came up with the idea after they program finished its spring show, "Beauty and the Beast."

"I wanted to give the cast one more opportunity to perform, plan and run a show," Thompson said. "Also the students will be able to perform a short skit, song or even dance if they'd like."

One of the larger group performances is going to include Emily Chapdelaine, Allison Stripay, Payge Montgomery, Mika Kusmick, Carly Thompson, Hero Parker-Drost, Krysta Comer, and Elora Wingo, singing the Adelle song, "Someone Like You." Freshman, Gabby Waterman will be playing the song on the piano.

"I'm so happy that I'll get to play this song," Waterman said. "I'm not too worried about how it's going to turn out, everything is going well, and it's just going to be a fun experience."

Some of the awards that will be given out include: Best Actor/Actress, Best Supporting Actor/Actres, Best Techie, Most Improved, Best Vocal Solo, Best "Backstage Mom" and Best Newcomer. One of the nominees, Carly Thompson, a junior and two year performer, is excited and pleased to be nominated.

"I'm really excited to get to do one more little performance," Thompson said "This is going to be a great way to recognize everyone and everything they've done. All the sports teams get some sort of banquet or recognition so why shouldn't we?"

This year two seniors, Matthew Whitley and Jason Jones, both have been with the program for all four years of high school. They are both excited to be able to perform with everyone one last time.

" It was really sad to think Beauty and the Beast would be my last show, but now having this to look forward too, makes me happy," Jones said.

Twenty trophies will be given out that night, and there is sure to be lots of excitement over who's wearing what on the red carpet.

Emily is the daughter of Mary Chapdelaine. She is a sophomore at Charlevoix High School.

Ex-principal jailed for school embezzlement

Keisha Veryser sentenced to a year behind bars for pocketing St. Mary School money

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

CHARLEVOIX — A judge has sentenced the former principal of St. Mary School in Charlevoix to spend the next year in jail for embezzling thousands from the school's coffers.

Under the state's sentencing guidelines, it was the maximum sentence available to Otsego County Circuit Court Judge Dennis Murphy (sitting in for Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas) Tuesday, when he sentenced Keisha Veryser, 36, of Hayes Township on two counts of embezzlement, $1,000-$20,000, a five-year felony.

Veryser

Veryser pleaded guilty to the charges last month as part of a plea agreement with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office. In exchange for her pleas, three more identical charges and two counts of perjury to a non-court proceeding were dismissed.

Another part of the plea agreement with the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office was that Veryser agrees to a restitution amount of $75,000, with $37,500 to be paid at the time of sentencing. A check for that amount was turned over to Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema before Tuesday's sentencing hearing.

The charges stem from Veryser's employment as principal at St. Mary School from Aug. 1, 2006-March 17, 2010.

According to police and court documents, in March of 2010 Diocese of Gaylord officials asked Veryser to resign after they said they had discovered that she had been misappropriating funds for her own use.

Veryser resigned, but in October of that year, she filed a lawsuit against the diocese claiming she had been wrongfully discharged from her position. Veryser claimed that she was being made the scapegoat for shoddy bookkeeping practices that existed

Council bouys channel swimming ban, scuttles curb extensions

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

For the full amended ordinance, visit charlevoixcourier.com

A pared-down Charlevoix City Council on Monday approved a measure increasing the penalties for swimming in the Pine River Channel and did away with a plan to install curb extensions at one of the city's busiest intersections.

With council members Shane Cole and Bryan Vollmer absent, the council voted 4-0 to increase the violations of the city's ordinance banning swimming in the Pine River Channel from a civil infraction to a misdemeanor criminal offense.

Violaters now face a fine of up to $500 and/or 90 days in jail. Previously the penalty was $50 for a first offense, $75 for a second offense (in two years) and $100 for a third and jail time was not possible.

The original ordinance, enacted in 2007, simply prohibited swimming or wading within the long rectangular box bounded on by the north and south channel sides/piers.

The amended ordinance, which takes effect in 30 days from its approval, also makes it unlawful to:

— Swim or wade within 15 feet of a (Pine River Channel) pier;

— Dive from a (channel) pier;

— Access the Pine River or Lake Michigan from a pier for the purpose of swimming, wading, or diving.

The council began considering increasing the penalties associated with the ordinance last summer after hearing many reports of teens and young adults flouting the ordinance and close calls with boats — including Beaver Island ferry The Emerald Isle.

Prior to passing the ordinance, the council conducted a public hearing. The only input offered during the hearing was from John Haggard, who asked the council and police chief Gerard Doan what would happen if someone fell into the channel.

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson responded that the ordinance wouldn't likely be enforced if it was obvious someone fell into the water, or otherwise didn't intend to go in.

Asked by the Courier prior to the meeting about a circumstance where someone might end up in the channel — for example, to rescue someone who had fallen in, or an overturned kayaker — he said officers could ex-

Telgenhof

CHARLEVOIX — There will be at least a two-person race for the Charlevoix County prosecutor's office post come August after Charlevoix attorney Allen Telgenhof announced his intent to run for the office Wednesday.

Telgenhof, 48, will square off against current prosecuting attorney John Jarema in the Tuesday, Aug. 7 Republican primary. On Wednesday, Telgenhof filed organizational documents for his candidate committee "Friends for Allen Telgenhof," and planned to file his candidacy for the post with the county clerk Thursday. Jarema is the only other person who has filed to run for the post so far.

Telgenhof told the Charlevoix Courier Wednesday that serving as a prosecutor is something he's wanted to do since he was in law school.

He said he interviewed with many county prosecutor offices in several counties downstate, but ended up working in private practice.

"I've always had an interest in doing it," Telgenhof said. "It's always been on the back burner. The timing has never been quite right."

He earned his bachelor's degree in business administration from Michigan State University in 1987 and his law degree from Thomas M. Cooley Law School in 1989.

Although he's never worked as a prosecutor, Telgenhof said he clerked at the prosecuting attorney's appellate office in the Michigan Attorney General's office while in law school.

Telgenhof moved to Charlevoix in 1994 and has been a part of several law firms since. Today he is a partner with Valerie Snyder in Telgenhof & Snyder.

This won't be his first time seeking public office. He served on the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education from 1995-2003 and on the Clio Area Schools Board of Education from 1992-1994. He's also served on the Charlevoix Planning Commission and in many other boards and organizations in the Charlevoix area.

Telgenhof also is the Charlevoix High School head varsity baseball coach and does play-by-play radio broadcasts of Charlevoix football and basketball games.

He said several factors played a role in deciding now is the time to seek the prosecutor's seat.

Some of it, he said, was timing — the right time for him in his personal and professional life and the right time in the Charlevoix County legal community.

But he also acknowledged while he considers Jarema a friend, some of the controversy that has surrounded the prosecutor's office recently did factor into his decision.

"I don't know what has, or has not happened in (the prosecutor's) office," Telgenhof said. "Even if (all the allegations) are untrue, it still concerns me."

In recent months Jarema has faced several issues involving his handling of Freedom of Information Act requests and a case that went to the Michigan Court of Appeals, and most recently he's been openly accused of multiple acts of misconduct by his chief assistant prosecutor Shaynee Fanara.

Telgenhof said he has no specific agenda for his campaign.

"Overall, I think my goal would be to run the office to avoid controversy," Telegenhof said. "I'm not laying that all at John's feet, but that's what people are asking for."

Telgenhof said he feels confident not only in his ability to make the transition to the "other table" in the courtroom, but also in his abilities to manage the prosecutor's office.

"I've been trying cases for 20 years," he said.

Responding to Telgenhof's election bid announcement Thursday, Jarema said, "I've known Allen for a long time. I even worked with him for a couple years."

Jarema was referring to a roughly two-year period where he and Telgenhof worked for the same firm before Jarema was elected to the prosecutor's post.

"He's a good guy. We go to the same church. I consider him a friend."

"I'm not surprised that someone is throwing their name in (for the election) given the media barrage I've been under," Jarema said. "Whoever does (file to run against him) will have a leg up with the positive press coverage. The community has not seen many positive story on the prosecutor's office recently."

He added: "I love the prosecutor's office and I love what I do and I look forward to a good election race."

Nomination petitions for the August primary are available at the Charlevoix County Clerk's office, 203 Antrim St., Charlevoix. Deadline to file is at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 15. Call (231) 547-7200 for more information.

Commissioners react to released emails

Newspaper receives two messages after records lawsuit

Sheri McWhirter

Evans

Gillespie

Christensen

Reinhardt

CHARLEVOIX — All but one Charlevoix County commissioner said emails requested last year by the Petoskey News-Review under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act should have been released, rather than fighting the newspaper in court, especially considering the relatively benign content of the emails at issue.

"Given the content of the emails, it was not worth it," said Rich Gillespie, commissioner from Beaver Island.

In August last year, the newspaper filed a lawsuit against the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners and the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office. The civil complaint alleged three violations of the state's Freedom of Information Act, following a freedom of information fight that carried on for several months.

The News-Review's suit sought to compel county officials to release emails Charlevoix County prosecutor John Jarema previously refused to reveal between himself and Chris Christensen, a county commissioner from Boyne City. The newspaper originally requested the emails to determine whether Jarema and Christensen communicated via email during board meetings.

"If it had been me, I'd have given up the emails because there wasn't anything in them worth not turning over," said Joel Evans, board chairman from South Arm Township. "Our good prosecutor says he didn't do anything wrong, but you have to prove it."

Emmet County Circuit Court Judge Charles Johnson ruled on the lawsuit last month. He said that among the six emails in question from the newspaper's multiple FOIA requests, the first four will remain private because they are computer-generated real estate advertisements sent from Christensen to Jarema, also the county commission's civil counsel. While they aren't public records, Jarema could have released them to show "candor and openness as to the workings of government, consistent with the spirit of FOIA," Johnson wrote.

The judge ordered county officials to release the fifth and sixth emails, even if in redacted form, ruling Jarema violated the Freedom of Information Act in refusing to release them. Johnson further ruled Jarema acted "arbitrary and capriciously" in his dealings with the newspaper over this matter. Petoskey-based attorney Gretchen Olsen, who defended the county in the FOIA suit, sent the two emails to the Petoskey News-Review on March 20.

The fifth email in question contains no text written by Christensen, simply an online link to a nearly $350,000 real estate listing in Boyne City sent to Jarema's Yahoo address. Jarema had argued the email maintained a connection to a criminal embezzlement investigation, the reason he previously refused to reveal the email.

The sixth and final email Christensen sent to Evans, as well as a carbon copy of the message to Jarema's Yahoo account. The released document includes some text Christensen wrote about bringing forward a concern to his immediate supervisor, according to county policy — effectively a cover letter to the attachments.

That email's attachments includes an online printout of a newspaper article from the Petoskey News-Review in April 2011. That article reported Christensen's failed attempt to place a written sanction into the personnel file for Larry Sullivan, county planner, as well as an on-the-record comment from county commissioner Shirlene Tripp, of Hayes Township, about Christensen behaving "like a schoolyard bully."

However, one attachment to that sixth email remains withheld by county officials. It deals with Christensen's concerns with a fellow commissioner, according to court records.

Christensen sent the sixth email at 10:53 a.m. on May 12, 2011, and the real estate listing at 12:48 p.m. on May 19, 2011, according to the metadata associated with the messages. Neither of those were sent during a public commissioners' meeting.

Tripp said that regardless of the cost to both the county and the newspaper, she believes the emails should simply have been turned over, especially since the newspaper requested them to confirm whether Charlevoix County officials held to standards required by the Michigan Open Meetings Act.

"It would have been much easier," she said.

Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt, of Marion Township, said he never thought fighting the FOIA requests made sense.

"We should never have fought something so trivial. It was a waste of energy by him (Jarema) and a waste of money hiring an attorney," Drebenstedt said.

Gillespie echoed that sentiment.

"Unfortunately it cost us a lot of money to prove our point that it was much ado about nothing. They (the emails) should have been handed over, in my opinion, from day one," Gillespie said.

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt, of Wilson Township, said that in retrospect, this is a learning experience about what to do next time.

"If it would come up again, I would say 'Hey, turn them loose.' When it comes to mistakes, just don't make them a second time," Reinhardt said.

Christensen remains the sole county commissioner to firmly stand behind the county's initial position on both the FOIA requests and subsequent lawsuit.

"I think that it's important not to lose sight that it's not about the one and a half emails that were turned over, it was the four and a half that were not," Christensen said. "Without an administrator, there are policies we have in the county that have to be followed and the employees have to know the chain of command is secure."

Christensen elaborated how the county took the stand it did to protect its confidentiality policy.

"I think that if the administration at the News-Review would have met with us when we offered to, a lot of this could have been avoided," Christensen said.

However, both newspaper publisher Doug Caldwell and the News-Review's media attorney Robin Luce Herrmann said county officials never requested a meeting prior to the FOIA lawsuit.

Meanwhile, it remains unknown what the total financial cost to both the county and the newspaper will be. Johnson ordered that a hearing will be scheduled to award attorneys' fees and costs, unless the parties can come to an agreement, which has not yet happened.

Timeline unveiled for superintendent search

Deadline Monday for community input on candidate qualities, profile

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education and its hired consultant have laid out a plan and timeline for the board's ongoing search for a new district superintendent.

At a sparsely-attended public input session (only six people — three of them students — attended) at the Charlevoix High School Wednesday, Michigan Association of School Boards consultant Alan Kantola laid out the tentative schedule.

"The goal is to attract as many qualified applicants as we can," Kantola said.

The first step, he said, will be collecting input from the school board, staff, students and community on what qualities they'd like to see in the next superintendent. To do this Kantola has met with staff and the board and is asking others to fill out two forms. The forms can be downloaded on the district's website, the Charlevoix Courier's website or picked up at the Charlevoix Public Schools administrative offices at 104 East St. Mary's Drive. Forms must be filled out and turned back in to the administrative office by noon Monday, April 23.

Kantola will then analyze the data and the board will meet for a work session on April 30 to formalize a profile for the desired candidates.

The deadline for application to be submitted for the position will be noon on June 11. Kantola said a few days later the board would meet again to narrow down the list of candidates to about six for interviews.

He reminded the small audience that the list of applicants remains confidential until they agree to interviews.

He said the tentative plan calls for the board to split candidate interviews, which will be at public meetings, over two nights — June 18 and June 20. He said the board would then likely meet again on June 25 to either chose a candidate or select some from the field for second interviews on June 27. If the board desires, it could do a "site visit" — a trip to talk with people where the lead candidate is currently employed — on June 29.

Finally, if all the pieces fall into place, the board could be making a final job offer on or around July 9, with the goal of having the new superintendent on board by Aug. 1.

The board is working to find a replacement for outgoing superintendent Chet Janik who will retire from the position later this month to take the position of Leelanau County Administrator. Janik has been in the position since May of 2007.

Late last month the school board selected Ellsworth resident and former Ellsworth Schools superintendent Patrick "Pat" Bootz to serve as its interim superintendent.

Prosecutor goes before personnel committee

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Half of Charlevoix County's commissioners on Wednesday discussed personnel issues in prosecutor John Jarema's office, but went into closed session to do so.

The next Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners meeting is at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, April 25, in the commissioners' meeting room, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix.

The discussion did not appear on the committee's agenda, but came up toward the end of the session after several other discussions about Charlevoix County Transit and the county's building department. The mentioned personnel issues are expected to be related to last week's presentation at the full board meeting by chief assistant prosecutor Shaynee Fanara, who leveled numerous serious allegations against Jarema. Trouble is, the public has no way to know.

Commissioner Chris Christensen, the committee chairman from Boyne City, simply said the committee wished to discuss personnel issues in Jarema's office.

"I preempt that by saying you have the right to go into closed session, if you choose to do so," Christensen said to Jarema during the meeting.

"And I do," Jarema responded.

The closed session lasted for about 45 minutes, from 11:43 a.m. until 12:29 p.m. After a brief bathroom break, the committee reconvened only to direct county clerk Cheryl Potter Browe to draft a memorandum to be sent to all Charlevoix County depart-

Animal attraction: Similarities at the root of furry friendships

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

After working in the profession of mental health for 12 years, I became interested in the study of animal behavior. I feel certain my watching "Planet of the Apes" on the large screen also piqued my interest. The more I worked with the human psyche, the more I realized how behavior modification or retraining our brain messages was not much different than what do to assist someone working in the arena of animal behavior. The more I delved into training horses and counseling children, the more I became attuned to animal and human behaviors as they began to blend. Then alikeness is reflected in laws educating us to report as well as donate to causes rescuing animals just as we see information reaching out to help abused children. Animal and human behavior is similar and each can learn from the other.

Though humans are considered the higher species for reasoning skills, there are some humans that would choose having an animal for a friend before choosing a human. Humans are adept at their ability to hide their weaknesses, to scheme and to deceive where an animal is an open book. When I ask clients if they can turn to their friends for support, there are a number of individuals who lack trust in humans and would have an animal for their best friend. An animal is open and understanding. Another plus is that they listen and rarely give advice which can be a good thing.

Another area we are alike in is temperament. Both humans and animals can change in a heartbeat and we need to heed the signs; focusing on the eyes, nose, brow and placement of hands and feet or, in an animal's, case their fur, ears, eyes, paws and hooves. An animal has memory and thus can experience pain, grieving, loss and the emotion to care. I've witnessed a horse wrap his head and neck around a child going through a sad time. I've sadly watched our own retriever as he expressed signs of depression after the loss of one of our other pets at home. An animal's memory is solid. They remember what scared them, what makes them happy and when they greet someone they haven't seen in years they can do so without the worry of forgetting a name.

Not having owned a puppy in a long time, it was nice to see what he reminds us to do on a daily basis: Stretching first thing in the morning is a good thing to get those cold muscles awake and yoga poses truly are inspired by some of our animal friends. Greet family and friends like your puppy would minus the tail wag and occasional nip. Exercising daily does the body good. Be cautious of situations that are new and never forget there is a world out there to explore; and to care for others the way we want to be cared for.

Recently I viewed a "You Tube" video taken of a black lab that braved traffic to stay by the side of another dog that had been killed on the highway. I also read about a cat that meowed incessantly waking its human family saving it from their house fire. There are photos online and in books showing lack of prejudice as we witness an animal raising and sometimes even nursing an orphaned animal from a different animal kingdom without thinking twice about it. Animals also experience overwhelming loss and may commit suicide; as documented in the London News "a Newfoundland threw himself in the water and endeavored to sink by his stillness of his legs and feet." As many a passerby would attempt to save him he would continue to jump free and back into the water.

The more we realize that animals all have their own language, possess an ability to learn and experience feelings similar to our own, the better we will treat them and not take them for granted. Animals and humans are more alike than different. So, the next time you spend time with your animal friend, remember he really is listening and cares about what you're thinking. Animals and humans can truly be each other's best friend.

Library to hosts program on thorium

CHARLEVOIX — Committing our energy sources almost entirely to carbon is costing us our earthly treasures; converting to thorium would enable us to earn them back. That will be the theme of a program on thorium at the Charlevoix Public Library at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 24.

Dave Robinson will present "Energy: From Carbon to Thorium" to help people understand how he believes thorium can be used to save the planet and why it hasn't been widely adopted. The program will include clips from the documentary, "Thorium Remix," with Robinson's commentary and research. The video in its entirety will be shown at 7:30 p.m.

Robinson, retired, was a designer in the oil industry for many years.

Third Day pastor says 'Thanks'

Dear editor:

Third Day Fellowship & Outreach would like to extend a huge thank-you to the Ironton Congregational Church for hosting the very first fundraiser for our sister ministry, the Joppa House Women's Transitional Home.

The food was wonderful and the music provided by the Front Porch Pickers was just plain toe-tapping, hand-clapping fun.

We had a wonderful time and God moved mightily in the hearts of those who attended, raising just over $1,300 for the house project.

Health department cautions parents on underage drinking

Dear Editor,

Spring is an exciting time of year for high school students. For many of our area high schools, prom and graduation are right around the corner. Along with these exciting events, parents and caring adults should be aware that the end of the school year is also a high-risk time for underage drinking. In fact, statistics show that one third of the alcohol related fatalities involving teens occur during prom and graduation season. However, being informed and prepared can keep our children safe. That is why the Michigan Department of Community Health is encouraging all adults to "Do Your Part" to prevent underage drinking.

Although most teens will choose not to drink, according to the Michigan Youth Risk Behavior Survey, 69 percent of Michigan high school students in grades 9 through 12 reported having at least one drink during their lifetime. So, how can you "Do Your Part" to prevent alcohol use among teens?

- Set clear rules about not drinking and consequences for breaking them.
- Help your kids identify alcohol-free activities or offer to host an alcohol-free post prom or graduation party.
- Talk to other parents about post-event activities to ensure alcohol won't be present.
- Remind them never to get in the car with a driver who has been drinking.

April is Alcohol Awareness month, and the perfect time to have a conversation with your children about the dangers of underage drinking. All concerned community members can take part in local Alcohol Awareness Month activities during the month of April. Visit www.michigan.gov/mdch-bsaas to find local events or town hall meetings.

Amy Speigl

Northwest Academy Advanced Band members participated in the third annual Michigan Charter School Solo and Ensemble Festival Saturday, April 14 at Woodland School in Traverse City. The school's Advance Band also took part in the large group festival and received Superior ratings.

The following students participated in the solo and ensemble festival and received Superior ratings: Sax quartet, Madalyne May, Meredith May, Elizabeth Hodgson, and Abigail Kroon; trumpet duet, Evan Kroon and Graham Kroon; alto sax solo, Abigail Kroon; tuba solo, Eli Schmidt; tenor sax solo, Elizabeth Kroon; trumpet solo, Graham Kroon.

Receiving ratings of Excellent were: Trumpet duet, Evan Kroon and Dustin Prevo. Receiving a Participation Award was Beth Gohs, clarinet.

The Advance Band performed Capriole Suite and Pine River Trilogy and received a Superior rating.

"The band played with tremendous strength and control," director Gary Stutzman said. "The dynamic contrast of the band was highlighted by the sections of music that had beautiful lyrical sections as well as hard-driving forceful sections. The audience enjoyed listening to a very small ensemble playing at a masterful level."

Blog creator to speak at WATCH presentation

Peter Sinclair, creator of the hugely popular blog and YouTube series "Climate Denial Crock of the Week," will bring his multimedia presentation Global Climate 2012 to Charlevoix. The event will take place at the Charlevoix Public Library at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 8.

Sinclair is a long-time advocate of environmental awareness and energy alternatives. An award-winning graphic artist, illustrator, and animator, he has been praised by scientists at NASA and Penn State University for his "… arresting graphics and straightforward explanations to point out what the science really says, how the contrarians distort and misinform…"

Organizers of the event said 30 years of writing and activism in the areas of energy and environment, in addition to skillful creation of audio visual presentations, have made Sinclair's presentation on climate change and alternative energy one that has been called "excellent and hilarious" by Andrew Dessler of the department of atmospheric sciences at Texas A & M University. His informal, good-humored delivery and his striking, clear graphics and animations, make difficult concepts easy to see and grasp, organizers said.

Global Climate 2012 is sponsored by WATCH, the Water & Air Team Charlevoix, which has worked to protect the natural resources of Charlevoix County since 1983; and the Progressive Women of Charlevoix County. The event is free and open to all.

OBITUARIES

Robert E. Black, 81

Robert E. Black Jr., 81, of Norwood, passed away Friday, April 13, 2012, at Charlevoix Area Hospital. He was born Jan. 11, 1931, in Butler, Pa., to Robert E. and Helen (Robinson) Black. Bob served with the Merchant Marine and the U.S. Navy.

On Sept. 29, 1949, Bob married Margaret "Sherry" Boschma. They made their home in Grosse Isle. Bob worked for McLouth Steel in Trenton for 32 years. In the early 1980s, they moved to Norwood.

Bob was a member of the Norwood United Methodist Church, the Charlevoix Senior Center and the Charlevoix Senior Bowling League. He enjoyed hunting and fishing.

He is survived by his sons, Robert E. Black, III, and his wife Barbara of Salt Lake City, Utah, Charles D. of Norwood, James L. and his wife Nora of Kalamazoo, Mark B. and his wife Dawn of New Albany, Ind.; grandchildren, Joshua, Tyler, Libby, Samuel, Melanie, Robbie, IV, Jamie, Jr., and Christina; great-grandchildren, Ramona and Morrison; sister, Edna (James) Walsh of Wake Forest, N.C.; half-brothers, Billy and Donny Black of Goshen, Ind.

Bob was preceded in death by his wife, Sherry, on Sept. 9, 1998, and by his fiancee, Leona Habel on March 12, 2012.

His funeral took place at 11 a.m., Wednesday, April 18, at the Norwood United Methodist Church. The Rev. Rap Posnik officiated and burial will be in Norwood Cemetery. Visitation took place from 6-8 p.m., Tuesday, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. Memorial contributions may be made to the Norwood United Methodist Church.

Bernadine J. "BJ" Hetler, 64

Charlevoix resident Bernadine J. "BJ" Hetler, 64, died Monday, April 16, 2012 at McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey. At the time of her passing, BJ was surrounded by love: family and friends gathered around her and her cherished cat, Rebecca, was curled up beside her on the bed.

Born Jan. 8, 1948, to Joe and Lillian Hetler, Bernadine (called "Bunny" by her family) joined older brother David in the family's southeast Michigan home. They later moved to Boyne City and Newberry. David reminisced that their childhood was wonderfully all-American, playing street games like kick the can and flashlight tag with the neighbor kids, family trips to the Michigan State Fair, attending the Hudson's Thanksgiving Day Parade and many special gatherings with their extended family.

BJ had a keen mind, a gentle touch and a wicked sense of humor. With her translucent skin, sparkling eyes and expressive countenance, BJ was a winsome beauty—a tiny package of iron-cloaked in velvet. She remained a bit of an enigma even to those who knew her well. Open but mysterious, quiet but opinionated, serious but at times endearingly goofy. Her wit was razor sharp and she was a wonderful sparring partner for any verbal fencing.

She had a tremendous lifelong passion for the written word. A talented and respected writer, BJ received her bachelor's degree in journalism from Michigan State University. She had an ability to ask tough questions for news stories as well as a talent for penning engaging columns and editorials. She was a staff writer and columnist for the Petoskey News-Review and reported on local politics and community news for the Charlevoix Courier, the Citizen-Journal and the Charlevoix County News. BJ wrote many nationally published articles on some of the area's most notable news stories for the Associated Press.

Well traveled and well read, BJ possessed an insatiable curiosity about the world around her. She was always ready to jump into political discussions, offering her insight, factual information and points/counterpoints regarding local, state, national and international policy and politics. She took great pride in being both an impartial journalist and an active, informed citizen.

BJ met physical challenges with grace and fortitude. Despite being diagnosed with Parkinson's disease at a relatively young age, she maintained a sense of optimism and moved forward with dignity and perseverance. Her willingness to undergo experimental treatment at the University of Michigan and her bravery in fighting this insidious disease were an inspiration to all who knew her.

For those who loved her, the only negative thing one could say about BJ was that she was notorious for her inability to arrive anywhere on time. "BJ Time" was characteristically late (often quite late). Friends joked that she would probably be late for her own funeral, but she got the last word (and the last laugh): There will be no funeral at her request.

BJ was preceded in death by her parents, to whom she was devoted. She is survived by her brother David Hetler and his wife Barb. She was cherished as "Aunt Bunny" by her nieces and nephews and "Great Aunt Bunny" by their children.

Also surviving are her canine companion, Dylan and her best cat confidant, 18 year old Rebecca.

In addition, she leaves behind a large group of friends who loved her madly and without reservation.

BJ's family and friends thank the wonderful caregivers on the third floor of McLaren — Northern Michigan for making her comfortable and safe during the last week of her life. Also, special thanks to Drs. Call and Galloway from Northern Michigan Hematology and Oncology. We are especially grateful to Dr. Galloway for her insistence that calls be made to bring people to BJ's bedside early Monday morning. It was a blessing to be with our darling BJ as her beautiful soul took flight.

Those wishing to honor BJ in memoriam may do so with contributions to the Charlevoix Area Humane Society 614 Beardsley St., Boyne City, MI 49712.

Christensen said the memo should include the following sentence:

"It is the expectations of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' personnel and internal government committee that all department heads, elected and non-elected, are to adhere to county policies and processes," Christensen said.

Commissioner Joel Evans, the full board chairman from South Arm Township, provided a visual aid.

"This is what they should stick to," Evans said, while holding up the county's employee handbook.

Last week, Fanara spoke during the public comment section of the full board meeting and pleaded for help from commissioners for what she described as Jarema's ceaseless harassment and bullying. She also called him out with various accusations of unethical behavior.

Fanara accused Jarema of lying to county commissioners and a judge, refusing to pay her for work she did, launching a false investigation into her on-the-clock county hours and perhaps the most egregious allegation — that Jarema spread false rumors about her having sex with a defense attorney in exchange for better plea bargains. That came as retaliation, Fanara said, after she filed a grievance against Jarema with the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission for his alleged lies to commissioners and a judge.

Jarema later described Fanara's accusations as "unfounded allegations" intended as a ploy to file a lawsuit against the county.

Additionally, a county resident specifically spoke about the situation earlier in the meeting.

Vince Currier said — while holding up a copy of the Petoskey News-Review's April 12 front page — that Charlevoix County doesn't need more negative headlines and elected officials need to make changes to resolve these issues. He even made a suggestion.

"If we had an administrator in the building, I think this could have been resolved," Currier said.

He further argued that difficult personnel situations could be more easily addressed with both an administrator and the county's human resources coordinator, Kevin Shepard.

"I'm afraid that we're heading for another lawsuit and the county doesn't need another lawsuit," Currier said. "An administrator is something I really think we need to look at."

Second in History Series set for Monday

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society will host the second in its History Speaker Series on Monday, April 23.

"Charlevoix County's Contribution to World War I," including a tour of Castle Farm's World War I Museum, will begin at 7 p.m. in the Knight's Castle at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. Guest speakers will be George T. Lasater and Linda Mueller.

Lasater, retired Charlevoix County sheriff, will talk about the stories he gathered for his latest book, "Charlevoix County's Contribution to WWI." Mueller, a local historian who helped compile the book, will share the history of war-era built Castle Farms. She and husband, Richard, extensively restored Castle Farm's buildings and grounds between 2001-2005. Mueller will also share her passion for acquiring artifacts for the castle's World War I museum.

The program will include a guided tour of the museum, as well as the opportunity to purchase both of Lasater's books about Charlevoix County's World War I and World War II veterans.

For more information, call (231) 582-5326.

AARP Safety Program offered

The Retired & Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, a program of Friendship Centers of Emmet County, will sponsor the AARP Driver Safety Program from 12:30-4:30 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, May 3 and 4, in the library of the Petoskey Friendship Center, 1322 Anderson Road.

The program is aimed at drivers 50 years and older. The class covers normal age-related changes in hearing, vision and reaction time, and traffic situations most challenging for seniors. A number of driving strategies are discussed to address these issues. The goal is to reduce the risk of crashes, injuries and violations and make seniors safer drivers over a longer period of time. Many auto insurance companies reduce premium rates for drivers who have completed the class.

The program consists of two four-hour classroom sessions. Participants are tested on their retention of knowledge during the class, but no record is kept of results. The cost for the two sessions is $12 for AARP members, and $14 for nonmembers. Class size is limited, and preregistration is required. Call the Petoskey Friendship Center at (231) 347-3211 or (888) 347-0369, ext. 29 to register.

LOOKING BACK…

The railroad swing bridge that spanned the upper channel between Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix was completed in June of 1892 just two weeks before the first train chugged into Charlevoix on the 26th of that month. The following July 4 festivities that celebrated the train's long-anticipated arrival was probably the biggest party the town has ever thrown in its lifetime. Not long after this the bridge was given its first official coat of paint–pea green. After the last train departed Charlevoix in February of 1982, much heated debate ensued as to whether the structure, so long an indelible fixture of the landscape, could or should be saved. But maintenance, preservation, and insurance costs proved to be prohibitive, so the bridge was taken apart in 1983. All that is left is the stone north abutment where the bridge closed, just east of the buoy tending station dock.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." The disc is available at the Society's Harsha House Museum, 103 State St. next to the Congregational Church, from 1-4 p.m. Thursday-Saturday. It is also available at the Central Drug Store, Round Lake Books, Castle Farms, and Ell-Air Gallery. Call (231) 547-0373 for mailing and society membership information.

long before she took the principal's job. The diocese not only denied Veryser's claims in its answer, but also counter-sued her for repayment of the money.

Around the same time, the Michigan State Police began a criminal investigation into the matter.

After an 18-month investigation, the criminal charges against Veryser were issued on Oct. 31, 2011. In court documents, police say Veryser embezzled more than $100,000 from the school in all.

In the courtroom Tuesday, both Veryser and her defense attorney pleaded for leniency from the judge.

Her attorney said aside from her actions surrounding the embezzlement, Veryser has done many good things. As evidence of her character, he pointed to a stack of letters written on her behalf. Many of the letters were submitted to the judge Tuesday prompting a 30-minute delay in the start of the hearing.

He also said that Veryser and her family have already suffered a great deal of punishment, saying she's lost her teaching certification, her reputation in the community and claimed that she had even been "stalked" by others when out in public.

When her turn to speak came, a teary Veryser read a prepared statement to the court in which she apologized profusely to her family, the school and church and the community, among others.

"I'm ashamed that I was able to manage a school, but not the school finances or my own checkbook," Veryser said.

"I have hurt a lot of people, but I'm determined to show the community that I can be trusted," she added.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema noted that Veryser's actions — not only in the embezzlement, but also in the earlier stages of the legal proceedings — stand in stark contrast to the penitent position she presented in court Tuesday.

Jarema said when first confronted with the embezzlement allegations, Veryser could have chosen to own up to her mistakes and ask forgiveness then, but instead she chose to not only maintain her innocence, but also to cast blame on others — including filing a lawsuit against the diocese. He said those actions only served to further widen the rift in the church and community and increase the level of harm she caused.

Jarema also pointed to a section of the pre-sentence investigation report that indicates Veryser told probation department staff that she felt entitled to the money she took because of extra work she had been doing around the school.

The pleas for leniency by both Veryser and her defense attorney weren't enough to sway Judge Murphy.

Murphy said Veryser has many good qualities and he sympathizes about the effect that the sentence will have on Veryser's family — especially her two children — but that wasn't enough to outweigh the need for a stiff punishment for her crimes.

Murphy said of the four purposes of sentencing (punishment, rehabilitation, deterrence and public safety) the main focus of Veryser's sentence was that of deterring others in the community from committing similar crimes.

"That's not going to deter others if she got — for lack of a better term — some kind of namby-pamby sentence," the judge said.

After some consideration, Judge Murphy also did not grant a request for work release for Veryser — at least for now. He said he'd be willing to reconsider a request at a later time. Jarema had also opposed the request.

One concession he did grant was a reduction from the recommended 36 months of probation to 24 months.

He also required Veryser to either pay a $1,000 fine or do an equivalent amount of community service.

Veryser was taken into custody to begin serving her sentence immediately after Tuesday's hearing.

She was given credit for one day served.

Veryser's plea, sentence and $37,500 restitution payment also will settle the diocese's remaining counter-suit against Veryser. (A judge had previously thrown out Veryser's original wrongful termination lawsuit). Although the official restitution amount in the case is listed at $75,000, under the terms of the agreement the diocese agreed to accept half of that amount paid up-front as payment in full. Jarema agreed to the settlement noting that he would not seek criminal sanctions against Veryser if the additional $37,500 were not paid.

In an emailed statement about Tuesday's sentencing, diocese officials wrote: "Judge Murphy's acceptance today of Mrs. Veryser's guilty plea and sentencing brings us one step closer to concluding this sad chapter and the arduous two years of pain and suffering which have been experienced by everyone concerned. We are hopeful that we will finally be able to put this matter behind us and move forward with our energies and resources focused on the mission and important ministries of the church. We are very grateful to the court and the local civil authorities for their efforts and professionalism, and we ask for continued prayers for St. Mary Church and School, the Charlevoix community and everyone involved."

ercise their discretion, taking the circumstances into account.

In other business, the council approved a contract with MDC, Inc. for $700,791.10 to reconstruct the intersection of May and Garfield streets, upgrade and pave the White Parking Lot downtown and reconstruct Clinton Street (including water, sewer, storm drains and driving surface) from Bridge to Grant Street. The bid does not include curb extensions or "bump-outs" that had been proposed for the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets.

City staff and Performance Engineering had suggested that since the area would be torn up anyway, it would be a good time to consider adding the extension to both improve pedestrian safety and possibly traffic flow in the downtown during busy summer months.

The logic of the proposal as explained by Performance Engineering's Jim Malewicz, was that by reducing the distance between the curbs, and consequently the time it takes for pedestrians to cross the street, it may help with traffic, especially cars trying to make left turns off Clinton on to Bridge Street.

The council has spent several meetings debating the merits of the intersection alignment. Last month they conducted a special on-site work session where engineers drew the approximate location of the extension and fire trucks and a 55-foot semi and trailer went through various turn maneuvers.

Council member Lyle Gennett had been the most vocal opponent of the extensions citing concerns about emergency vehicles passing through town during the busy summer season. Council member Dennis Kusina said he wasn't opposed to the extensions, but didn't feel they offered enough benefit to warrant their $29,000 price tag. The motion to approve the road work, without the curb extensions passed 3-1, with council member Greg Stevens casting the sole dissenting vote. Stevens said he had received only one call from a resident in opposition to the extension.

City staff had originally hoped to have the Clinton Street work extend all the way to Park Street, but the Grant Street to Park Street portion was cut because of budget constraints.

The work in the White Lot will include 23 regular parking spaces, two handicap spaces, two compact car spaces and conduit for future placement of an electric car charging station.

The work is planned to be staggered to have most of the May/Garfield intersection work done before the start of the school year in September. The work in the downtown will start on the west end the week after Venetian Festival and crews will work east toward the downtown in hopes of causing the least disruption to summer activities downtown.

Business of the Month

DCL, INC.
[illegible] • www.dclinc.com

DCL has been doing business in Charlevoix since 1981. In recent years they have also taken over Bay Shore Steel Works located half way between Petoskey and Charlevoix on US 31. According to President Tim English the best part of being in business in Northern Michigan is "living and working where others just come for vacation." They chose the field they are in because it was a opportunity to build business and compete world wide. The one thing left on their bucket list according to English it's to increase the size of the company to allow for more local jobs and of course a company owned G650 Gulfstream jet for all their long business trips!

The Rayders who are 1-2 overall, 1-1 league were scheduled to host a doubleheader against Traverse City St. Francis on Tuesday, but those games were postponed because of weather.

Those games have been rescheduled for Friday, April 27, and will replace a meeting with non-conference Suttons Bay that had been set for that date.

In JV action on Friday, The Rayders split a twinbill with Kalkaska.

Logan Eckhardt had three hits and three RBI in leading the Rayders to a 10-8 win in the nightcap after falling 5-2 in the opener.

BOYNE FALLS — Traverse City St. Francis swept all four doubles flights en route to 21 points in winning the Boyne Citiy Quad on Tuesday at Boyne Mountain.

Harbor Springs placed second with 18 points, while Charlevoix was third and Boyne City placed fourth.

Harbor Springs had three flight champions: No. 1 singles, Grace Carbeck; No. 2, Maggie Kane; No. 4, Emily Lesky. All three finished 3-0 in the round-robin format.

Charlevoix coach Audra Randall noted that Murray moved up to No 1 doubles from No. 2 doubles and played well with her teammate of last year.

"Their familiarity with each others play from last year allowed for them to be successful together today," Randall said.

Other Rayder results include:

In No. 1 singles, Kelsey Way was defeated by Boyne City's Katie Hicks, 6-3, 3-6, 6-10 in a tiebreak. She then was defeated by St. Francis' Diana Matuszuk and Harbor Springs Grace Carbeck.

In No. 4 doubles, Erin Stebe/Paige Poirier were defeated, 6-0, 6-2 by St. Francis, then defeated Boyne City, then fell to Harbor Springs' Zoerhof/Wilkes.

"This is the girls second outing and believe it was a good start for us to build from at the beginning of the season," Randall said.

The Rayders, who are 2-2 for the season, were scheduled to play at Traverse City Central Wednesday, but that meet was cancelled because of weather.

Perfect kickoff: Rayders start 3-0

After opening the season with a victory over Grayling early last week, the Charlevoix Raydеrs varsity girls soccer team has continued its winning streak, with wins over conference foes Kalkaska and Traverse City St Francis.

On Thursday, April 12, the Rayders rolled past Kalkaska 7-0

Anna Way had three goals and three assists Thursday as the Rayders improved to 2-0 overall and in the Lake Michigan Conference

Way scored twice, unassisted, in the first half in helping stake Charlevoix to a 6-0 halftime lead

"Anna Way has moved from the outside mid-position to center-mid and she's just really has come on so strong this season," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "It's tough to learn a new position, but she's learning it well and her distribution has been great."

Megan Peterson scored two goals, and Lauren Bartling and Hannah Herboldsheimer added one each. Bailee Stevens and Carolena Elowsky had one assist.

Stevens and Bartling split the game in goal and shared the shutout, while Kelly Greyerhiehl, Savannah Joseph and Elowsky were the Rayders' defensive standouts, Madison said.

"Our back line is the same as we had last year and they work very well together," she said. "Their defensive rotation is great."

On Tuesday two second half goals by Hannah Herboldsheimer were the difference in the Rayders' 2-0 win over Traverse City St. Francis.

"We played flat in the first half," Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "We could not get off the ball and we were going against the wind. Sydney Carlson kept us in the game, and we were able to play much better in the second half with Leah Davis winning some balls for us."

Ellie Way and Megan Peters assisted on the goals. Bailee Stevens earned the win in goal for the Rayders, who are 3-0.

JV split

In the JV squad action, the Rayders posted a 6-0 win over Marqutte and on Tuesday the Rayders fell 3-0 to Cheboygan.

In Friday's win over Marquette Kaitlyn Hinkley and Ellie Way scored three goals each to lead the Rayders whilel Gloria Green posted the shutout in goal.

In Tuesday's game the Rayder coaching staff pointed to Grace Whitley, Cora Taylor, Wesley Drost and Jessica Paramo as the Rayders' standouts in a loss to the Chiefs

Marathon memories

Charlevoix teacher reflects on sun-baked Boston Marathon experience

Steve Zucker

"Awesome."

That's not the word most people would use describe the experience of spending nearly four hours running more than 26 miles in 80-plus degree heat.

But that's exactly how Charlevoix Elementary School second-grade teacher Nicole Sterrett felt about her participation in the 116th Boston Marathon Monday.

"The entire experience was awesome," Sterrett, 37, said Wednesday, her first day back to school since returning from Boston. "Everywhere you went in Boston the marathon was mentioned. The whole population of each town we passed through (at least it seemed) was out cheering and giving high fives, handing out oranges, hosing us down, handing out water, or just being supportive. We felt like celebrities. It felt like every inch of the course had spectators who were just going nuts."

Sterrett, who has run in the Charlevoix Marathon and the Detroit Marathon said the atmosphere surrounding the race sets it apart in her memory.

"The fans are unbelievable. You get inspired. They see you walking and they yell at you until you get going again and then they start cheering," Sterrett said. "The course is beautiful. You never get bored and it is a rolling run. Every hill you go down you go up another. It is great to 'feel' all of the different towns and their energy. Also, it was so comforting to know my mom, dad, husband and kids were there and that my whole school was rooting for me at home.

Indeed the Charlevoix Elementary students and staff surprised Sterrett with a send-off gathering in the school's gym as she was about to leave for Boston from the school Friday.

The entire student body crowded into the gym and created a "tunnel" complete with encouraging banners and outstretched hands for high-fives. Wearing a T-shirt with her students' photo and signatures, a moist-eyed Sterrett shared hugs with students and staff before she and her family saddled up for the long trip.

The big story of the race was the heat, and Sterrett said it was the talk of the town and the races days before the starting gun.

"The heat was huge, she said. "Many, many people were discussing deferring (to next year's race) two days before the event. It was a huge buzz."

She said race officials were encouraging runners who were not competitive to wait until next year and it was the talk in all of the hotels.

She said the buzz even started to get to her.

"I was watching my children swim on Sunday night and had to leave because of all of the panic and discussions going on around us," Sterrett said. "Even on the bus on the way out to Hopkinton, the start of the race, people were saying they were going to wait up until the start to see how hot it was. It was not an option for me."

"The heat was extremely intense. We were sweating waiting in the corral to start. During the first mile I was already dripping with sweat and I knew it was going to be tough. The heat radiating off the pavement was so strong and there was not much shade. Every opportunity I had I ran through sprinklers and found shade. My stomach was very upset, which caused me to have to stop three times. At each water station I drank at least one cup of water and dumped one over my head. I had to change my strategy completely to only thinking of one mile at a time. I could tell others around me were struggling, also. By the last half of the run many were walking.

I knew by about mile five that I was not going to break or even keep any (personal) records, so I decided I just wanted to finish. There were times that I felt I could walk off the course and quit if there was an opportunity. Then I remembered my students and my family and I wanted to make them proud. I was very excited that I ran up "Heartbreak Hill" and hills before it without any problems. At the end of the day, even though I was disappointed I didn't make my time goal, I was extremely happy to cross that finish line. It sure helped to have all of those cheering fans. I met a goal that I have had for a long time and I did it in circumstances I don't think I ever thought I could have. Also, it was empowering just being surrounded by other runners that I knew had worked just as hard as I did to get there, and were suffering the same fate. The radio and race announcers said that we had already done the hard work and this was our reward. It feels great to tackle a long term goal."

Despite the grueling conditions, Sterrett was still able to soak in the experience.

"Each time I came down a hill and looked ahead all I could see was a mass of color in the road. No pavement, just body to body. It seemed as if they weren't moving, but it was a constant blur of color. I was surrounded by people on all sides, snuggly, until the last two miles of the race. It was an experience I will never forget."

Sterrett said she'd like to try the Boston Marathon again under more "normal" weather conditions to see how well she could do, but, she said, the trip was expensive and the event takes place during the school year.

Looking down the road, Sterrett said, "I would love to do Chicago and possibly New York, but I just have to take one year at a time."

When she returned to her classroom Wednesday, Sterrett said she shared as much of the race with her students as she could because, she said, in some ways they were right there with her.

"My students, parents, and school were so supportive of me and I am so proud to belong with them," Sterrett said. "I took in everything I got from the race for show and tell and explained everything to my class. They enjoyed seeing my medal and bib and were so excited. I answered any questions they had and tried to let them know how important they were to me in finishing that race."

CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Already clad in Rayder maroon, Jason Katt stands outside Charlevoix High School Tuesday, a day after being hired by the school board to be an English and physical education teacher and to be the next head coach of the Charlevoix Rayder varsity football team.

The next chapter

Lowell's Jason Katt tapped to lead Rayder football team

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

Timing, they say is everything.

And it was timing that Jason Katt said played a big part in his decision to seek a teaching and football coaching position in Charlevoix earlier this year.

After a search that brought applications from nearly 20 people, on Monday, the Charlevoix School Board unanimously approved hiring Katt as both an English and physical education teacher and as the new head varsity football coach.

Katt, 37, will take over the Rayder reins for Dan Jess who stepped down from the head coaching position after nine seasons earlier this year.

Katt (pronounced "cot") comes to Charlevoix from Lowell High School where he has been the football team's defensive coordinator since 1998.

And although this will be Katt's first head coaching position, he brings along a coaching pedigree from one of the top football programs in the state in recent years.

During his tenure with the team, the Red Arrows have racked up a 147-25 record, three Division II state championships, two state runners-up, six regional championships and nine district championships.

He also served as an assistant varsity coach for one year and as the freshman team coach for one year at Flint Powers Catholic High School. He's also served as an instructor at various football camps, and a powerlifting coach.

Katt, who is a graduate of Montrose High School, earned his bachelor's degree with a major in English and a minor in history from Hillsdale College, where he also played football for four years. He's earned an additional minor in physical education from Central Michigan University and a master's degree in educational leadership

Fieldhouse frustrations

School board wrestles with how to fix aging building at Kipke field

Stave Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

"It's embarrassing."

That's how outgoing Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent and many others have described the condition of the fieldhouse at Kipke Field.

At 30 years old, the building's roof leaks, ceiling tiles are missing, the ventilation system is poor at best, and a person using the bathroom is afforded little in the way of privacy.

That was the report The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education heard from its building and grounds committee at its rescheduled regular monthly meeting Monday.

"When the architect and engineers got in there, it was worse than we thought," board and committee member Glen Catt reported.

Since January, Catt and the other two members of the committee, Kevin Pearsall and Mike Pearsall have been looking at how the district might go about fixing up the building, that serves as the varsity and junior varsity football team locker rooms, a workout facility, and is used during track season. The committee has also been looking at repairs needed to the pressbox, including replacing missing siding.

Catt and company made their presentation at Monday's meeting in hopes of getting approval from the full board to seek bids for a renovation plan that would only slightly modify the building from its current configuration, but would greatly improve its condition and functionality. Catt said estimators with his development firm pegged the cost for the work at about $143,000 and that's with Catt, Pearsall and Pearsall volunteering to serve as the project manager.

Catt explained that when the committee started its work in January, the members believed they were working with a roughly $70,000 general fund budget surplus as a starting point for the project. However, expenditures since then, including the purchase of iPads have reduced that amount to about $40,000.

Everyone on the board agreed that something needs to be done with the fieldhouse, but how to pay for it?

The board appeared to have an easy solution in the form of action it had, coincidental-

City council debates new liquor license option

Redevelopment program could open the tap for more liquor licenses downtown

Steva Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

The Charlevoix City Council is looking for a way to turn on the tap for one downtown business without opening the floodgates to a host of new liquor licenses cropping up.

At its April 16 regular monthly meeting the city council was asked to consider approving a measure that would be the first step in allowing an established downtown eatery to obtain a liquor license through a special redevelopment program.

The first step in the process would be for the council to pass a resolution declaring the Downtown Development Authority area a "Redevelopment Project Area and Development District." A downtown must have had a certain amount of development and investment within its boundaries in recent years to qualify for the program. Charlevoix's downtown meets these criteria.

Under the program, businesses in an approved redevelopment district can apply to the liquor control commission for a class C (on site consumption) liquor license, even if the license quota for that area has been reached. To qualify, a business must show that it has made at least a $75,000 investment in its building, and then must pay a $20,000 fee to obtain the license.

A year ago the same proposal was brought to the Downtown Development Authority Board, but the board voted not to recommend pursuing the program to the city council.

However, the program this time is being brought to the council for its consideration.

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — A plane crash that killed an Indiana doctor and his wife and seriously injured the man's teenage son at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport last summer occurred after the single-engine plane stalled because of inadequate air speed, federal investigators have ruled.

The National Transportation Safety Board's final crash report released Friday, April 20, also determined that 46-year-old Dr. Stephen Hatch of Fort Wayne, Ind., failed to follow the proper protocol after his first attempt at landing his plane at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport failed.

The report said Hatch's failure to follow that protocol contributed to the June 24, 2011, crash of his Beechcraft Bonanza that killed Hatch, his wife, Kim, and seriously injured Hatch's 16-year-old son, Austin.

The Journal Gazette reports that an NTSB factual report released last month states that pilots are instructed to climb to 3,000 feet and hold if they miss an approach.

"Instead, he maneuvered the airplane in the vicinity of the airport at a low altitude," the report said.

After Hatch's aircraft missed its instrument landing approach at the Charlevoix airport, he turned around and attempted a second landing on the runway from the opposite direction before crashing into a garage at the corner of Grant and Carpenter streets, according to witness statements collected by the NTSB.

The release of the crash's probable cause means the NTSB's investigation is complete, agency spokesman Peter Knudson told the Journal Gazette.

The report said investigators did not find any evidence of mechanical failure or malfunction leading up to the crash.

Hatch, an anesthesiologist and partner at Pain Management Associates, also was piloting a similar plane in September 2003 that crashed.

Hatch saved his son Austin from that crash. But Hatch's other children — Lindsay, 11, and Ian, 5 — died along with his first wife, Julie, 38.

A 2005 federal report on the 2003 crash found that inaccurate preflight planning resulted in the plane not having enough fuel. The NTSB determined that other contributing factors included the plane hitting a utility pole during its forced landing, a low ceiling and dark conditions.

Following last summer's crash, Austin Hatch was in a medically induced coma for weeks before returning to Fort Wayne. Austin was a standout basketball player at Canterbury High School in Fort Wayne and had made a verbal commitment to play basketball at the University of Michigan. He did not play basketball for Canterbury this past season.

In last summer's crash, the Hatch family had left Fort Wayne's Smith Field and was headed for the family's summer home near Walloon Lake.

See charlevoixcourier.com for the full report.

Stephen Hatch was approaching the Charlevoix Municipal Airport after diverting from two other nearby airports because of poor weather.

According to the NTSB factual report released in March, Stephen Hatch had filed a flight plan to land at Boyne City Municipal Airport, but while in flight, he requested to divert to Boyne Mountain Airport because of weather in the area and the municipal airport's lack of an instrument approach.

Less than a half-hour later, Hatch radioed and said he was executing the missed approach at Boyne Mountain Airport and then requested to land at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

Jarema quits: steps down as civil counsel

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County commissioners unanimously voted Wednesday to accept prosecutor John Jarema's letter of resignation from the board's civil counsel position.

Commissioners agreed to advertise for a replacement civil counselor as soon as possible, as well as to forgo Jarema's offer to continue as the board's lawyer until a replacement is found. Jarema's reason for resigning is being "short-staffed" and having concerns in his prosecutor's office that means he may have to audit all the files in his office, a time consuming event, he wrote in his resignation letter dated Tuesday.

Jarema did not attend Wednesday's board meeting.

Board chairman Joel Evans, of South Arm Township, briefly read from Jarema's letter during the meeting, including his offer to stay on as the board's lawyer to avoid a "gap in assistance."

Jarema's letter in part reads:

"I have been told to take a little time to reflect on this decision before I officially put it in writing but it is the right thing to do for several reasons. As I am presently short-staffed, I simply cannot devote the time to County Civil matters and give those matters the time and thought they deserve. Also, I have concerns regarding several criminal files that have been authorized through my office within the last few months. Those issues have yet to be rectified but I am seeking advice on how to deal with them appropriately. Once that process is determined, I may have to audit all the files in my office, which will be a time consuming event."

Jarema's resignation as civil counsel follows a string of county issues that surround him, both his legal advice and management abilities. He illegally refused to reveal emails requested by the Petoskey News-Review under the Michigan Freedom of Information Act, resulting in a subsequent lawsuit and public scolding by an Emmet County judge for violating state law and behaving in an "arbitrary and capricious" manner.

Additionally, Jarema's chief assistant prosecutor, Shaynee Fanara, spoke at length to commissioners earlier this month about multiple personnel issues directly related to how Jarema treats her and her concerns with his alleged unethical behavior. Fanara accused Jarema of lying to county commissioners and a judge, refusing to pay her for work she did, launching a false investigation into her time slips with the county and most shockingly — that Jarema spread false rumors about her having sex with a defense attorney in exchange for better plea bargains. That came as retaliation, Fanara said, after she filed a grievance against Jarema with the Michigan Attorney Grievance Commission for his alleged lies to commissioners and a judge.

Jarema described Fanara's accusations as "unfounded allegations" intended as a ploy to file a lawsuit against the county.

However, county commissioners on the personnel and internal government committee called Jarema into a 45-minute closed session last week to discuss issues in his office. At that session's end, committee chairman Chris Christensen, commissioner from Boyne City, ordered that a memorandum be sent to all county department heads, both elected and non-elected.

> "We have to move on and the sooner, the better."
> — Shirlene Tripp, Charlevoix County commissioner

"It is the expectations of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' personnel and internal government committee that all department heads, elected and non-elected, are to adhere to county policies and processes," Christensen said last week.

The county's employee handbook includes an anti-bullying policy drafted by Jarema's office.

Christensen said Wednesday that it would not be appropriate to comment on Jarema's resignation as civil counsel. Other commissioners, though, shared their thoughts on the development.

"It's part of the distress we see in the circumstances we're experiencing," said Rich Gillespie, commissioner from Beaver Island.

Commissioner Ron Reinhardt, of Wilson Township, said he long worried Jarema kept too much on his plate.

"He had to do it. Basically, I think he was overworked," Reinhardt said.

Evans said Jarema made the decision and he supports it.

"It's his choice and he feels that's evidently best for him and I'm assuming Charlevoix County," Evans said.

Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt, of Marion Township, said he wants to grant Jarema's request, just not the stop-gap offer to fill in until a replacement attorney is hired.

"I think that we should honor his request and he asked that it be immediate," Drebenstedt said.

Finally, commissioner Shirlene Tripp, of Hayes Township, said she agrees Jarema juggled too many duties and now it's time to settle the matter.

"We have to move on and the sooner, the better," Tripp said.

Commissioners also agreed a new civil lawyer for the board doesn't necessarily need to attend each meeting, but could instead research referred questions and send a report back to commissioners at their next session.

Christensen said he likes that idea, which would responsibly eliminate legal judgments being made "on the fly" by a lawyer listening to the public discussion. However, it will be up to those who submit proposals to decide how they could best serve the board, he said.

"If we could get bids back before the next personnel committee (meeting) that would be great," said Kevin Shepard, the county's human resources coordinator.

Jarema remains the Charlevoix County prosecutor, though he faces at least one challenger — Charlevoix attorney Allen Telgenhof — for the Republican nomination in Aug. 7 primary election. The filing deadline for nominating positions is 4 p.m. May 15.

County commissioners approved several millage requests for the Aug. 7 primary ballot:

— Charlevoix County Transit, 0.25 mills, four years

— Charlevoix County recycling, 0.15 mills, four years

— Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, 0.65 mills, four years

City assessing axed

CHARLEVOIX — Two municipal managers from Charlevoix County cities asked county commissioners not to ax property assessing contracts with the cities, but to no avail.

Charlevoix County commissioners decided Wednesday in a 5-1 split decision to terminate assessing contracts with Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan, despite the requests of Mike Cain, Boyne City's manager, and Rob Straebel, Charlevoix's manager. It amounts to a staffing problem that may not be remedied in time for this year's property assessments, officials said.

"This is a step, from my perspective, backwards," Cain said before commissioners voted.

Straebel echoed Cain's sentiments.

"I don't think it's in the best interest of the residents of Charlevoix County," Straebel said.

County commissioners discussed at length the challenge they've faced finding replacements for both the equalization department's retired director and a senior appraiser. Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt, of Marion Township, cast the sole dissenting vote.

Last week, Jeff Grimm, assistant equalization director, said they can't do the work if they don't have the employees.

"We're just not getting the applications," he said last week.

On Wednesday, Grimm said cities may have more flexibility in hiring workers to do the required assessing since they won't be held to filling a full-time job. Instead, they could contract the work out.

However, Cain said he worried cities will face the same struggle to fill the void, though they are exploring options to work together to find a solution.

County commissioners said they understood the cities' concerns, but there is little they can do about it.

"We don't have the staff to hold up our end of the bargain," said Chris Christensen, commissioner from Boyne City.

"If we do not have the staff, we cannot do it," said Joel Evans, board chairman from South Arm Township.

Commissioner Shirlene Tripp said she believes the issue should have been addressed six months ago when the retirements were first announced.

Kevin Shepard, county human resources coordinator, said the open positions have been advertised since the beginning of the year.

The current assessing contract ends in September.

Former bus driver sentenced

Bearss pleads guilty, gets fine, probation in pedestrian crash

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

A former substitute Charlevoix Public Schools bus driver was sentenced to pay a fine and three months probation for an incident in which the school bus he was driving hit a pedestrian last month.

On Tuesday, April 17, James Gilbert Bearss, 75, of Charlevoix was sentenced to three months probation and to pay $400 in fines and costs after he pleaded guilty to a reduced misdemeanor charge of failure to stop and identify at a property damage accident. He was originally charged with failure to stop and identify at a personal injury accident.

The charges stem from an accident that happened at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets around 11:30 a.m. on March 15

Police said a Charlevoix Public Schools bus driven by Bearss struck Jon Edward Stasevich, 60, of Grass Lake and knocked him to the ground causing minor injuries.

Police said Bearss was driving a 2009 Bluebird Charlevoix Public Schools bus loaded with students on the home-bound trip of the day when the accident happened. Charlevoix schools had a half day of school on the day of the incident.

Police said the bus was headed east on Clinton Street and turning left (north) onto Bridge Street when he hit Stasevich who was walking east in the crosswalk in the middle of the northbound lane. He said the contact with the bus happened about in the area of the bus' driver's window and knocked Stasevich to his knees.

Police said Bearss did not stop the bus, but continued on to drop off the students on the bus at Charlevoix Elementary School, according police.

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said when officers caught up with Bearss at the school a short time later, Bearss said as he was making the turn onto Bridge Street, he was distracted by students on the bus and did not see Stasevich in the crosswalk until the last second. According to police, Bearss reported that he saw Stasevich fall to the road surface, but did not stop because of the students on the bus needing to be dropped off at the elementary school to catch other buses.

School officials placed Bearss on administrative leave following the crash.

A condition of his sentence is that he not operate school busses.

Char-Em seeks millage renewal in May 8 election

What: Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District millage renewal to support special education programs and services.

How much: 1.16 mills for 4 years, which translates to $116 per year for a homeowner with a taxable value of $100,000.

Who: Voters in the communities in Alanson/Littlefield, Beaver Island, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Central Lake, Charlevoix, Ellsworth, East Jordan, Harbor Springs, Pellston and Petoskey are asked to vote on the renewal.

When: Voting polls are open from 7 a.m.-8 p.m., Tuesday, May 8.

NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

On May 8 the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School district will ask voters in Antrim Charlevoix and Emmet Counties renew a 1.16 mill levy for four years to support special education programs and services for more than 1,350 students with disabilities throughout the district.

State and federal law mandates schools to provide special education services to children in need from birth to age 26. Without the renewal, local schools will still need to provide these services and operate these programs, or pay Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District to do so. That would result in a loss of more than $5.5 million in local school district operating funds, according to intermediate school district superintendent Rick Diebold said.

"We have more than 1,000 students who have a variety of needs and rely on these programs and services," Diebold said. "There's just a whole variety of programs that students and their families rely on."

Char-Em works with students with a variety of needs, including physical, emotional, speech and language and various learning areas. The district also provides indirect support through diagnostic services, teacher consultation and staff training. Transportation services are also provided.

The millage was first approved by voters in 1981, and has remained at the same rate and has been approved ever since.

"Our local schools really rely on this millage. If it wasn't in place, those dollars would make the districts even more stressed financially, which right now they just can't deal with," Diebold said.

"We really appreciate the support our communities have provided for the last 30 years to help underwrite these costs for the districts we serve."

Just like Darwin's theories, scientific 'truths' evolve

Roger Knutson

I am convinced that most people misunderstand the functioning of science. It is probably in part the way we have been taught. Most science instruction seems to be about scientists discovering what are often presented as eternal truths; as the last word. The "law" of gravity is an example. In the usual teaching of science, such laws are discovered by scientists. We all learn the laws and we may use them to produce useful things for society.

A brief study of the history of science reveals a host of "laws" from the past that are no longer considered as truths. The Earth-centered universe, with everything revolving around the earth on crystal spheres, provides a good example. For centuries, this was the scientific law, the eternal truth, the last word, until Copernicus, and later Galileo, offered a simpler and, in all ways better, and thus more true set of laws about the place of Earth in the universe. Science has discarded as incomplete or erroneous, dozens of laws or theories that constituted "the whole truth" for centuries.

Most of the earth-shaking replacements of laws or theories in science take place too slowly to be established in a generation or two. So, for most people not directly involved in science, or in carefully reading its history, science seems stable and unchanging. This is the great misunderstanding.

Science is not about the discovery of eternal truths, it is about the best guess that explains ALL the current information. As more information accumulates through the operation of science, most of the best guesses are no longer best and are discarded in favor of more comprehensive explanations. These are the new "laws" or "theories." Since these new ideas explain more of the world around us, they are a better approximation.

Many people, even some scientists, are initially uneasy with radical new ideas. More or better information eventually solves most of that problem. If additional information does not support the new idea, it is eventually discarded.

As I suggested, most large-scale changes are too slow to register in a lifetime. Scientist are currently in serious discussions about such a change.

Charles Darwin considered the existence in the world of altruism; giving ones life or resources for another, as a major stumbling block to his theory of evolution by natural selection. How could natural selection account for an organism giving its life for another and in the process giving up its opportunity to have offspring of its own? Darwin did not have an answer. In the 20th century, biologists suggested a new explanation, a new theory. Giving up one's life for a close relative can be explained by natural selection. For some decades, what came to be called "kin selection" provided an answer, a theory, that explained all the facts.

Edward O. Wilson, a very prominent biologist, who knows more about ants than anyone else ever, was, for many years, an ardent supporter of kin selection as an explanation for altruism among animals. It explains the behavior and success of ants and bees, for example. Recently, in the light of additional evidence from ants, bees and humans, Wilson is abandoning the kin selection theory in favor of one called "group selection."

As an exemplar of the appropriate operation of science, Wilson is remarkable. He is 82 years old and has just published a book supporting the group selection explanation. His new idea encompasses more information than the kin selection idea, and he believes it to be a better theory. He is currently opposed by most of the other evolutionary scientists. I expect Wilson's idea to prevail in the end, because it explains more of the world around us. Wilson certainly doesn't expect his most recent theory to be the last word. In science there is no last word, no eternal truth. The laws, theories and ideas of science should always be understood as the best current explanation, not the final truth.

Senior Center thanks volunteer tax perparers

Editor:

Once again the AARP income tax team at the Charlevoix Senior Center has completed another successful year of free service for taxpayers with low to moderate incomes, giving special attention to those people age 60 and older in preparing their federal and state income tax returns.

From Feb. 7-April 17, our team volunteers, Linny Arnold, Randy Cebulski, Evelyn Davis, Bill Keehn, John Loucks, Nancy Moore, and Johnette Shoberg were able to assist 219 people through this tax program. Most of the returns were electronically filed, but we also prepared some amended and prior-year paper returns, and for some folks, we just answered their tax questions to the best of our knowledge within the scope of our training.

One of our clients (Rosalyn Goldstick) even offered her thanks in verse form:

"To all of you wonderful tax people for all you do, we want you to know we appreciate you.

If we make and error of a dollar or a cent, you seem to know just what we meant.

And if we will recieve a refund, oh gee, then you know how happy we will be.

So, we want to thank you for being here, and know that each one of you is dear."

Linny Arnold,

On behalf of the Charlevoix Senior Center board

Thanks offered for prosecutor's work on embezzlement case

Editor:

I was at the sentencing hearing of Keisha Veryser. I have to say that prosecutor John Jarema did an excellent job representing the parish of St. Mary's of the Assumption. He presented a thorough and informative case supporting the pre-sentencing recommendation. I learned many things that I was unaware of prior that helped me to start to heal from all the damage that has been done. I would like to thank Mr. Jarema, and the investigating detective, for all the time and effort they put in to this case to try and find justice for the parish, school, as well as for Father Hunko and the diocese. There has been a lot of collateral damage due to Mrs. Veryser's actions. But now we can all begin to heal and look forward to rebuilding the parish and school to their previous levels of integrity and faith.

LOOKING BACK…

This drawing shows what the channel looked like between 1869, when it was cut, and 1872 when the north pier was installed, followed by the beginning of the south pier in 1873. Originally, little Pine River, as the outlet from Round Lake was called, followed the base of the south bluffs until it reached Lake Michigan about 450 feet south of the present piers. The dark area along the lakeshore indicates the position of a sand dune and spit over which small vessels used to be portaged to achieve a shorter distance into the harbor. The dune was leveled and the sandspit dredged through for the almost straightened passage. Before this, toward the end of the Civil War, pioneer businessmen Amos Fox and Hiram Rose built their 900-foot "wooding" dock at left to provide lake steamers with cordwood fuel harvested from the Lake Charlevoix basin. This dock jumpstarted the economic development of the region as more and more people discovered it, then the opening of Round Lake guaranteed its continued success. The dock was utilized until 1882, when the channel became as wide as it is today, then was abandoned and allowed to perish under the relentless fury of Lake Michigan.

Historical society to present program on Round Lake

The Charlevoix Historical Society will present a program on the History of Round Lake at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 1, at the society's Depot, at Depot Beach. This fully illustrated program will be presented and narrated by Harsha House Museum co-director David L. Miles.

Presumably formed at the end of the last Ice Age by a gigantic block of ice that fell from a retreating glacier, Round Lake was almost landlocked and hidden from view for the next 10,000 and more years. Connected on east and west by two narrow, meandering streams to what became Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan, and once higher than it is today, the body of water was not opened to the world until 1869 when both channels were cut to replace the original outlets.

Since that time it has been the single most important element of Charlevoix's identity as it became what many mariners on vessels of all sizes regard as the finest natural harbor on the Great Lakes. Long an important commercial and recreational center for northwest lower Michigan, Charlevoix's Round Lake has many stories to tell from the last century and a half.

From the time the west shore was swiftly converted into docks and wharves in the 1870s, followed by the north shore's domination by the lumber industry, then the south shore's transformation by many types of businesses in the 1880s, Round Lake has witnessed the rise, decline, and decimation of lumbering and fishing, the growth of the tourist and resort industry, and the passages from one usage to another along every foot of shoreline. The history it has witnessed is a treasure house.

Light refreshments will be served. There is no charge for admission, but support donations are appreciated. Call (231) 547-0373 for more information.

A lot of people talk about visiting Charlevoix.

Today, Friday, one very well-known Michigan native is going to do the same, in hopes of spreading the word even farther.

Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau director Amanda Wilkin said well-known actor and comedian Tim Allen was expected to record the voice-over for a new radio advertisement through the Pure Michigan program Friday.

Wilkin said the script for the 60-second radio spot was recently "finalized" and the spots are slated to begin airing the week of May 14 every other week until the last week of June in the areas of Flint, Lansing, Saginaw, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Battle Creek.

She said the ad touts Charlevoix the beautiful generally and mentions petunias, Earl Young's homes, Castle Farms, Beaver Island, beaches, blue water and the friendliness of the area's people. At press time bureau officials were still working with Pure Michigan staff to find a way to work a mention of Beaver Island into the script, as well.

Although paying for airing the spots on local stations wouldn't jibe with the bureau's mission, Wilkin said she plans to ask area radio stations if they'd be willing to air it occasionally as public service announcements. Even if that doesn't pan out, she said the ad is expected be posted on the bureau's website for all to hear after its run starts.

In January Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau officials announced that they entered into an agreement with Pure Michigan to pay $20,000 for a radio campaign that would air in major downstate markets outside of the Detroit metro area. The total cost of the campaign is $40,000 but half of that cost is "matched" by the Pure Michigan program.

Reaching into the Detroit-area market would have cost an additional $25,000, something the bureau might consider in future years if this year's campaign proves successful.

The campaign is funded mostly by the bureau, which gets the bulk of its funding from a 2 percent surcharge that is added to area room rental rates. Wilkin said the Pure Michigan campaign will account for about 20 percent of the organization's budget this year, but it is not expected to impact the bureau's other advertising efforts. The Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce, Beaver Island Boat Company, and Castle Farms also contributed to the cost of the campaign.

The ad's script was developed in part from information gathered by a Pure Michigan team who visited Charlevoix in late January.

PURE MICHIGAN SCRIPT

They say beauty is in the eye in of the beholder.
That it comes from the inside out.

Well some say it lives in a small town in northern Michigan.

Where petunias blossom by the thousands,
The water magnificently blue,
And manicured streets lead to stunning views.
Welcome to the beautiful city of Charlevoix.

Where nature's stones
Have been crafted into one-of-a-kind homes,
And a magnificent castle stands tall beyond its era.

Where beauty lives in each hello,
Every sun-soaked day on the beach,
And in the simple delights
Of cold ice cream and warm fudge.

Hear the town's excitement, laughter and music,
Blend into a beautiful summer symphony.
And where happy people greet us,
In every shop,
Restaurant and hotel.
Sharing smiles we're sure to pass on.

Come enjoy the brighter side of life,
And feel the glow of Charlevoix's charm.

Because embracing the beauty around us is Pure Michigan.

OBITUARIES

Phyllis Jean Fitzpatrick

Phyllis Jean Fitzpatrick was born May 24, 1919 to Phillip and Jean Millward of Lansing. As a child, she learned to play cards and fish with her father and grandfather who lived with her family. Her mother taught her the art of cooking and a love of flowers.

After attending Lansing Community College, Phyllis worked as a secretary at Oldsmobile.

On Oct. 7, 1961, she married Doyle Fitzpatrick. They built a home on Beaver Island and in 1968, it became their permanent residence after she and Doyle retired. Phyllis' greatest loss was the death of Doyle on October 15, 1989.

Phyllis enjoyed traveling, gardening, photography, fishing, reading and assisting at the Beaver Island Library, and working to protect Beaver Island's natural habitat. She was a cancer survivor and gave generously to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

Phyllis is survived by Doyle's children, Leland (Kay) Fitzpatrick, Colleen (Donald) Lackey, Marsha (Robert) Huston and Susan Fitzpatrick; grandchildren, Mark (Jennifer) Alverson, Matt Alverson, Sarah (Josh) Paulk, Andrew (Alison) Lackey, Shannon (Adam) Riegle; eight great-grandchildren.

There will be a graveside memorial service at 2 p.m., Saturday, June 16, at the Holy Cross Cemetery on Beaver Island.

Many thanks to the Commission on Aging, the Helping Hands ladies, the Beaver Island Health Center, and her devoted, loving and caring Beaver Island and Traverse City friends who made it possible for her to pass away in her home overlooking St. James Harbor.

Memorial contributions may be sent to the Beaver Island Medical Center, PO Box 146, Beaver Island, MI 49782.

Scenes like this one have been cropping up around the Charlevoix area lately as part of an ongoing fundraiser the Charelvoix High School class of 2012's Senior All-Night Party.

If you've seen flocks of pink flamingos popping up in yards around the Charlevoix area lately, there's no need to have your eyes or prescriptions checked. What you've likely been seeing part of a recently-started fundraiser for the upcoming Charlevoix High School Class of 2012' Senior All-night Party.

The fundraising program works like this. For a small fee ($25), people can have their friends, neighbors, coworkers or others' lawns "Flocked by a small group of pink flamingos and accompanying sign explaining the fundraiser.

The victims also receive a letter that explains the purpose of the "flocking" and asks for a donation of at least $25 for the seniors' party.

The letter explains that the "pink darlings" will migrate to another victim's lawn in two days, and asks recipients to both accept the "flocking" in the good-natured fun it was intended and offers victims the opportunity to pass on the flocking to another friend for an additional $10 donation.

The all-night party is an event that parents and other community members host on the night of graduation day that offers members of the graduating senior class an opportunity to take part in a night full of activities as a class in a safe, drug and alcohol free environment.

Anyone who would like more information on the fundraiser or would like to "target" a friend, may call John McLean at (231) 622-2162. Also, anyone wishing to simply make a donation to the all-night party may send them payable to Senior Class Safety Net, PO Box 332, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Legislation floated for Charlevoix County runoff

Municipalities to consider storm water ordinance in coming weeks

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Sparkling blue waters are practically Northern Michigan's trademark.

Tourists come hundreds or even thousands of miles to admire the watery paradise, while locals are more used to drinking in the beauty. Trouble is, dirty water runoff that follows every rainfall or snow melt often results in the dark and pollutant-laden liquid from paved streets and other impervious surfaces draining into those pristine waters.

An effort currently is under way in Charlevoix County to establish a storm water ordinance among all municipalities — townships, cities and villages — intended to battle this repeated and common pattern, prevent flooding concerns and protect the quality of the region's lakes and streams. Township officials will gather next week at 7 p.m. Monday, April 30, to hear the final presentation about a draft storm water ordinance before they go back to their respective boards to consider the proposal.

The townships association meeting is set to be at Bay Township Hall, 05045 Boyne City-Charlevoix Road in Horton Bay. Visit www.charlevoixcounty.org/mta.asp online for more information, as it becomes available.

Meanwhile, Marc Seelye is the county's soil erosion control officer. He will enforce the now-proposed storm water ordinance in any municipalities within Charlevoix County that come onboard, he said.

County commissioners last month unanimously approved an intergovernmental agreement resolution to allow the county's soil erosion control officer to enforce the proposed storm water ordinance, if and where approved by the townships, cities and villages.

"It's going to keep our lakes and streams clean and it will make it easier to deal with problems with adjacent property owners without having to go the civil route," Seelye said. "Nobody wants to be flooded out by a big box development or a small parking lot next door."

Not the counties' authority anymore

The prosecutor in Grand Traverse County eight years ago questioned the Michigan Attorney General's Office about storm water management. The response stated counties can't regulate storm water runoff beyond soil erosion and sediment control issues. It's the townships, cities and villages that maintain authority to control flooding, the opinion said.

"This created a void in the counties that many townships didn't even know was there anymore," said Grenetta Thomassey, program director at nonprofit Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council in Petoskey.

Now smaller municipalities are responsible for the issue and if neighboring governments don't agree on the same set of rules, she said, it creates a "checkerboard effect" that can create confusion among regulators, developers and residents with different rules township-by-township.

Marilyn Beebe, Wilson Township clerk and secretary for the Charlevoix County chapter of the Michigan Townships Association, said townships really don't have much of a choice about storm water authority since the state said it's not up to county control. Plus, it's also about doing what's best for the environment, she said.

"We're just trying to follow the law and do what we need to do to protect the residents and the water quality," Beebe said.

Thomassey said she strongly encourages Charlevoix County township officials to approve the draft storm water ordinance officials worked on for months. Officials drafted the proposed new law after repeated township association meetings and legal consultations.

"We're hopeful we'll get all the municipalities to adopt this ordinance," Seelye said.

Townships, cities and villages can adopt the ordinance now or anytime in the future, or can rescind the law if it doesn't prove useful over time, he said.

Township officials two months ago agreed by general consensus the proposed law may be up to their authority, but they prefer a county official to enforce the rules rather than multiple township storm water officials. Builders and residents deal with one point person that way, they agreed.

"We'd like it to be somebody not subject to election," previously said Jim Rudolph, Hayes Township trustee.

Township officials also argued for a county-level appeals board to eliminate the need for townships to create them, especially because they said they believe appeals likely will occur.

What the proposed law says

Regulated activities under the proposed ordinance include industrial and commercial development, regardless of size or location, though there is an exception for alterations to existing sites that increase impervious surfaces by either 10 percent or about 4,300 square feet, whichever is less. Further, subdivision and condominium developments, mobile home parks, manufactured housing developments and campgrounds also will fall under the proposed law's regulations, if approved.

Finally, certain public and private roads and driveways that access five or more parcels, are longer than 500 feet or have a 10-percent grade or greater would be regulated under the draft storm water ordinance.

"We really want to hit the residential driveways on steep inclines that drain back to the county roads," Seelye said.

The idea is to use proper design to reduce maintenance costs and hazards on the road cause by temporarily and repeatedly flowing storm water, he said.

The proposed ordinance would require a registered professional to complete development plans if the expected storm water runoff is not completely contained on site.

All storm water management permits will be reviewed by the soil erosion officer, currently Seelye, and there are penalties for soil-changing activity subject to the law that begins without an approved permit, according to the proposed ordinance.

A county appeals board would be established under the law — as township officials suggested months ago — though the number of members remains blank on the draft document.

Read a copy of the draft storm water ordinance online at the Petoskey News-Review's website, www.petoskeynews.com.

What is storm water?

Sometimes heavy rainfall happens and a rapid snow melt isn't uncommon in this region, either.

Most think of rain water as a good thing. It nourishes trees and plants, reduces wildfire danger and leaves everything all shiny and clean, awash in that fresh-rain smell.

But that refreshing rush of water can have negative impacts on waterways that some never think about.

"Storm water runoff is when precipitation flows over the ground. Impervious surfaces keep the water from naturally soaking into the ground," said Kevin Cronk, monitoring and research coordinator with Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council in Petoskey.

Cronk is widely considered among the region's leading storm water experts. Some even dub him a storm water chaser.

"That water picks up debris, chemicals, dirt and other pollutants and flows into storm sewer systems or directly to lakes, streams, rivers, wetlands or coastal waters," Cronk said.

And it's not just street junk that causes problems — it's also animal waste and excess nutrients expected to come from fertilizers and other lawn and crop care products, he said.

His mission is to keep tabs on this recurring event to gather hard data, all part of efforts to educate the public, advocate for prevention methods and more.

So, overhead rumbles and lightening flashes don't send Cronk running for cover, he grabs his scientific monitoring equipment and races to storm water system outfalls. He collects samples when the often "grey-green" water spews forth from storm sewer outlets across the region.

Grant funding keeps Cronk monitoring this aquatic issue and the storm water project is expected to continue through this spring.

by Vi Keller Forreider, the owner of Scovies Gourmet Deli and Bake Shop located at 111 Bridge St.

In application documents, Keller Forreider indicated that the business had been in the midst of applying for a liquor license through the traditional channels, when a divorce caused a change in the business' ownership and prompted state officials to pull the application.

Keller Forreider has said she intends to use the license to sell beer and wine with meals and would likely sell liquor only during special events or a private party. She has said she has no desire to turn the business into a typical bar, or extending hours to 2 a.m.

During the meeting (during which council members Shane Cole and Bryan Vollmer were absent) a number of current downtown bar and restaurant owners said they don't mind if Keller Forreider gets one of the special licenses, but they are concerned about the competition impact additional licenses issued under the program would have on the viability of other established downtown food and drink establishments. Many said the competition from other businesses with liquor licenses would make already lean off-season even more difficult to survive.

John Haggard, who is part owner of the parcel where Scovies is located, spoke in favor of allowing the license.

Several council members were sympathetic to both sides of the discussion and wanted more information on what kind of restrictions it could place on issuing the new licenses. The council seemed interested in looking for a "one and done" option.

Although mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson and a memo from city clerk Carol Oehs said approving the redevelopment district resolution did not oblige the council to approve any liquor license requests, the council ultimately voted to postpone a decision on the matter to allow the city attorney time to investigate what options the council has for placing restrictions on the licenses.

NEW COACH

versity.

Speaking to the Courier Tuesday, Katt explained that he was interested in the move to Charlevoix not only for the opportunity and challenge of being a head coach and the other amenities that the community offers, but because it was the right time for his family.

Katt and his wife, Kylee, who is also a teacher, have four children, an 8-year-old daughter, a 7 year-old son and twin 2-year-old boys.

Katt said Kylee works in a different district than he does, and their school-aged children attend school in a third district. The logistical whirlwind, he said, was becoming difficult to say the least.

He told the school board on Monday that his focus in seeking the job was all about his family, and the moment they hired him, it became all "about the Charlevoix kids" both on the field and off.

Reflecting on the success he's enjoyed with the Lowell program, Katt said, "I've been associated with some extremely hard working kids and some coaches that have the kids' best interest at the forefront. Where doing things efficiently is the priority."

Hard work and the right attitude he said are key factors in the success of any program — academic or athletic.

"There's no magic fairy dust when it comes to a consistent pattern of success. It's hard work, proper attitude and an incredible work ethic," he said.

Katt said that he doesn't come in with any concrete plans for the football team in terms of offense or defensive schemes. He said he wants to get to know the skills and abilities of his team before firming up those plans.

"We will attempt to get the ball into the hands of the kids who can do the best for the team," Katt said.

He said his first priority will be to get to know his team — with one-on-one meetings and assembling his coaching staff.

He emphasized that he hopes to build a coaching staff that serves as a model of teamwork, just like they want to see out of their players.

"I think if the kids understand that this coaching staff is in it for them — to get them prepared for whatever they want to accomplish, we'll be OK."

Katt said the general philosophy that he preaches to players is "We control our WAE (work ethic, attitude and effort). That's what this program will be based on. We are going to focus on what we can control, and everything else is just noise."

And he said he employs many of the same philosophies in the classroom.

"That's what teaching is all about, too — doing whatever we can to make a student successful," he said.

In recommending Katt for the teaching position to the school board Monday, high school principal Suzanne Klinger said he came very highly recommended by his officials at his current school.

"They said it breaks their heart to see him go," Klinger said.

Katt said he will be in town a couple days per week for the rest of the school year working on getting ready to hit the ground running when practices roll around.

FIELDHOUSE

ly, taken earlier in Monday's meeting.

That action involved approving the sale of the final $1 million in bonds approved by voters for transportation, technology and building improvements in a 2008 ballot proposal. In all, the 2008 bond request was for 5.9 million, but school officials opted to hold off on selling the final $1 million in bonds until the end of the three year window it has to do so following a successful ballot request. Janik explained Monday that the logic in deferring some of the purchases — especially those related to technology — would allow the district get the most bang for its buck because of the rate at which new technologies emerge.

The board unanimously approved the sale of the remaining bonds to the low bidder, Charlevoix State Bank, at a rate of 1.72 percent.

Fieldhouse problem solved? Not so fast.

As noted above, proceeds from the delayed bond sale was intended for the purchase mainly of technology. Several board members noted that the spending breakdown was part of what was presented to the public during the run-up to the bond proposal election. In fact the plan calls for $850,000 of the $1 million to be spent on technology.

Although Janik pointed out that the board is not legally bound to that spending frame work and would be permitted to use the money for the fieldhouse improvements (a building improvement), several board members expressed concerns about deviating much from what was promised to the voters.

Board president John McLean was the most outspoken about his concerns not only for how bond money is spent, but also on the priorities for needs in the district. McLean wanted to put the brakes on the fieldhouse renovation to allow the board and administration to re-evaluate what the district's most pressing needs are now.

That didn't sit well with Catt and the rest of the committee members who expressed frustration that, after months working on the project, these concerns were just coming to light.

District technology director Scott Mays said he has no specific plans yet for what technology needs he would propose to use the $850,000 to purchase.

Board member Valerie Snyder said she shared some of McLean's concerns. Snyder said that while she appreciates the committee members' efforts to save money by offering to serve as the project manager (a, $10,000 to $14,000 savings, Catt estimated), she is concerned about what would happen if there was some kind of a problem with the project.

Ultimately, a motion to table the matter to a later meeting passed by a 4-3 vote with Catt, Pearsall and Pearsall casting the dissenting votes. The vote was made with the understanding among the board that efforts would be made to reconvene with a new priorities list in the next few weeks.

And if the board thought it might be able to carve out something in next school year's budget to help pay for the fieldhouse renovations, an update from a Char-Em Intermediate School District representative gave the board an update on the status of the state's three pending versions of the next budget bills.

The upshot of the update was this: The district could be looking at a $368,000 deficit, but a few factors, such as heath care and some pending retirement reforms, could help the district break even.

In other business, the board approved granting tenure status to middle school special education teacher Bridget Elowsky and high school special education teacher Courtney Funsch. The board also approved extending probationary teacher contracts for Montessori school teacher Molly Arnold, high school construction technology teacher Norman "Boogie" Carlson, and kindergarten teacher Adam Wood.

Clean sweep

Rayders run away with Ram Scram

Steve Foley
NEWS-REVIEW SPORTS WRITER

HARBOR SPRINGS — Later was better than never for the Charlevoix High School boys' and girls' track teams.

Originally scheduled for last Friday — but postponed because of the inclement weather — the Rayders made it a clean sweep at the nine-team Ram Scram Wednesday at Reynolds Field.

The Charlevoix boys scored in all but one event en route to finishing first by 22.5 points over runner-up East Jordan, while the Rayder girls scored points in 14 events as they earned a 16 point victory over host Harbor Springs.

The Rayder boys finished with 115.5 points, while East Jordan was second, 93; followed by Harbor Springs, 89; and Sault Ste. Marie, 67.5. On the girls side, Charlevoix finished with 146 points, followed by Harbor Springs, 130; Sault Ste. Marie, 77; and Boyne City, 66.

"It's a regular meet, but when you add in all the things in there that makes it unique, the kids really enjoy it," Charlevoix girls' coach Mary Plude said. "It's a meet that keeps everybody loose and the weather was spectacular."

All the relay events at the meet were co-ed, with two boys and two girls runners, while the 800, 1,600 and 3,200-meter runs were run in the opposite direction (clockwise).

"It was nice, we scored in every event except for the shot put," Charlevoix boys coach Ken Plude said. "It was a good team effort despite some illness, but we handled things pretty well and did a lot of good things. We still have a lot of improving to do, but we've also made a lot of improvement."

For the Rayder girls, Amber Way won both the 1600, 5 minutes, 31.28 seconds; and the 3200, 11:53.86; while Molly Jeakle was first in the 800, 2:28.62; and Madeline Boss won the 400, 1:03.89.

The Rayders also won three relays including the 3200 (Vinny VonLau, Annie Dipert, Will Jeakle, Molly Jeakle) in 9:22, and set meet records by winning the 1600 (Andrew Plude, Caroline Boss, Will Jeakle, Molly Jeakle), 3:50.47; and the shot put relay (Jake McLean, Kourtney Putman, Josh Hogan, Jenna Way), 51.60.

Charlevoix's Matt Baldorff tied for first in the high jump at 5 feet, 8 inches.

Rayders on a roll, improve to 6-0

Suttons Bay, Elk Rapids and Boyne City fall

Hannah Herboldsheimer, Katie Kiteley and Maura Branch scored the goals Wednesday as the Charlevoix High School girls soccer team remained unbeaten with a 3-0 non-league win over Suttons Bay.

Sydney Carlson, Anna Way and Ellie Way each had an assist as Charlevoix improved to 6-0.

Bailee Stevens made five saves in posting the shutout.

Herboldsheimer broke a scoreless tie about 10 minutes into the second half.

"We could not put the ball in the net" in the first half, Charlevoix coach Carol Madison said. "We had 14 shots in the first half, and they were quality shots. We just could not finish."

Madison lauded the play of senior Cristin Cole, who "came off the bench and did a great job on defense."

Carolena Elowsky, outside back, along with defenders Savannah Joseph and Kelly Greyerbiehl were also standouts, Madison said.

On Monday, Ellie Way had two goals and Hannah Herboldsheimer picked up three assists as the Rayders improved to 5-0 overall and in the Lake Michigan Conference with a 3-1 win over Elk Rapids on their home field.

Katilin Hinkley scored 16 minutes in to the game to give Charlevoix a 1-0 lead. Six minutes later, the Elks tied. Both of Way's goals came in the second half, the first 10 minutes in, the second with 18 minutes to play.

"It is always a good battle when we play Elk Rapids," Madison said. "Savannah Jospeh, Kelly Greyerbiehl and Carolena Elowsky did a tremendous job in limiting Elk Rapids' shots."

Rayder goalkeeper Bailee Stevens made seven saves.

On Thursday, April 19, Hannah Herboldsheimer scored seven minutes into the second half on a cross from Katilin Hinkley as Charlevoix topped Boyne 1-0 in a Lake Michigan Conference match on Thursday.

Bailee Stevens posted the shutout in goal for Charlevoix, which is 4-0 overall and in the league. Megan Peters was a standout for the Rayders.

Ali Cain made 18 saves in goal for Boyne, 1-4, 1-2, while Cassidy Shankleton, Margeret Durbin, Erin Baker, Dani Matthew and Mallory Karaszewski played well defensively, Boyne coach Nick Baic said.

The Rayders play host to Marquette in a non-league game on Friday, April 27, then entertain Harbor Springs in a Lake Michigan Conference match on Monday, April 30. The Rayders are 5-0 in league play.

On Saturday, the Rayder junior varsity team fell a 2-1 to Manistee.

Cora Taylor scored the lone goal for Charlevoix.

SOFTBALL

Rayders roll past Vikings

The cold and rainy weather that sidelined all Rayder sports on Friday, April 20, didn't do anything to cool off the Charlevoix varsity softball team as it soundly defeated Grayling 13-3 and 16-5 at home Tuesday.

Kristen Mielke and Katie Hybl were the winning pitchers as the Rayders swept a Lake Michigan Conference doubleheader. Both games ended after five innings.

Mielke allowed three hits and struck out eight for the win in game one.

Anna Moon paced the Rayders at the plate in game one, going 3-for-4, including a home run to end the game under the mercy rule in the bottom of the fifth inning. Also for the Rayders, Mielke went 2-for-3 including a double, Paige Montgomery went two-for-four with two singles, Chelsie Hoffman went 2-for-2, and also added a double while and Hyhl and Rachel Shull each had one hit each.

Hyhl tossed a four-hitter, striking out five in the nightcap.

Jennifer Archery had four hits in four plate appearance including a double to lead a 17-hit Charlevoix attack in game two. Hoffman, Hybl, Mielke and Nicole Pischner added three hits apiece, while Moon and Rachel Shull had two each.

The Rayders are now 2-2 overall and in the conference.

"We played well," Rayder coach Ken Hoffman said. "We came out hitting. It was a good team effort."

The Rayders may have a stiffer test when they host 6-0 Traverse City St. Francis on Friday for another Lake Michigan Conference doubleheader.

On Monday the Rayders are schedule to travel to Harbor Light Christian and on Tuesday the Rayders are slated to travel to East Jordan.

TENNIS

Rayders play to a draw with Elk Rapids

Ties were apparently anything but optional Tuesday as the Charlevoix Rayder girls tennis team not only played to a 4-4 draw with Elk Rapids, but saw four of the matches go to a tiebreaker a Lake Michigan Conference contest at Elk Rapids on Tuesday.

"Madi Carey played some of her best tennis this season at No. 2 singles," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "She was consistent thru her two sets and is growing mentally tougher."

Randall added, "And Emily Roloff and Ashley Lousielle played well at No. 1 doubles. Their focus and ability paid off for them."

Rayder singles results:

No. 1, Kelsey Way fell to Lauren Quinlan, 6-1, 6-7, 10-6

No. 2, Madi Carey defeated Kelsey Harrington, 6-1, 6-3

No. 3, Kelsea Steven won by default

No. 4, Lexie Barnes fell to Emma Elsenheimer, 4-6, 7-5, 8-6

Rayder doubles results:

No. 1, Emily Roloff-Ashley Louiselle defeated Sarah Tafelsky-Bridget Huhta, 4-7, 6-2, 10-8;

No. 2, Mallory Murray-Taylor Markgraf fell to Aubrey Webb-Rebecca Maylone, 7-5, 6-1;

No. 3, Shelby Isaac-Carley Scholey, fell to Elk Rapids, 6-4, 6-2;

No. 4, Erin Stebe-Paige Poirier defeated Elena Hubbell-Emma Kinery, 6-1, 6-4.

"The girls had some tough and competitive matches, with three of matches going to tiebreaks," Randall said. "Unfortunately we had two weather cancellations and had a whole week off, which removes the element of building momentum with matches from last week.

The Rayders were slated to travel to Traverse City Christian Thursday and then and Host Harbor springs Friday.

BASEBALL

Rayders split with Vikings

Senior Coby Herriman struck out nine and allowed just two hits as the Charlevoix Rayder varsity baseball team took the opener of a Lake Michigan Conference doubleheader from Grayling on Tuesday 8-5.

"We played well tonight in the first game," Charlevoix Allen Telgenhoff said. "It was a little shaky at the end, but we held on for the win."

Herriman had two hits and two RBI to lead Charlevoix at the plate, while Tommy Zipp doubled, Luke Klinger and Nate Moon each singled, and Shane Sutherland drove in a run with a sacrifice fly. Moon also picked up an RBI.

Andrew Potter was the losing pitcher in the nightcap. He allowed four hits, walked two and struck out four in the 1-0 loss to the Vikings.

"Andrew pitched a good game in the second, but lost another tough one," Talgendoff said.

Zipp doubled and tripled, while Herriman and Morgan Stewart each singled.

Charlevoix is 2-3 overall, 2-2 league.

The Rayders will host league rival Traverse City St. Francis on Friday.

In junior varsity action, the Rayders also split with Grayling, losing the opener 7-6 and winning the nightcap 15-0.

Adam Michaud took what coach Brandon Webb called a "tough" loss in the first game.

But the Rayders turned it around in the second game as JJ Bottomley earned the, striking out 11 while only walking two batters.

Noah Certa went 3-5 with two doubles and a single had two doubles and a single with 4 RBI in the two games while Andrew Michaud also had four hits with two RBI on the night.

The Rayders teams had been scheduled to play Boyne City on Friday, April 20, but that game, like most other area athletic contests slated for that day, was postponed because of the weather.

Text updates available for Rayder sports dates

The spring high school sports season offers many opportunities to catch local student athletes in action, but it can often be the most frustrating season of the year as weather — especially in Northern Michigan — often causes events to be postponed or cancelled.

Charlevoix High School Athletic Director Brian Certa noted that game cancellation announcements are often made to students during the day at school, but that information doesn't always make its way to parents, grandparents, friends or other Rayder supporters in the community who might be headed out to take in a game.

To help get the word out, this week Certa set up an account with the website gText.com. Anyone who wishes to receive updates on game cancellations and other Charlevoix High School athletics-related information can sign up with the site to have those updates sent directly to his or her wireless phone via text message. The service is free, however a person's normal text message plan and rates would apply.

To sign up follow these steps:

— Go to www.gText.com.

— Click the "Sign Up" button and follow the instructions to create your gText account.

— Search for and join a group called, "Rayder Fan Updates."

— When a user is part of the group, he or she will automatically receive correspondence.

0710 IN MEMORIAM

Ronald W. Haggard

August 18, 1977 – April 27, 2000

It is now spring and turkey season just opened, but it seems as though it was only last week and it was autumn and the Haggard Deer Camp was bustling. There was winter, of course, but it is now forgotten. Soon the petunias will be planted and summer will follow. One season flows to the next until another year has passed. It has now been twelve years since we lost Ron, but it seems as though it was just a moment ago and he was with us. Time may go by, but Ron is always with us. We remember him. We always remember him. He is with our Lord and Savior and we are comforted.

We Miss You, Ron. We remember, Friends & Family of Ron

Lessons in charity

Charlevoix Middle School fifth-graders learn about giving back

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

Fifth-grade students at Charlevoix Middle School are in the middle of a series of lessons that go far beyond the classroom.

Starting on Friday, April 27, students in Tennille Dhaseleer's language arts class began a three-stop "nonprofit" tour that will wrap up on Monday, May 7.

Dhaseleer explained that in recent weeks students have been working hard on writing essays for the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix essay contest. Through the contest, the club asks students to write about a local nonprofit organization. The club then chooses the best among the essays and awards the authors with $50 to give to the charity about which they wrote.

But the class decided to take matters a bit further before the contest is even over.

Fifth-grader Alyssa Cloud wrote about Safe Haven Ministries, which is a ministry that recently started providing breakfast for those in need on Tuesday and Friday mornings at the Community Reformed Church.

Dhaseleer said Alyssa had the idea that the class should volunteer at Safe Haven, and that's exactly what they did on Friday, April 27.

While at the church the students helped serve breakfast, helped with cleanup and made placemats. The students decorated the placemats with positive sayings or quotes they like or heard from others.

Students also heard from volunteers who work with Safe Haven on the weekly breakfasts about the importance of helping others in the community.

Dhaseleer said many students have

Plane crash survivor vows to play for Michigan

Hatch

ANN ARBOR (AP) — An Indiana high school basketball standout who survived a plane crash here in Charlevoix last year that killed his father and stepmother after surviving a 2003 crash that killed his mother plans to play college basketball next year.

Austin Hatch, of Fort Wayne, made a verbal commitment to play basketball at the University of Michigan before the June crash near the Charlevoix airport. He told the Detroit Free Press in an interview published Tuesday that he'll be on the court with the Wolverines in 2013.

"The most difficult thing is just missing my biological family, because I'm the only one left," he said. "I wish there was an instructional manual in how to deal with this kind of loss."

Hatch, who was 16 at the time of the crash, said he'll use a scholarship to live the life he and his father always had imagined. He has yet to be cleared to play and said he didn't care, trusting his doctors will tell him when it's appropriate. He said he thinks no one else can relate to his situation.

"No one that I know of," he said. "If there is someone, I haven't met them yet."

Last month, the National Transportation Safety Board said in a report that the crash that killed Dr. Stephen Hatch and his wife, Kim, occurred after the single-engine plane stalled because of inadequate air speed. The report said Stephen Hatch failed to follow the proper protocol.

After the aircraft missed its instrument landing approach at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport, he turned around and attempted a second landing on the runway from the opposite direction before crashing into a garage in a neighborhood near the airport, according to witness statements collected by the NTSB.

Stephen Hatch, who was an anesthesiologist and partner at Pain Management Associates, also was piloting a similar plane in September 2003 that crashed in Indiana. He saved Austin after that crash. But his other children — Lindsay, 11, and Ian, 5 — died along with his first wife, Julie, 38.

Following last year's crash en route to a summer home on Walloon Lake, Austin Hatch was in a medically induced coma for weeks before returning to Fort Wayne.

He was a standout basketball player at Canterbury High School in Fort Wayne. He didn't play basketball for Canterbury this past season.

Austin Hatch had a serious head injury from last year's crash. He said the recovery has been difficult.

"My dad's dad, my grandpa Jim Hatch, he's as close a thing to my dad as there is," he said. "So he's been very instrumental in helping me with the recovery process."

More names on the ballot

Nomination petitions for Aug. 7 primary election now total 18

Sheri McWhirter
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

CHARLEVOIX — The number of candidate names who will appear on August primary election ballots in Charlevoix County continues to grow, a full two weeks before the cutoff.

As of Tuesday, 18 candidates already filed their nomination petitions with the county clerk's office to be placed on the coming election ticket. That includes a dozen who seek two-year county commission seats and six who want four-year county-wide positions.

Four candidates will square off for the County board's district 6 seat, a new district drawn around the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township after the 2010 U.S. Census. Those candidates include former county commissioner Shirley Roloff; Dennis Halverson, former Charlevoix police chief and current administrator with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District; John Earl Haggard, a Charlevoix business owner; and county planning director Larry Sullivan.

Roloff

Haggard

Halverson

Sullivan

Additionally, there will be races in at least two other districts.

David Hague, a retired Charlevoix County Sheriff's office deputy, will challenge incumbent commissioner Joel Evans, who is current board chairman, in District 4.

In neighboring District 5, three candidates are already lined up, including challengers Nancy Ferguson, a county planning commissioner, and Dennis Jason, planning commission chairman, along with incumbent commissioner Richard Gillespie who lives in the new District 5, though he represents the current District 6.

Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt said he will not seek re-election in District 5 to instead focus on his health.

Finally, incumbent commissioners Shirlene Tripp, Chris Christensen and Ronald Reinhardt all seek re-election in yet unchallenged Districts 1, 2 and 3, respectively.

Prosecutor John Jarema seeks re-election but is challenged by Charlevoix attorney Allen Telgenhof. Clerk Cheryl Potter Browe, sheriff William Donald Schneider, treasurer Marilyn Cousineau and surveyor Lawrence Feindt all seek re-election and are not yet challenged in the Aug. 7 primary.

Nomination petitions are available at the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office, 203 Antrim St. in Charlevoix.

Commissioner candidates are required to secure signatures from between three and 10 registered voters, while county-wide office seekers must acquire between 50 and 100 signatures.

Completed petitions for elected county seats must be returned to the clerk's office by 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 15, while those seeking township office must return their petitions to their respective township clerks.

Three city council, mayor's positions up for election

For the City of Charlevoix, three council seats and the mayor's post will also be up for election come November.

Charlevoix City Clerk Carol Ochs said the nominating petition filing deadline is the same for city office seats as it is for county seats, 4 p.m. on May 15, but she added, that because city elections are non-partisan, a primary election will only take place in August if there are more than three candidates who file for a parcticular seat

Seats that will be up for re-election in November include a first ward seat that is currently held by Lyle Gennett, a second ward seat that is currently held by Greg Stevens and a third ward seat that is currently held by Shane Cole.

The mayor's seat, currently held by Norman "Boogie" Carlson, will also be up for election. All terms are for two years.

As of Tuesday, Gennett was the only incumbent who had filed for re-election and Shirley Gibson, who has previously served on the council had filed for the third ward seat.

Nominating petitions are available at city hall or at the Charlevoix County Clerk's office.

Hurry up and wait: Three major road projects ahead

No matter which side of Lake Charlevoix motorists choose to drive around this summer, a sea of orange construction cones will appear along the route.

State highway crews have returned to M-32 in East Jordan this week.

Michigan Department of Transportation workers were expected to resume work on the state highway Wednesday, May 2, after road workers already spent much time along the same stretch during last year's construction season.

The state's estimated completion date is June 8.

Workers will remove and replace a box culvert and also reconstruct the pavement from East Jordan to Airport Drive. Motorists can use a detour around the construction zone by taking Rogers Road to M-66. However, officials will maintain continual access to both businesses and residences where the work is planned.

State officials are also expecting to resurface 8.4 miles of M-66 from Hugh Street on the north side of East Jordan to Sequanota Road north of Ironton. That project is expected to start shortly after July 4 and be completed in September.

Work has also recently begun on the next and final phase of the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road reconstruction effort. That project is also slated to be completed in late September.

Here's a run down of the three projects:

1. Boyne City-Charlevoix Road between Horton Bay and Charlevoix

— $4.44 million in federal and local money

— 10 miles between Sumner Road in Bay Township and Western Avenue at the Charlevoix-Hayes townships line

— Start date: Early May, already under way

— Expected completion: End of September

— Flag control for traffic

— Complete road reconstruction

2. M-66 between East Jordan and Ironton

— $1.7 million in state money

— 8 miles between Hugh Street in East Jordan and Sequanota Road in Eveline Township

— Start date: Mid-July

— Expected completion: End of September

— Flag control for traffic

— Mill and resurface

3. M-32 southeast from East Jordan

— $2.2 million in state money

— Nearly 2 miles between State Street in East Jordan and Airport Drive in South Arm Township

— Start date: Early May, already under way (continuation of last year's project in same place)

— Expected completion: End of June

— Detour on Rogers Road to M-66, though access to homes and businesses will remain with flag control

— Culvert replacement and resurface

United Way reaches 2011/2012 campaign goal

Char-Em United Way marked the completion of its 2011/2012 campaign with recognition of the donors who took the campaign over the goal. Drs. Louis and Sally Cannon made a first-time donation to United Way which made the difference.

Nearly $390,000 has been donated and/or pledged from local businesses, employees and individuals to Char-Em United Way during its 2011-2012 campaign. This amount will be augmented by a $20,000 challenge grant pledged by the Frey Foundation. The total pledged is 2.5 percent over the campaign goal.

"United Way focuses on two areas that are dear to our hearts, education and health," said Sally Cannon in a prepared release. "We were long-time contributors to United Way through the workforce campaign at Lou's cardiology practice in our former hometown. But we hadn't given to Char-Em United Way until encouraged to do so by a neighbor. We are happy to join the contributors to this local cause."

"We are thrilled with the success of the campaign and grateful for the generosity of the community," says Steve Andreae, United Way president. "This will enable Char-Em United Way to support effective programs that meet health and human service needs in our community. With the effects of the recession continuing to hit Northern Michigan families, the need for a wide range of education, income and health services is still very high."

United Way executive director Martha Lancaster added, "We are especially pleased that it was a gift from a residential donor which put us over the top this year. Last year, the capping gift was from one of our workforce campaigns. This shows the diversity of support for United Way."

Char-Em United Way's 35-member volunteer citizen review panels recently completed a review of requests for community investment allocations for the coming year. The board will make final funding decisions on Thursday, May 10. United Way is continuing to accept new pledges and donations toward the 2011/2012 campaign through that date.

A campaign celebration breakfast is scheduled for Thursday, June 14, at the Ozone in the Odawa Casino Resort.

To make a donation, or for more information, contact United Way at (231) 487-1006 or info@charemunitedway.org or visit the website www.charemunitedway.org.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

A few years ago I attended a workshop for clinicians on the topic of bipolar disorder.

The speaker brought up the name Robin Williams as an example of someone with this diagnosis. It kept our attention especially for those of us with ADHD (attention deficit hyperactivity disorder.) His talk enlightened us about positives that occur by re-training our thoughts on a clinical diagnosis. Now we were all paying attention.

How else could a performer (Williams) entertain a large crowd never referring to notes, with a mind moving sporadically like firecrackers that had been set off. He needed to speak quickly to keep up with his thought process and sometimes with his propriety filter turned off. This leads to off color jokes or topics many in his audience are thinking but would never say in public. Thus, the laugh factor comes in. The audience enjoys this manic side but then our performer needs to rest and may become a recluse for a few days as depression and the need for quiet sets in. Medication helps our bipolar individual to even out his ups and downs but if this is not his route, be prepared to be see both sides of this personality and accept and understand it for what it is.

There are positives in ADHD. Some of our Olympic and professional sports figures have been blessed with this diagnosis as it plays itself out with high energy and the ability to hyper focus. You can also add to that list someone you may know who takes on many tasks and will be highly focused on the ones they are interested in. They will let you know the ones that don't interest them even when you ask them nicely to do the task. They usually are a magnet for other people because they enjoy entertaining verbally and socially and their enthusiasm is contagious. People with ADHD have the ability to find alternate paths to overcome obstacles and are willing to help others do the same. Also, I need to mention that individuals with this hyper-version of attention require less sleep so if you need someone to complete many projects, this is a person of interest.

A person with OCD (obsessive compulsive disorder) will never be called lazy. Someone with this diagnosis loves to learn new things and then purchase all the items they feel they need for their new hobby. Of course, they will then spend countless hours organizing and then re-organizing it all again. An individual with OCD will speak his or her mind when something doesn't make sense and sometimes without tact and diplomacy. These people will put out there what others are uncomfortable in saying and often are looked up to as leaders because they are not afraid to speak their minds. They work on things they are passionate about and did I mention they love to solve problems — their own and everyone else's. Actually, until a situation is solved, they will stay on it until it meets their expectations. Sometimes losing sleep is a problem as they cannot clear their minds of thoughts on the issue at hand, causing loss of sleep until the project or problem can be solved or completed. If you approach your OCD as mind over matter and focus on the positives you'll be extremely successful. Just remember to get those naps in to make up for your inability to get a full night's rest.

With all the labeling and self-diagnosing we are quick to do, this counselor wants to remind you to love yourself for who you are and be happy that you're so special.

In 1866, State Street was laid out to be the widest street in Charlevoix, and still is, because it was thought that the core of the settlement's commercial, religious, and governmental centers would be focused along here. However, once the two channels were created in 1869 connecting Lake Michigan to Lake Charlevoix, Bridge Street, until then a sidestreet, gradually took over the commercial sector because of its proximity to the waterfront, and then became the main highway through town. Shown are five towers, two of which survive, those of the Congregational and Methodist churches. The Baptist Church at right is now the site of the fire hall. In the foreground, the two towers of the town hall, built in 1883, later turned into the county courthouse in the late 1890s, were lost to a fire on Christmas Eve, 1907 and never replaced. The tall dark tower was used to suspend and dry the hoses of the fire department located within the building.

Zonta names 'Public Affairs Award' winner

Anna Moon, a senior at Charlevoix High School, has been named the winner of this year's Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award.

Organizers said the Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award competition is designed to encourage women to pursue decision-making positions in their communities in order to impact the policies that affect the lives of women locally and throughout the world. The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs program looks to the young women of today who will be the leaders of tomorrow.

Zonta officials said Anna was chosen because of her involvement with her community, her focus on her career goals and her understanding of and involvement with global issues and cultures.

Anna demonstrates her commitment to the community and school through her participation in FIRST robotics club, Model United Nations, varsity softball and National Honor Society, and her volunteer work with Early Head Start and food and blood drives. She also takes part every year in a CROP hunger walk to benefit those in poverty in Third World countries.

Zonta International is a global service organization of executives and professionals working together to advance the status of women worldwide through service and advocacy. The Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award is one of the many programs for young women sponsored by Charlevoix Area Zonta. Applications for next year's award will be available from Charlevoix Area Zonta in late fall.

Charlevoix Historical Society unveils new logo

Group hopes to create a bridge between the past and future

The Charlevoix Historical Society recently made a decision to rebrand itself in order to bridge history between the past and future; demonstrating how the past enriches our daily lives.

The group has been working with Johnson Graphics of Boyne City to complete this new logo and branding identity for the organization.

"We're excited how our branding effort will create a new energy at the Historical Society. The new logo is an artistic depiction of the Charlevoix drawbridge, which has been a defining historical landmark of the community dating back to the 1860s," society board president Denise Fate said.

Society leaders noted that the bridge has played a critical role in the community as a tourist site and as a key piece of transportation infrastructure that allows cars to safely pass over the channel year round and draws up to provide clear passage of larger watercraft.

CHARLEVOIX
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

The Charlevoix Historical Society has been active since the late 1800s. Their mission is dedicated to the acquisition, preservation, and protection of objects and places of historical value, to the dissemination of information regarding these objects and places, and to the bringing together of all peoples interested in the history of the Charlevoix area.

Some major milestones of the organization include restoration of the Charlevoix South Pier Lighthouse and Railroad Depot, digitization and safeguarding of more than 10,000 historic photos, and hosting the Earl Young Home Tour. Some current and upcoming projects are the completion this spring of a book on the history of Charlevoix's many shorelines called "A Mariner's Guide," and a historic walking tour of downtown Charlevoix created in partnership with the Beaver Island Boat Company.

Organization leader said one of the Charlevoix Historical Society's top goals is to broaden its appeal to a wider audience, and their new organizational identity is the first step toward this goal. Other goals include making the society a leading historical research center for the area, and fundraising to complete much needed major rehabilitation of the Harsha House Museum.

'Wear Your Support' for breast cancer

Annual walk/run event features new decorated bra contest

M. CHRIS LEESE/NEWS-REVIEW

Deanna Walter of Creation Pharm in Charlevoix (left) obliges Patti McCreadie of Charlevoix Women's Circle of Strength, Friday in her request to help promote support of the breast cancer fundraiser 5k walk/run May 12, 8 a.m. at East Park in Charlevoix, by decorating a bra for display in the store until the event.

The 18th annual Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer 5K Walk/Run will place in Charlevoix's East Park on Saturday, May 12, and will feature a new event this year: A "Wear Your Support" bra decorating contest.

All participants, women and men, are encouraged to decorate a bra and wear the decorated bra over their t-shirts or clothing during the event. Prizes will be awarded. Area businesses are also participating by decorating a bra and displaying it in their front windows.

"We are so excited to see the designs the day of the event," event co-chair Carol Sullivan, said. "What and impact to have the hundreds of walkers and runners wearing bright, wacky and crazy decorated bras! Anyone who would see this would certainly surmise the event was breast cancer related."

Registration for the event begins at 8 a.m. and the walk and run begin at 9 a.m. Individual walkers, runners and teams can collect "pledges" for participating in the walk, or sponsor themselves with a donation. Those who raise $30 or more will receive an event t-shirt. Registration forms are available at www.walkruncure.org and also at local chambers of commerce.

The event honors two courageous local women: Sue DeYoung, a young mother of four children who died in 1992, and Judy Edger, who was a driving force behind this event until her death in March 1999. Monies raised this year will go to the Charlevoix County's Circle of Strength Foundation, to provide mammograms for women in need, and the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, to be used for the free cervical screening program for Charlevoix County residents. All monies stay raised stay in Charlevoix County and benefit its residents..

There are several ways you can take part in this year's 5K walk/run:

— Individual walkers, runners and teams can collect "pledges" for participating in the walk, or sponsor themselves with a one time donation. All entries with $30 or more in donations will receive a commemorative T-shirt .

— Individuals can volunteer their time the day of the walk. Contact msullivanfamily@me.com.

— Those wishing to simply make a contribution may do so follow online at http://www.c3f.org/misc/misc-makeagift.htm. The link connects to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation website. Those using the site should be sure to note Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund.

— Corporations and individuals can also direct their contributions to the endowment portion of the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund. By electing to do this, the donor is eligible for a charitable deduction on their federal tax form for those who itemize deductions.

Kathy Speck named Beaver Island Citizen of the Year

The Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce recently named Kathy Speck as its 2012 Citizen of the Year.

Chamber officials noted that the many letters received nominating Speck for honor noted that for the past 35 years her love of the Island has translated into her dedicating herself in a variety of ways which benefit Islanders and visitors alike.

Nominators pointed to her love of music which has been shared through her leadership as the director of the Community Choir and musical events such as the Christmas cantata, Thanksgiving services and AMVETS ceremonies.

Her work as a leader at the Christian Church was noted in the nomination letters, as well as her love for the Island students and her support of its sports boosters events, such as the Chinese dinners made possible by "Chef Kathy."

Her work in promoting the Island and welcoming newcomers goes back years, and for the past 10 years she served as the president of Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

Chamber officials said Speck's lively nature of joining in all Island celebrations – from Halloween to the Fourt of July is well known in the community. Officials also noted that one thing that stood out in each and every nomination letter received was that Speck is an incredible friend to all she comes in contact with and has made Beaver Island a better place to live, work and visit.

St. Mary's group heading to Nicaragua

CHARLEVOIX — Ten members of St. Mary's Church will be leaving on Friday, May 4, for a Nicaraguan medical mission trip. They will be accompanying experienced delegates from the Gaylord Diocese who have been going to Matagalpa, Nicaragua, since 2004.

In August 2002, interested individuals from across the diocese of Gaylord met with representatives of Catholic Relief Services and began exploring the concept of a solidarity partnership, a spiritual collaborative aimed at establishing a working relationship with a diocese in another country. This initiative sprung from Pope John Paul II's 2000 "Ecclesia in America," a Millennium call for closer relationships between churches in the Americas. In 2004, the Global Solidarity Partnership between the Diocese of Matagalpa in northern Nicaragua and the Diocese of Gaylord in Michigan was confirmed and supported by Bishop Leopoldo Brenes of Matagalpa and Bishop Patrick Cooney of Gaylord. Partnership committees in both dioceses organized the first delegation visit to Nicaragua in October 2004. Since that time medical mission teams have traveled from the Gaylord diocese to Matagalpa twice a year

This will be the first time members of St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix will be joining the mission trip. Parish-wide collections have been going on since the first of the year. Parishioners have contributed everything from medication to stuffed animals and handmade diapers and blankets. St. Mary's School students also participated in a mission drive bringing in items such as Neosporin and Band-Aids.

Mission trip participants include:

Dr. Jay Balasz, dentist; Jane Balasz, student at Charlevoix High School; Doug Buday; Dr. Jim Jeakle; Madeline Jeakle, former Charlevoix High School student and current Michigan State University student; Beth Krakowski, nurse; Dr. Marc Lame; Kathy Lame; Kathy Lauwer, nurse; and The Rev. Matthew Wigton.

BUSINESS

Country club under new ownership

Fred Taylor, owner of the Georgia-based manufacturing tire giant OTR Wheel Engineering, is probably known best locally for his yacht club project on Lake Charlevoix is expanding his business ventures into another of his interest — golf.

Many in Northern Michigan know Taylor for his, Sommerset Pointe venture opened seven years ago on the eastern shores of Lake Charlevoix in Boyne City. Sommerset Pointe includes a condominium development, yacht club featuring a 51-slip marina, the Pointe Health Club and nearby Advance General Store.

The yacht club, which includes a restaurant, the Blue Harbor Grille, now has more than 400 members.

Taylor, an Ellsworth native who bought the Charlevoix Country Club in March from its founders, said his vision for the club is grounded in a theme of renewal.

"The founders were looking for someone with the vision and capability to renew the club to it's glory days, the late 1990s and early 2000s. They needed someone with the resources to put the club back on a path to success, a new course," Taylor said.

Taylor said his approach is three pronged and includes renovation of the award-winning 18-hole Jerry Matthews design championship golf course. His work at the course will include extensive landscaping to enhance the site's natural beauty. The course, which opened Friday, April 13, is now called Heatherwoods.

The second piece in the renewal plan is revitalization of the restaurant located inside the 13,000 square foot clubhouse and formerly operated as Mahogoney's.

The restaurant is being completely redefined and will be called Shanahan's Prime, the namesake of the cattle rancher, Ed Shanahan who historically owned and operated a beef operation on the property that is now home to the country club.

Taylor said he has secured a source in Byrun Center where natural, aged prime beef is raised and will be served at Shanahan's Prime. Chef Russell Miller is currently consulting with master chef and former Tapawingo chef/owner Pete Peterson to develop the menu.

"We are interested in having very high quality food," Taylor said. "But our key will be service. We will have well-trained table assistants."

While Shanahan's Prime will be the more upscale dining experience, the clubhouse bar area will house Shanahan's Grill, a less formal restaurant.

The clubhouse will not only serve as the site of these new restaurants, it is also a key player in the third piece in Taylor's plan — maximizing the club's event planning potential for weddings, receptions, corporate meetings and more.

While the restaurant and golf course will remain open to the public, Charlevoix Country Club members will enjoy exclusive access to the Augusta National Room and a plush loft gaming room, the pool, tennis courts and fitness and wellness facilities in addition to discounted dining and members-only year-round events.

Taylor's goal is to have 100 full golf and 100 social memberships in place by the end of 2012. To kickoff the membership drive, Taylor is granting country club members complimentary membership at Sommerset Pointe and reciprocally, yacht club members will be given discounted golf play at the country club course.

To ramp up for the debut of these new features, Taylor is improving the interior of the clubhouse with fresh paint and carpeting. He's also planning some upgrades to the entry road and entrance off U.S. 31.

His full-time team during peak summer hours will include 25 staffers. He has brought back one of the original club team members to lead course restoration, Ty Conklin, who will serve as golf course superintendent. Other key team members include Dayna Atkins-VanAvery, Kelley Wallace, Keith Grunch and Jake Jenson.

The public is invited to the debut of the Charlevoix Country Club's renewal kickoff — a grand opening event — to take place from 5-7 p.m. on Wednesday, May 9. Live entertainment and hors d'oeuvres will be offered in the clubhouse.

Taylor's ownership of the club follows that of Dave Mocini, a Saugatuck native, a former Michigan Professional Golfers Association president, who purchased the property in March 2009. Mocini remains on staff during the transition in ownership.

Cement plant's environmental efforts honored

SKOKIE, Ill.—The St. Marys Cement Inc. plant in Charlevoix recently received the Land Stewardship Award from the Portland Cement Association and "Cement Americas" magazine as part of the 2012 Cement Industry Energy & Environment Awards.

The award was presented April 16 at PCA's Spring Meeting in Chicago.

The Charlevoix cement plant was a winner in the Award's Land Stewardship category that recognizes a plant's efforts to protect and enhance the surrounding land.

Through numerous efforts and activities, the St. Marys Cement plant improved the land around and on its property in 2011. In the past year, the company received permission from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality to use residual dump material and stockpiles of cement kiln dust as feedstock in its kilns. This not only put the plant on a path to rid the landscape of a dump but also reduced its need for virgin materials.

St. Marys renewed its partnership with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, operating and maintaining the Medusa Creek Fish Weir. The weir is located on plant property and consists entirely of quarry discharge water. In 2011, nearly 8,000 salmon were harvested, up almost 2,400 from 2010.

St. Marys is also becoming known in Northern Michigan for its support of bird habitats. The plant continued its sponsorship of local wildlife habitat advocates dedicated to protecting the native loon population and provided materials and labor to construct loon nesting platforms at identified lakes and ponds, including one on the plant's own quarry settling pond.

2011 was also the year the plant entered into an agreement with local municipalities to turn rail lines – formerly used for hauling cement – into community trails that provide local residents a pathway connecting them to Fisherman's Island State Park, which adjoins the St. Marys plant as well as connecting Lake Charlevoix with Lake Michigan.

"St. Marys and other cement manufactures recognize the need to protect our nation's ecological assets and are committed to making their local communities better places to work and live," said Brian McCarthy, Portland Cement Association president and chief executive officer. "Cement manufacturers strive to leave the earth they impact a better place for future generations."

The Energy & Environmental Awards honor individual cement facilities that exemplify the spirit of continuous environmental improvement and support this spirit with action. These plants go beyond government regulations and local laws to ensure that their processes contribute to making their communities better places to live and work. Five categories are recognized: outreach, environmental performance, land stewardship, innovation and energy efficiency. Additionally, Portland Cement Association presents a special honor to a plant demonstrating excellence in multiple categories.

The awards program was created in 2000 by the Portland Cement Association as part of its environment and energy strategic plan for the U.S. cement industry. The awards honor activities conducted during the previous calendar year, and the program is open to any cement manufacturing plant in North America. Judges for the 2012 E&E Awards Program included represenatives from U.S. Environmental Protection Agency-ENERGY STAR, Wildlife Habitat Council, U.S. Geological Survey, World Wildlife Fund and "Cement Americas."

Based in Skokie, Ill., the Portland Cement Association represents cement companies in the United States and Canada. It conducts market development, engineering, research, education, and public affairs programs.

Johan's Cafe to offer well-known baked goods and much more

Steve Zucker
COURIER EDITOR

Mention the name Johan's in most places, and people probably will think of classical music.

Mention that same name in Northern Michigan, and most people will think of one thing: doughnuts.

And starting this week, that name will have people also thinking of Charlevoix.

Clayton Brown, owner of Petoskey-based Johan's Pastry shop, well known in the area for doughnuts, rolls, cakes, cookies and other tasty treats offered his locations also in Harbor Springs, and Boyne City, was expected to open Johan's Cafe at 327 Bridge St. today, Friday, May 4.

Charlevoix resident John Sheets who has decades of experience in the food service industry, will serve as the cafe's manager.

Sheets said although the Charlevoix location will have all the baked goods people have come to expect from Johan's brought in fresh daily from Petoskey, the offerings won't stop there.

The Charlevoix location will also offer a full line of coffee drinks — from mochas to espressos and will offer soups, ice cream and smoothies and made-to-order salads, sandwiches and wraps.

For those who like to entertain, Johan's Cafe will also cater trays of snacks and other goodies.

Sheets said regular business hours are expected to be daily from 7 a.m.-6 p.m. year-round with later hours during the busy summer months. The new store's telephone number was not available at press time.

Seely promoted, earns 'Premier Advisor' again

Wells Fargo Advisors has once again designated Steven W. Seely of Charlevoix as a member of the firm's Premier Advisors Program, a distinction that reflects Seely's achievement of professional success through a consistent commitment to client service. In addition, Seely has been promoted to Vice President-Investment Officer, effective immediately.

"Steve is among a select group of professionals at Wells Fargo Advisors who have achieved the status of Premier Advisor by consistently demonstrating his willingness and capacity to understand his clients' life goals, as well as an ability to develop and execute plans designed to help clients achieve their aspirations," said Jim Hays, president of the Wells Fargo Advisors Private Client Group. "Steve's high level of commitment to his clients sets a standard and serves as an example for others. We are very proud to have Mr. Seely on our team."

Seely

According to a company news-release, "To qualify for the Premier Advisors Program at Wells Fargo Advisors, financial advisors must demonstrate a high level of production and a commitment to professional service."

Seely has been a financial advisor with Wells Fargo Advisors for 12 years and has 38 years experience in the financial services industry. He has an undergraduate degree from Michigan State University and Graduate degrees from Central Michigan University and the University of Oklahoma.

Seely is on the board of directors with the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, a trustee with the Fr. Pierre Charlevoix Knights of Columbus, a lay minister with St. Mary's Parish, a certified coach, master racer, and alpine official with the United States Ski and Snowboard Association;, a certified instructor and accredited trainer with the Professional Ski Instructors Association, and a certified handicap official with the United States Golf Association and Golf Association of Michigan.

Foundation awards five grants worth $19,500

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded five grants to area environmental organizations last week.

Recipients of the grants include the Friends of the Boyne River, the Lake Charlevoix Association, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, W.A.T.C.H., and the Walloon Lake Trust and Conservancy.

The foundation accepts grant applications throughout the year, with deadlines being March 1 and October 1. This spring, the foundation disbursed a total of $19,500 from the Ethel Coeling Environmental Fund to support the following projects:

— Improvements to a nature trail on the Boyne River by the Friends of the Boyne

— Creation of a digital media presentation by the Lake Charlevoix Association

— Conducting a shoreline survey on Lake Charlevoix by the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council

— Supporting environmental education training for teachers of students in grades 3-8 by W.A.T.C.H.

— Implementing interpretive signs at the Postle Farm Preserve by the Walloon Lake Trust & Conservancy

Since 2004, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has distributed 71 environmental grants to 25 area organizations and municipalities. That comes to a total of $302,941 given to help protect and preserve natural resources in our region. Each year, the community foundation is able to distribute from $40,000-$60,000 in grants to environmental projects that promote the following: restoration and stabilization of resources, education of children and adults, scientific research and planning, marketing and raising awareness, and promoting wise land use. Foundations officials said much of this is thanks to the foresight of Charlevoix County resident Ethel Coeling, who set up an endowed fund with the community foundation that has grown to nearly one million dollars. Coeling, who was born in Ellsworth and retired in Norwood, spent much of her adult life living and traveling abroad. However, when it came time for her to make her last wishes, she choose to support the community and environment of the Great Lakes Region that she loved, and set up the Ethel Coeling Environmental Fund at the community foundation.

Foundation program officer Maureen Radke said, "Our environmental resources are like the 'calling card' of Northern Michigan — they are why people live here, why they want to visit, why they come to play and enjoy the water and the beauty. The environment is important here not only for the natural beauty and enjoyment it provides, but because it is so closely tied to our economy and livelihood as a community."

A 2011 grant to the Little Traverse Conservancy helped fund trail improvement projects for two preserves on Beaver Island. This project was just completed in April of this year. The Barney's Lake Preserve now has the most extensive trail system of any of the preserves on the island, and includes new interpretive signs, extensive loops, and a new parking lot, as well as new boat storage racks near the public access of the lake. Similar work was done on the Little Sand Bay Preserve, including new signs that highlights the area's natural features.

Little Traverse Conservancy Director of Stewardship Doug Fuller said, "We couldn't have done all that we've done without the support of the community foundation. We are very excited about the improvements."

Radke said the projects that have recently been completed will facilitate greater enjoyment of the resources available in our area. She added, "So many organizations in our region are doing exceptional and important work on behalf of conservation and environmental protection. It is a privilege for the community foundation to be a part of this work."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a grassroots charitable organization made up of various funds—all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come. For more information, contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at (231) 536-2440, or online at www.c3f.org.
